HN Legion Post, Auxiliary Adopt USS Peleliu Crew

The Houghs Neck Legion

Post and Auxiliary has adopted the men and women of the aircraft carrier USS Peleliu, currently in Asian waters, and is collecting items to amuse them in the long, boring days and nights at sea.

"The ship will be at sea for many months," said an auxiliary spokeswoman, "It is hard on the man and woman being away from their families and friends over the holidays. Sometimes they go for days without being able to get up on deck to see the sun. This makes time go very slowly.

"We are collecting hard candy, can chips, nuts, life savers, mints, cookies, paper, stamps, envelopes, cards, crossword puzzle books, hand-held video games, CDs, playing cards, travel games, etc.

"Any cash donations received will be used to buy items or to help cover the cost of shipping. In the past month we have sent three boxes. They also love to receive mail. Any letters written will be sent with the boxes."

Donations may be left at the Houghs Neck Legion Post, 1116 Sea St., Houghs Neck, any day after 1 p.m.

$2 Million Approved For Adams Land Acquisition

A bill providing $2 million for land acquisition at the Adams National Historical Park in Quincy has been signed into law by President Bush, a year after it was crafted.

The measure, shepherded through the Congress by Sen. Edward Kennedy and Cong. Bill Delahunt, also provides more than $1 million for improvements to the Cape Cod National Seashore.

"These improvements will help showcase the natural and historical resources of our region," said Delahunt, "which is especially important as we work through the impact on the local tourism economy of the Sept. 11 attacks."

Basic infrastructure needs at the Adams National Historical Park have become urgent in the wake of the volume of visitors that has increased with heightened interest in the Adams legacy.

The provision also dovetails with new legislation authorizing a memorial in Washington honoring Presidents John and John Quincy Adams and their wife and mother, Abigail.

The projects were contained in the Fiscal 2002 appropriations bill for the Department of the Interior. Since the new fiscal year is already underway, actual funding will be delayed.

It's Beginning To Look Like Christmas

SANTA CLAUS HIMSELF was there to greet children of all ages at the end of this year's 49th annual Christmas Festival Parade which took place Sunday along Hancock St., drawing an estimated 200,000 spectators.

THE JOSEPH A. FERKO String Band, a veteran of the famed Philadelphia Mummers Parade and a highlight of this year's Quincy Christmas Festival parade, makes a colorful sight as it marches through Quincy Center Sunday. The Philadelphia "String Band" was sponsored by South Shore Savings Bank.

Sheets, Mayor-Elect Work For Smooth Transition

Phelan Ready To Make Tough Decisions

By CRAIG SALTERS

A smooth transition is on the minds of both incoming Mayor-Elect William Phelan and outgoing Mayor James Sheets as the city prepares for the inauguration of a new administration Monday, Jan. 7.

Phelan, who has tapped brother Chris Phelan, a co-manager of his successful campaign, to head his transition team, said the work of that team will focus on four specific areas: public safety; budget analysis; personnel; both new and present; and special projects.

Presently a member of the School Committee, Phelan appears eager to tackle the challenges of being the city's first new mayor in a decade and addressing uncertain economic times at the local, state, and national level.

"There are tough economic times ahead and we have to be prepared to face them," said Phelan, who recently attended a three-day national training conference for newly-elected mayors

MDC Meeting Seeks Input On Wollaston Beach Rehab Project

Ward 5 Councillor-Elect Doug Gutro urges residents to attend the MDC's public meeting on the Wollaston Beach Rehabilitation Project tonight (Thursday) from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School's Sawyer Center, 225 Fenno St.

The meeting, referred to by the MDC as Public Meeting No. 3, will solicit final input on the restoration of Wollaston Beach, part of the MDC's overall "Back to the Beaches" campaign.

"We're finally in line for this funding," said Gutro, who thanked State Sen. Michael Morrissey for his leadership on the issue. "This is, frankly, the meeting to be at."

Possible landside improvements to be discussed, Gutro said, include parking, lighting, benches, foot showers, shade shelters, and lane alternatives for traffic.

"This meeting will give residents a final say as to how we can shape Wollaston Beach," said Gutro, a member of the Wollaston Beach Task Force. "It's a major decision point."

In a statement released recently publicizing tonight's (Thursday's) public meeting, the MDC said residents seeking more information on the Wollaston Beach Rehabilitation Project could call the MDC Community Affairs Office at (617) 727-5114, ext. 530.

Liquor License Granted To Caddy Detachment

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board voted unanimously Tuesday in favor of an all alcoholic liquor license to John D. Carlson, manager of the William R. Caddy Marine Detachment, 111 Newbury Ave.

Leo Cardarelli, chairman of the building corporation for the Caddy Detachment, said the marine veteran's group began in 1946 at the former Walter Scott building on Franklin St., and then were housed on Centre St. in South Quincy for 25 years. They then moved to Foster St. at the old Knights of Columbus building and now have moved the former Cavanaugh DAV Hall with a three year lease.

A petition by Mayor James Sheets for a 50 year lease is pending and will be addressed by the city council, Cardarelli said

Cardarelli outlined many programs that the group participate in including providing a place where "all Marines can meet and discuss problems."

Cardarelli said the group visit Brockton Hospital and have several parties a years including a Christmas party as well as a program for Toys for Tots.

Chairman Joseph Shea said that because the detachment is a national charter of veteran's organization, they do not fit in the category of a quota license that the city of Quincy has. Shea said the city has 94 liquor licenses, but veterans organizations are exempt and do not have a quota.

He listed the George F. Bryan Post, Houghs Neck

groups that liquor licenses are issued to.

Shea said the paper work will be forwarded to the Alcoholics Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) for approval which takes from four to six weeks.

Shea said the licenses must be renewed each year, and if there is a change of managers, it will have to come before the License Board.

Det. Lt. Robert M. Perchard, liquor inspector and license board agent told Cardarelli that he wanted a list of all the bartenders and that they take a TIPS course. He stressed that when someone appears "tipsy" give them a "cup of coffee before you send them on their way." He said to make sure the bartenders are educated in the program.

Donation Counters Grinch Theft $2,000 Theft At Salvation Army Has Happy Ending

If there's a silver lining to the recent theft of $2,000 of the Salvation Army's annual "Kettle Campaign" funds from a locked safe at its 6 Baxter St. headquarters, it's that angels outnumber grinch by about 100 to one this holiday season.

Almost as soon as word spread that the Quincy Temple Corps had been robbed after-hours on Nov. 19, Majors Doug and Linda Jones began to field calls from concerned citizens in and out of Quincy volunteering to make up the difference.

The Salvation Army commanding officers gratefully accepted the first offer, a $2,000 check from John Bucciarelli of Stephens and Michaels Associates, Inc. of Windham, NH, and then spent the day graciously turning down similar offers of assistance.

"We had six or seven calls from people willing to do the same thing (as Mr. Bucciarelli did)," said Major Doug Jones. "We thanked them but, in fairness, told them that those funds had already been replaced."

Even so, Jones said,

MAJOR DOUGLAS JONES

many people decided to contribute smaller amounts. And that Wednesday and Thursday's kettle drives, Jones added, went "extremely well" as passersby offered their condolences over the theft, many saying that they were doubling their usual contribution.

"This is a very generous community," said Jones. "This is a situation where you measure a community not by the selfish acts, which are in the minority, but by the kind acts, which are in the majority, and amongst the majority there has been an outpouring of love and support."

Bucciarelli's donation to the Quincy Temple Corps came with a letter addressed to Major Jones which reads:

"On behalf of myself and my office, please accept the enclosed donation of $2000 to replace the money stolen from your Salvation Army facility. It is a tragedy that people would take advantage of an establishment such as yours that helps misfortunate people out every day.

"Keep us the good work and we wish you all happy holidays to come."

As happy as Jones was over the generosity of Bucciarelli and others, he still expressed disappointment over the original theft.

"The reality is that the thieves didn't steal from The Salvation Army but from the people of Quincy," Jones said. "That money was donated by local residents to help their neighbors in need."

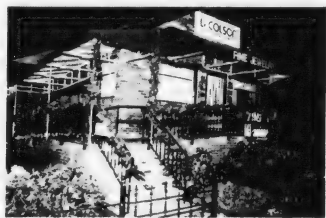

Salvation Army kettles are open at most locations Monday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. until Christmas Eve.

Sheets, Phelan Pledge Smooth Transition

"There are decisions to be made and I am going to make the decisions I feel must be made. I am not going to play games with the public."

In addition to his transition team, Phelan said he would seek the advice of City Council President Paul Harold, whose office Phelan is occupying on a temporary basis, and Councilor at-Large and former Mayor Frank McCauley, both of whom endorsed Phelan in the Nov. 6 election.

The other half of the transition process is Sheets, who called Phelan Thanksgiving afternoon to concede following a recount of the closest mayoral election in city history.

Sheets said his two goals for the next month will be to ensure a smooth transition and "complete the year with dignity and success."

The six-term mayor has chosen City Solicitor Stephen McGrath to head his transition team, which also includes Executive Secretary Daniel Keating, DPW Commissioner David Colton, and Events and Tourism Director Rhonda Merrill.

The results of the Nov. 6 election saw Phelan defeat Sheets by 15 votes, 12,330 to 12,315. A subsequent hand recount of all 24,935 ballots, which ended Nov. 20, saw Phelan increase his margin of victory to 17 votes, finishing with 12,355 votes to Sheets' 12,338.

Sheets, whose camp spent Nov. 21 thoroughly reviewing absentee ballots before conceding the election, chose not to question the result in the courts and said the election recount was "very accurate."

"We were satisfied that it was a very narrow but accurate margin of victory," said Sheets, "and we decided not to pursue the recount further."

Aside from being unable to see projects such as the Quincy Concourse through to completion, Sheets said he has no regrets.

"If it's not to be, then it's not to be," said Sheets. "When one door closes, two doors open."

Sheets did not specify what some of those opportunities might be, explaining only that he had many creative, productive years ahead of him.

"Contrary to some rumors, I'm in excellent health," Sheets said. "I'm not one to look back."

THE HAND RECOUNT of all 24,935 ballots cast in the Nov. 6 election ended last Tuesday night with Mayor-Elect William Phelan earning a 17 vote victory over incumbent James Sheets, an overall increase of two votes from the original margin of victory. The final tally for the closest mayoral election in city history was Phelan 12,355 and Sheets 12,338. From left are: brother James Phelan; wife Tracey Phelan with daughters Rachael, age 12, and Brianna, age 9; Mayor-Elect William Phelan; brother Ged Phelan; sister Patti (Phelan) Henley; and brother Chris Phelan.

Ayers Urges Swift: Don't Veto Traffic Light Improvements

State Representative Bruce Ayers is urging Acting Governor Jane Swift not to veto $65,000 in traffic light improvements along Wollaston Beach as she considers the proposed state budget this week.

The proposal, which Ayers was able to include in the House Budget Recommendations, allots $65,000 for upgrades of certain traffic signals along Quincy Shore Drive and also authorizes the MDC to transfer control of the traffic lights to the city's Traffic and Parking Department.

"This is a win-win situation, where the state will pay for the necessary, upgraded, traffic lighting and the city will gain control of the new system, providing for better synchronization and maintenance," said Ayers, who praised State Sen. Michael Morrissey for his role in getting the budgetary proposal through the Senate. "These changes are paramount towards public safety and will make Quincy Shore Drive a safer route for vehicles and pedestrian traffic."

"I can understand the governor has fiscal responsibilities in these tough economic times. However, I am very concerned that she will veto this important capital improvement. This is a serious public safety concern within my district and these are pertinent upgrades and improvements that are long overdue to be made in order to insure pedestrians' and motorists' safety."

To underscore his message, Ayers recently presented Swift with a petition along with a profile outlining the importance of the capital improvement.

Ayers urged constituents to support the funding for the replacement of Wollaston Beach traffic lights by contacting the Governor's Office at (617) 727-3600.

Campaign On For Phelan's School Seat

One question still to be answered now that William Phelan will be moving into the mayor's office Jan.

7: Who gets to fill his seat on the school committee?

A convention of the new city council and the school committee in January will decide who will finish out the last two years left on Phelan's term.

He was only in the second year of his first four-year term when he challenged and won an upset victory over incumbent James Sheets by a scant 17 votes -- the closest mayoral election in the city's history.

A number of names are being speculated as either interested or, already campaigning behind the scene for the necessary votes.

Among them:

Stephen Durkin, who lost his Ward 5 city council seat this year to Doug Gutro and is a former member of the school committee.

Rev. John Swanson, pastor of Union Congregational Church, who polled 4,361 votes in a fifth place finish in his political debut as a school committee candidate two years ago.

Jennifer Logue, who worked in Phelan's mayoral campaign and is the daughter of Councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley.

Ron Iacobucci, who filed nomination papers for school committee this year and then decided to withdraw. He has been a past candidate for the city council.

Mary Collins, former school committee member and former Norfolk County commissioner, who took out papers this year but did not file them.

Sal Giarratani, active in the Atlantic Neighborhood Association and who has run for the school committee in the past.

Julie Berberan, environmental advocate who ran unsuccessfully for city councillor at-large this year in her first bid for elective office.

Charles Sweeny, who served five terms on the school committee between 1956 and 1978 and is now a member of the Board of Voter Registrars.

There were no school committee challengers in the Nov. 6 election, giving incumbents Jo-Ann Bragg, Ron Mariano and Michael McFarland a free-ride to another term.

This was seen as quite unusual, considering all the controversy over the siting of a new Quincy High School and the lingering issue of MCAS scores.

A credible school committee challenger this year could have had somewhat of an advantage at the convention to fill the Phelan vacancy. But, not necessarily, a guarantee. The seat can also go to someone who has never run before.

One of the most famous conventions involved two candidates who did run for the school committee in 1993. Christine Cedrone defeated Sean Barry by eight votes on election night.

But Barry field a recount in certain wards. Cedrone decided to make it a city-wide recount. Four days of recounting showed the pair in an historic 5,734 vote tie.

Councillor Tim Cahill tried to get a special election to settle the matter but the home rule petition died on Beacon Hill.

So the tie was sent to a school committee-council convention and Barry had the votes to win it.

Cedrone came back to win a seat in another election and still serves on the school committee today. Barry is now president of Quincy College.

The Phelan school committee seat officially becomes vacant when he is sworn in as mayor.

But as mayor, he will also be chairman of the school committee with a vote, if he so desires, at the convention to determine his successor as a member of the board.

With five members of the school committee plus Phelan

if all took part. The successful contender would need eight of the votes.

WHEN THE TWO-day hand recount of nearly 25,000 ballots in the mayoral election was finally over, spontaneous applause rang out in the second floor conference room at City Hall where it was held.

Part of it because the recount was over. But most of it for City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Election workers, observers for both Mayor James Sheets and now the official winner, William Phelan, and on-lookers joined in the tribute.

A deserving one, too.

Shea presided over the recount in a professional, efficient and impartial manner. His low-key approach had a calming influence over those crammed into the conference room for two days. And kept both sides on friendly terms.

Shea passed praise on to Voter Registrars Bill Draicchio, Denis Tardo and Charles Sweeny, Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallsen, and recount assistants Jack Beaton, Bill Grindley and others who participated.

Together, it was a job well done.

Shea also noted with a dash of pride the recount attested to the accuracy of the optical scanning voting system which he brought in to replace the punch card system before it became notorious in Florida.

The hand-count of 24,935 votes showed a net difference of just two votes from election night. Both votes went to Phelan giving him a 17-vote victory instead of 15.

"That's pretty darn accurate," said Shea, quite pleased. No argument here, Joe.

A 75TH BIRTHDAY celebration is on tap for good friend Fr. William McCarthy Monday, Dec. 10 from 6 to 9 p.m. at The Common Market, 97 Willard St.

Donation is $25 with the proceeds going to Father Bill's Place, the interfaith shelter for the homeless on Broad St. named after him.

Father Bill spent 25 of his 75 years in Quincy as pastor of St. John's from 1977 to 1995 and later as senior priest in residence.

He is now assisting at two churches on the Cape, Our Lady of Victory in Centerville and Our Lady of Hope in Barnstable.

But he still comes back to Quincy two or three days a week to help the homeless at Father Bill's.

Reservations deadline for the birthday party is Monday, Dec. 3. To make them or for more information call 617-770-3314.

Father, with all the energy you have, are you sure you're 75?

ANOTHER GOOD FRIEND, Jerry Dacey, is home and 'feeling great' after triple by-pass surgery at Boston Medical Center, Nov. 12.

Jerry officially is Director of Marketing at Colonial Federal Savings and unofficially its "Ambassador of Good Will."

He makes friends wherever he goes. In fact, a source informs us that the nurses at BMC didn't want him to leave. He had them, no pun intended, in stitches.

No comment from Jerry on that.

But he does say his doctor advises him to start walking faithfully, beginning with five minute stretches and gradually working up to 15. He's already doing this five minutes -- twice a day.

He expects to be back at his post in a month or six weeks.

Close Election Shows Every Vote Counts

Well, finally the 2001 mayoral contest in Quincy has concluded with a brand new mayor in William Phelan. This year's election was the closest in the city's history. Phelan beat Mayor Jim Sheets by a 17 vote margin once the recount was completed.

The City of Quincy will move forward under the leadership of a new voice with his vision of where Quincy must go into the future. After six terms, Quincy voters -- 17 voters exactly -- have changed the course of history.

I enlisted in the Phelan campaign because I believed he was the right guy for the job. I once supported the incumbent but this year thought it was time for a change.

Hopefully, the bitterness seen along the campaign trail will heal. We are one city and must move forward together.

Mayor Sheets had a good run. Twelve years. He did his best for us and improved things along the way. However, with the years added on endlessly, I felt it was time for newer ideas. Ideas that could only come from a new mayor. Every mayor leaves a legacy. Every new mayor must take up where the old mayor left off.

Some have criticized me for my harsh anti-Sheets letters published in this and other newspapers but I felt I must speak out and state my concerns. Debate is healthy in a democracy. It makes all of us better. Government after all is us not the politicians. They will come and go, only we remain.

I congratulate mayor-elect Bill Phelan and will help him anyway I can be of service. I also congratulate Mayor Jim Sheets for all the positive things he has done to make Quincy a great city to call home.

The heated words are ended. Now is the time to look ahead to the task before us. The people have spoken and the city moves forward in confidence as usual.

The power of the people has spoken. Government is our business. We are the foundation. Hopefully, the closeness of this election will show all those non-voters out there that each and everyone of us can make the difference. Every vote counts. This year 17 votes really counted, eh?

Sal Giarratani

Praise For Jim Sheets: 'A Gentleman'

He's really quite a gentleman, this man that they call Jim. He walks, he runs, he smiles, he sometimes even swims.

But greatest of his honors are the quality of his mind and heart, for the things he did for this old town and the things he was a part.

He was loved and respected by the students that he taught. He was an able and good councillor and he sure was a very able and caring chief executive of this great city of Quincy.

He may not go down in history in as great a place as John Quincy Adams or John Adams, but in the minds and hearts of the people he has served he will live forever.

To know this man is to know a true servant of the people for he was a true friend to the poor as well as to the sick.

The people who worked in his office were as dedicated to their jobs and to the people of Quincy as the mayor was.

As I write this note, there is a pain in my heart and tears in my eyes for a man who was such a true leader.

Jim's wife Joann Sheets was and is still a great asset to her husband and that goes for all the Sheets family. I love each and every one of you.

PTA Petitions For New NQHS

By PAUL HAROLD

The PTA of North Quincy Junior High School began a petition drive for a new junior high school in the north end of the city. At the last meeting of the PTA, the overcrowding issue was brought to the attention of principal James Collins.

Nov. 29 - Dec. 5

46 Years Ago

Gerald Gherardi was chairman of the petition drive that was organized with captains in the 17 precincts that had pupils attending NQHS. The goal was to have a new school built by 1957.

Meanwhile, Edward Donovan, president of the PTA at the Parker School, announced his group had voted its support for the new school drive.

GRANDMOTHERS LEAD POLICE IN HIGH SPEED CHASE

Two grandmothers suspected of shoplifting in downtown led police on a six-mile chase across the city, reaching speeds between 60-90 mph.

They avoided arrested in the John Hancock Parking Area by Det. Warren Corbett and John Fitzgerald, but were arrested at gunpoint following the chase at a road block on West Elm Ave. near Billings Rd.

LEE RENEWS BID FOR ST. MORITZ RINK

Rep. Carter Lee renewed his bid to have the MDC build an ice rink in the St. Moritz area of West Quincy. He re-filed legislation for the rink, having failed in the last legislative session.

Lee said the example of the Max Ulin rink in Milton showed hockey and general skating could be self-supporting. He noted the tremendous demand for such a facility by the city's young people and pointed out the large MDC assessment the city paid, with the nearest rink in Milton not easily accessible.

Quincy's Maura Finn Featured In Conservatory Opera

Maura Finn of Quincy has a featured role in two of the South Shore Conservatory's four production of Gian Carlo Menotti's opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors" on the weekend of Dec. 8-9.

Finn sings the role of Amahl's mother at Sanborn Auditorium, Hingham Town Hall, on Saturday, Dec. 8, at 7 p.m. and at Pilgrim Church, Duxbury, Sunday, Dec. 9, at 4 p.m.

Elizabeth Milch of Weymouth assumes the role of Amahl's mother in the other performances.

Tickets are $10 per person, $7 for seniors and students.

The Menotti opera tells the story of a young peasant boy who joins the legendary three kings on their journey toward a star.

"This is a terrific opera for families at this time of year because it was originally written with children in mind," said Debra Jewell, founder of Opera by the Bay, a division of the Conservatory.

"It's a story about a little boy, the music is beautiful, it is sung in English and it is less than an hour long."

For more information or to order tickets, call Laura Carleton at 781-934-2731, ext. 14.

MAURA FINN of Quincy sings a leading role as Amahl's mother in the South Shore Conservatory's production of "Amahl and the Night Visitors." Douglas Kenner of Plymouth, who plays Amahl, is at right.

Turkey Pot Pie

Have you still got leftover turkey? I froze the remainder of ours and am going to make my traditional turkey pot pie. In it I also used all the leftover stuffing, gravy and mashed potatoes as well.

Turkey Pot Pie
light and dark leftover turkey (cut in small pieces)
3 or 4 fresh carrots (cut up)
1 cup frozen peas or 1 package of frozen mixed vegetables leftover gravy pie crust for a nine inch pie plate
Cream sauce for the pie
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
8 ounces chicken stock or a can of plain chicken broth
1 cup milk
salt and pepper to taste
Preheat oven to 350.
Cut the turkey and set aside.

If you're using the frozen vegetables, thaw but there's no need to cook them. If you're using fresh carrots, par boil them. With the carrots I always add peas.

For the cream sauce, melt the butter, add the flour with the broth. Add more flour if the sauce is too liquidy. (if you used any mashed potatoes, it should be thick enough). Add the turkey pieces, any leftover stuffing if you have it, the potatoes (optional), the gravy, plus either the mixed vegetables or the peas and carrots. Cook until well blended.

Place in a slightly greased pie plate and cover the top with the pie crust. Make a few holes with the sharp end of a knife on the top of the crust.

Bake for 35 to 40 minutes or until crust is golden brown. I served it with butternut squash. A cool meal on a cold night.

The rest of the turkey bones make a great soup.

Bellotti Awards $28,000 To County Fire Departments

In honor of the Quincy and 27 other fire departments in Norfolk County during Fire Safety Month, Sheriff Michael Bellotti has donated $1,000 to each department for community fire education, prevention and safety awareness.

"Recent events have shown the world what we already knew --- that our firefighters are true heroes and essential to every community," Bellotti said. "I am honored to be a resource for these brave men and women, and I hope this money will help make a difference in the outstanding work Norfolk County firefighters already do."

Each department will use the $1,000 for fire-related purposes such as new equipment, education programs or training.

Fire department heads recently received their checks from Bellotti at the Norfolk County Fire Chiefs' monthly meeting held at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office.

In addition to the total $28,000 awarded by Bellotti a separate $2,000 grant was presented to the State Fire Marshal for Department of Fire Services training programs.

"The Sheriff's Office is a community resource," Bellotti said, "and public safety is our number one priority."

S.S Savings Bank New Section 8 Home Ownership Program

South Shore Savings Bank is participating in the Section 8-to-Homeownership program sponsored by Housing and Urban Development (HUD), a federal agency.

South Shore Savings Bank will provide mortgage funding to welfare recipients from Weymouth, Braintree and Quincy who have been pre-qualified by the housing authorities in those communities, said bank President and Chief Operating Officer John C. Boucher. Applicants must complete 50 hours of homebuyer education including topics such as credit and money management and responsible home ownership.

The bank will provide reduced closing costs and financing up to 100% for owner-occupied single family homes, subject to restrictions. The homeownership program subsidizes the individual's mortgage payments for 10 years, at which time the homeowner assumes all financial responsibilities.

"There is value in turning lifelong Section 8 rental subsidies into home mortgages that encourage self-sufficiency," Boucher said.

"Given this opportunity, truly motivated individuals in extreme circumstances can make a positive change in their lives."

South Shore Savings Bank, which operates under an 1833 state charter, has offices in Quincy, East Bridgewater, Hanover and Weymouth, including an Educational and Training Facility at Weymouth High School.

The bank is a member of the FDIC and a member of the DIF.

Ce-Ce And Friends Cat Shelter In Search Of New Home

Ce-Ce and Friends Humane Society, Inc., a non-profit cat shelter, must leave its present location at 146 Copeland St. by the end of the year and is searching for a new home.

Peggy Wright, president of Ce-Ce and Friends, said the shelter, which specializes in the taming and adoption of feral cats, received an eviction notice dated Nov. 7 explaining that the landlord needed the site for increased storage space.

Although Wright said she understood the decision of the landlord, whom she said had been cooperative was trying to be helpful in terms of extra time, she added that the reality was still that the shelter needs a new location on short notice.

"We're hoping there's a good Samaritan out there," said Wright. "We're just looking for a home."

Those interested in contacting the shelter can call (617) 328-5812.

Victory Over North Quincy Gives Quincy First Winning Record In Seven Seasons

By CHRIS POISSON

Following his team's 12-7 Thanksgiving Day victory, Quincy High School head coach Bob Noble suddenly broke from his interview with the press near the south end zone to do something truly special.

Unrehearsed, Noble retrieved the game ball and presented it to former Quincy High coach Bill Sullivan, who gave a speech to the team before the game and who was also honored in a pre-game ceremony along with former North Quincy High great Pete Zoia.

Sullivan congratulated the team, and Noble thanked him and told the legendary coach in a sincere, genuine way that someday he was going to break his Turkey Day winning streak and that it would be an honor in doing so.

"It was a spur of the moment thing," Noble said. "I have always been an admirer of Bill Sullivan for the many things he has done. He has always conducted himself with class and he has been very supportive of me. He didn't know me very well three years ago. But during my first few weeks on the job, he sent me a very nice letter supporting me. That meant a lot to me at the time. I saw him standing there and it was just an instinctive thing."

Sullivan is Quincy's most successful coach in the Thanksgiving Day games, winning five straight from 1954 to 1958. Noble has won all three of his holiday games, and with the way the program is shaping up there is a good chance he could win another three straight to surpass Sullivan.

With the victory, the seventh in the last eight years, the Presidents can stamp SUCCESS in big bold letters for the 2001 campaign. After a sluggish start that bottomed out with the tie to a weak Randolph team on Oct. 12, Quincy began to turn things around in the first game of its three-week odyssey to the Cape.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL'S Marc Dorais (46), Chris Sullivan (48), Mike Lorenzano (19), Aden Said (85) and Tom Shruhan (53) celebrate with their teammates after their 12-7 victory over

Although it lost that game to Nauset, Quincy knew it could have won and it sparked the team for the rest of the season as it won its final four games to finish with a 5-4-1 record — its first winning season since the 1994 team went 6-4 in Jack Raymer's last year at the helm.

For North Quincy, meanwhile, another senior class finishes its career in frustration. The Red Raiders (3-7) had jumped out to a 2-1 start under first-year head coach Tony Green, but any chance of a winning season was washed away with a five-game losing streak. Still, they were optimistic of ending Quincy's reign after their 12-0 win over Canton on Nov. 10.

"It's too bad for our seniors," Green said. "Everybody deserves to win, but it just can't happen that way. This was a great game. Quincy played great. They prepared and they executed and they beat us. Our kids played well. Our kids gave

Supervised Recreation Programs At 11 Neighborhood Gyms Start Saturday

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct supervised recreation programs in 11 neighborhood school gymnasiums beginning this Saturday.

The gym programs, held on Saturdays, are free and are open to boys and girls ages 8 through high school. The time varies for each of the age groups.

All programs have walk-in registration at each location and are open only to Quincy residents. Participants may attend the location of their choice, not just their neighborhood gymnasium.

Assorted gym activities such as floor hockey, tag football, basketball and relay races will be conducted under the supervision of the Quincy Recreation Department staff.

The core schedule is from 8:30 to 9:45 a.m. for elementary; 9:45 to 11:15 a.m. for middle school; and 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. for high school. Some adjustments in this time schedule may be made at different locations to accommodate differences in attendance by age group.

The Saturday schedule is offered at the following schools: Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, Clifford Marshall, Point Webster, Wollaston and Atlantic.

Presidents Prevail In Another Holiday Classic, 12-7

everything they had. It just wasn't enough. It was a real close, tight North Quincy-Quincy game."

Asked to reflect on his first Quincy-North game as a head coach, an emotionally and physically drained Green said: "I loved it. I loved everything leading up to it. The Hall of Fame dinner was outstanding. The Kiwanis dinner was great. The Rotary luncheon was very nice. The pep rallies were good. I'm tired though. I have to take about a month off work. But it's just a great day for the city of Quincy. It's just too bad that we didn't win."

Although they didn't win, the Red Raiders could not have asked for a better start to the 69th meeting between the two schools. On the first play from scrimmage Quincy tried a quick flanker screen to the right, but senior quarterback Mike Lorenzano's pass to senior Kris Kamborian never reached its destination.

Defensive end Joe Burke, a first-year starter who was containing the left side against a sweep or quarterback run, stepped in front of Kamborian and whizzed 35 yards into the end zone. Senior Pat Bregoli's extra point gave North Quincy a 7-0 lead just 19 seconds into the game, leaving many fans who were still strolling through the gates startled when they looked at the scoreboard.

"Oh, Joe Burke," raved Green. "He's a senior. He's been in the program for four years. He was suppose to contain there, but he came across and the quarterback tried to throw it over his head and he caught it and ran for a touchdown. It was an athletic play."

"Give the North Quincy kid credit," Noble said. "He made a heck of a play. But that was just one play. We still have 43 and some odd seconds left. Forget it and let's go back out and play."

With a sudden case of amnesia, the Presidents did just that. On its next play from scrimmage, Lorenzano faked to sophomore tailback J.J. Niamkey and handed off to Kamborian, who rumbled 22 yards to the North Quincy 36-yard line.

After consecutive illegal procedure penalties pushed Quincy back to the 46, Niamkey picked up three yards on an option play and then 29 yards on a toss to place Quincy on the 14. Kamborian gained 6 yards and a late hit penalty against North Quincy on the play gave the Presidents a first and goal at the 4.

Three plays later, Lorenzano crossed the goal line on a sneak from just inches away with a great second-effort surge. North Quincy blocked senior Tom Shruhan's extra point and held a 7-6 lead with 6:04 left in the first quarter.

"When we got the ball we just ran it down their throat and scored. We forgot about [North Quincy's TD] at that point," Noble said.

The Red Raiders fumbled the ensuing kickoff and Kamborian recovered at the North Quincy 31. The defense, however, bailed the Red Raiders out, forcing the Presidents to turn the ball over on downs.

Finally, North Quincy's offense made its first appearance when it trotted onto the field with 3:20 left in the quarter. But it didn't stay there long as it gained 4 yards on three plays and had to punt.

Quincy answered by marching 63 yards, all on the ground, on nine plays. Niamkey carried the ball five times for 41 yards, including his 10-yard TD scamper that put the Presidents on top, 12-7, with 7:33 left in the half. Lorenzano came up short on the 2-point conversion rush.

Quincy opted for its running game the entire contest rather than ride the arm of Lorenzano, which is a bit surprising since Noble loves to pass and Lorenzano is a second-team league all-star.

Since the second half of the season, however, Quincy has developed an effective ground game and that has coincided with the team's success. The decision to move Niamkey from wide receiver to the backfield has had a lot to do with it.

"Call it a coincidence, but we're 4-0 since he started at tailback," said Noble, who watched Niamkey rush for 104 yards on 14 carries.

Before the game, the Presidents thought they would be able to run the ball against North Quincy, believing their speed and quickness could offset the bigger and strong Red Raiders.

Quincy totaled 225 yards in offense, all on the ground. Although he didn't complete a pass, Lorenzano gained 58 yards on 13 carries. Kamborian (47 yards, 9 carries) and Ramponi (20 yards, 4 carries) also ran well.

"In the second half of the year we were very effective running the football," Noble said. "We felt we could run the football against them. They're a big team, but I wouldn't say they are particularly fast up front. We tried to take advantage of that."

It was a complete role reversal between the schools. North Quincy — spearheaded by its four-man backfield combination of Bregoli and juniors Chris Dolbear, Ryan Farnham and James Coughlin — was supposed to be the team that did the running.

The quartet came into the game having rushed for 1,681 yards and 14 TDs. But it could not run the ball against the stalwart Quincy defense and, thus, the offense never established any rhythm.

North Quincy, which was held to minus-4 yards in the first half, didn't pick up a first down until the opening drive of the second half. Quincy held them to 31 yards in total offense and four first downs, while recording five sacks and four tackles-for-losses. Ramponi, a defensive tackle, led an outstanding team effort with 2.5 sacks.

"Defensively we were just immense," Noble said. "It's tough to single out any one player. Collectively they just did a tremendous job of shutting them down. Give all the credit in the world to our defensive coordinator Bill Reardon."

"I still don't know," said Green when asked what Quincy did defensively to stop his team. "They were in a 53, which is a basic run-stopping defense. We practiced against a 53. We knew how to block it. We just couldn't get the continuity. The down and distance-to-go always seemed against us."

While things may seem to be going against North Quincy, particularly on Thanksgiving, everything seems to be going right for its city rivals. Quincy put together its first winning season since '94 and three-peated as holiday champs. In fact, all three programs beat its neighbors to finish the season with a combined 20-8-1 record.

"Quincy football is really resurging and we're going in the right direction and hopefully it's going to continue for many years to come," Noble said.

If that happens, Noble would replace Sullivan as the most successful Turkey Day coach sometime around 12:30 p.m. Thanksgiving 2004.

GETTING INTO GEARS

A vehicle's transmission needs periodic replacement of its hydraulic fluid and internal filter for trouble-free, lifetime service. A vehicle's transmission fluid should be checked at least every 9,000 miles and changed every 30,000 miles. This important fluid contains chemicals that help fight the severe oxidizing that can cause sludge and varnish deposits, corrosion, and glazing of clutch plates in a transmission. To check the health of automatic transmission fluid, pull out the dipstick, which should be easily accessible in the engine compartment. The level on the dipstick should be between the "Full" and "Add" marks. The fluid itself should be bright, cherry red, and smell pungent. If it is black and smells burned, it could spell trouble.

HINT: Unlike engine oil, transmission fluid levels must be checked with the engine running.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The late Dale Carnegie was one of the most successful men in his field of all time. He believed in courtesy. He practiced it and this is what he said about courtesy... "Courtesy will do wonderful things for you... first, it will help you get ahead. Discourtesy is so rank and rife that the man or woman or radiates courtesy is not going to have much trouble forging ahead. He is going to have very little competition... second, you will have much fun being courteous. You will enjoy your work more. The courtesy you express will please your associates, and this, in turn, will kindle a warm reflected glow in your own heart... third, you will consciously develop better manners because you are courteous... finally, smile, treat everyone as you want to be treated."

The place to start practicing courtesy is in the home and school. If every member of a family, every student and teacher uses courtesy in all daily activities, it will not be hard to succeed in life because courtesy will be "built-in."

This I remember from earlier years: "Hearts like doors, open with ease with these few words: Thank you, and if you please."

All this goes right back to the Golden Rule, which in one form or another, is taught in all religions.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

TOOTH TRAUMA

When a national survey was conducted by the National Institute of Dental Research for the purpose of uncovering the prevalence of tooth trauma among children and adults, it was found that 25% of Americans aged 6 to 50 years has suffered some sort of trauma to the incisors. The most common injury sustained by these eight front teeth was a chipped tooth. Fortunately, this problem can be easily corrected with bonding materials. By bonding plastic resins directly to the affected tooth, the dentist is able to fill in the missing part of the tooth with a material that closely matches the tooth's original enamel. After the hardened resin is shaped and contoured, there is virtually no noticeable evidence of injury. If you have questions about cosmetic dentistry, please call us. We provide the best care possible by evaluating your needs individually. We'll explain our findings and recommendations, and together we'll choose the best treatment plan. Whether you need bonding or just a routine cleaning, we invite you to make an appointment with us by calling 617-479-6220. Your positive attitude towards your dental health is the key to successful dental care. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

Quarry Hills Associates Get A 'Dirty Dozen' Award

Toxics Action Center, a statewide environmental group, gathered at the entrance of the Quarry Hills Recreational Complex in West Quincy Tuesday morning to name its developer, Quarry Hills Associates, as one of the group's 2001 Dirty Dozen Award winners.

In selecting Quarry Hills Associates for one of its fifth annual Dirty Dozen Awards, created by Toxic Action Center to highlight whom they consider top polluters in the state, the environmental group cited the developer's "use of a blend of toxic sewage and paper mill sludge as a ground cover for the Quarry Hills Recreational Complex."

The group claims the sludge, which was spread in Milton but has been banned in Quincy by Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue, has been carried off-site by storms and has contaminated wetlands, streams, parks, and basements.

In a statement released Monday, Toxics Action Center said that all twelve sites chosen this year "pose a significant threat to public health and the environment and call for immediate action by industry and/or government officials."

The Dirty Dozen was selected from nominations by a six-member panel of environmental and public health officials.

49 Community Leaders To Man Downtown Kettle

Sheets, Phelan Team To Help Salvation Army Help Those In Need

Mayor James Sheets and Mayor-elect William Phelan will team up to ring the bell together to help the Salvation Army help those in need this holiday season.

The two will be among 49 community leaders volunteering to man a "Celebrity Kettle" in front of Ryder's Home Decor and More Store, 1489 Hancock St., Quincy Center, tomorrow (Friday, Dec. 7), Thursday, Dec. 13 and Friday, Dec. 14.

Sheets, who has proclaimed December "Salvation Army Month in Quincy," and Phelan will take a turn at the kettle Thursday, Dec. 13 at noon. It will be their first public appearance together since the Nov. 6 election which Phelan won by a scant 17 votes, the closest election in the city's history.

"They and the other 47 community leaders will take one-hour shifts at the kettle.

Money raised will go directly to the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St., to aid local families.

This is the fifth year community leaders have volunteered to man the kettle.

And, again, they urge their friends, colleagues and others to stop by and "help fill the kettle" to help the many in need of help at Christmas, especially in this year's sagging economy and uncertainty.

"We are grateful to these community leaders who are taking time from their busy schedules to help us with our Christmas Kettle effort," said Major Doug Jones, who with his wife, Major Linda Jones, are co-commanders of the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps. "Because

Council Vote Delayed By State

Sheets To Stay With 169 Percent Tax Classification

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor James Sheets Tuesday reaffirmed his commitment to submit a 169 percent tax classification for Fiscal Year 2002.

But the mayor also said state budget delays would necessitate a reclassification hearing of the City Council later than its next scheduled meeting date of Tuesday, Dec. 11.

"I'm going to send down a classification of 169 percent," said Sheets, referring to the percentage by which the city's commercial property is multiplied to shift the tax burden from homeowners to business. "We need to get the tax rates certified and then we'll know when to submit the classification order to the council."

The state's recent budget battle, Sheets said, resulted in essential state revenue figures arriving later than expected, which Sheets said was a problem statewide.

In addition, he said, a shortage of personnel at the Department of Revenue has meant that DOR officials have not yet certified the city's figures.

Sheets said he has been in almost daily contact with Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the Board of Assessors, and that the goal of sending out the tax bills by Jan. 1 would still be met.

"We want to get the tax bills out so we can keep on schedule," said Sheets, explaining that failure to do so would roll payment of the bills to the next quarter and necessitate roughly $25 million in short-term borrowing by the city.

Council President Paul Harold, who said the council had been anticipating such a situation given state delays, said the council would hold its public hearing on the matter Dec. 11 at 7 p.m., as advertised, but would continue the hearing until Dec. 17, the last scheduled meeting of the City Council for 2000.

Harold said he was confident an approval on or before Dec. 17 would be sufficient time for the city to send out its tax bills before Jan. 1.

Budget Cuts Could Add To Overflow At Father Bill's Place

Between 300 to 400 patients suffering from mental illness will be discharged from state mental health hospitals and residential programs come Jan. 1 if budget cuts proposed by the Legislature go into effect, warns John Yazwinski, executive director of Father Bill's Place, Quincy's interfaith homeless shelter.

And that, he said, means Father Bill's Place, already straining with beyond-capacity numbers of homeless and continued level funding from the state, may be forced to do something it has never done: turn people away.

"The time of year couldn't be worse," said Yazwinski, referring to a proposed $60 million in cuts from the state's Department of Public Health Budget. "The majority of 'street people' are the ones who suffer from mental illness and struggle to live in the overcrowded setting of the shelter. They fall through the cracks."

The state, Yazwinski said, has level-funded the shelter for the past several years, paying for 75 beds per night at a cost of $25 per bed.

The shelter, however, provides refuge nightly for between 120 and 130 clients. Ten new beds have been added to the men's shelter to bring the total there to 45 beds but there are also 40 beds for men at the St. John's School.

The shelter has 23 beds for women but averages 40 women per night, meaning an extra 17 or so women sleep on cots in the dining room of the shelter.

Board Cancels Liquor License At Dollar Save

The License Board Tuesday canceled the all alcoholic license held by Dollar Saver, Inc. 321 Quincy Shore Drive for failure to conduct business at a licensed premise.

Chairman Joseph Shea said CVS purchased the building two years ago. Shea said the Levine family, who owned the Dollar Saver and also a package store in East Milton, had tried to relocate the Dollar Saver at the former A & P on Southern Artery, but that was rejected by the board because of too much proximity across the street.

Shea said if the license board does not cancel the license at this time, they would "lose it forever."

Since there is no premise to conduct business and they were unable to re-locate, the board voted unanimously to cancel the license.

McDermott Candidate For County Register Of Probate

PATRICK McDERMOTT

Outgoing Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott has announced his candidacy for Norfolk County Register of Probate in next year's election.

The office is currently held by Acting Register of Probate Richard Schmidt, a Republican from Weymouth, appointed by then Governor Paul Cellucci to fill the vacancy created by Quincy Democrat Thomas Patrick Hughes, who retired in January of 2001 with two years left on his term, which would have expired in January of 2003.

Schmidt is expected to seek election to the office outright, McDermott said, and there will also be competition in the September Democratic primary in the form of Quincy's Mark Tobin, the assistant clerk magistrate in the Bristol County Juvenile Court and former administrative assistant in the Norfolk County Registry of Probate's Office.

Although he acknowledged Tobin's entry into the race poses the concern of a "split" vote in Quincy, McDermott said he was confident of his support in the city.

"I look at Quincy as my home and I have no doubts I will do well in Quincy, then look to other towns for support," said McDermott, who has paid visits to 17 of Norfolk County's 28 communities and recently canvassed much of the area as a member of Stephen Lynch's successful campaign for Congress.

McDermott, who chose not to seek reelection to a fourth term to the City Council this year, said the "predominantly managerial" position as register of probate offered a challenge suitable to his political and legal background.

"My professional experience as an attorney, as a manager in both the private and public sectors, and my involvement with several non-profit boards and organizations has given me the insight on what it takes to run an agency of this size and one that handles these type of legal matters," said McDermott, 32, a Quincy attorney and executive assistant to Register Paul Harold at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Dedham.

"Also, I offer my working experience in the Massachusetts Legislature as a former aide to Representatives Michael Bellotti (D-Quincy) and John Rogers (D-Norwood) and Senator Michael Morrissey (D-Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook). And, finally, as a Quincy City Councillor, I certainly understand and appreciate what it takes to serve the public efficiently and effectively."

Although not considered a "high profile" elected position within the county, McDermott said the register of probate had an important role to play within the community.

The Probate and Family Court in Dedham, McDermott said, generally deals with cases regarding family issues, including but not limited to: adoption, divorce, separation, separate support, probate of estates, will filing, adjudicating paternity, child support, guardianships, child and spousal abuse, and equity matters.

"For the most part, individuals and families who visit the court are often going through a very trying time in their lives," McDermott said. "As an elected official myself, I understand the importance of providing quality services for my constituents and believe it is the obligation of the Register of Probate to provide a dignified, accessible, efficient, and friendly environment for the conduct of the public's business at the court."

Considered primarily an executive role within the Commonwealth's Trial Court, the register works closely with the Judiciary in expediting the Court's agenda.

In addition to managerial skills, McDermott said the register must possess a working knowledge of dealing with the Legislature in the budget process and be active in changes to Probate and Family Law. He cited the fiscal shortfall faced by the court system this year -- where the Commonwealth's Judiciary was cut $32 million in the FY2002 budget and the Norfolk County Probate and Family Court budget was cut by approximately $400,000 -- as a primary example of where the elected register should be vigilant.

"These kind of fiscal matters need a strong advocate in the register's position. These cuts will significantly and adversely affect the services that the court can offer. The people of Norfolk County deserve better," he said.

McDermott, who was scheduled to file organization papers Wednesday with the Secretary of State's Office to officially form a committee and begin raising campaign funds, said he will put together a platform over the next few weeks to highlight some of the issues he hopes to bring into the campaign and will emphasize the physical, technological, and operation needs at the Registry of Probate.

"This is an elected position of trust," McDermott said. "The people of Norfolk County deserve someone at the Registry who will be a responsible manager as well as a zealous advocate for the issues that affect our families in Norfolk County."

McDermott is a graduate of Boston College High School, Boston College, and Suffolk University Law School. He and his wife, Tracy, a former prosecutor in the Norfolk County District Attorney's office now in private practice, are lifelong residents of the city and active in numerous charitable and civic endeavors.

McDermott can be reached at (617) 471-3366.

Budget Cuts Could Add To Overflow At Fr. Bill's Place

Yazwinski attributed the shelter's capacity to maintain additional beds, which costs about $300,000 per year, on the generosity of Quincy and the South Shore, but he wondered aloud how much longer the shelter could operate above-capacity before facing the daunting prospect of turning the homeless away.

"We haven't seen a funding increase to our line item in four years but we continue to accept more people," said Yazwinski, adding that the shelter will continue its fundraising efforts and its lobbying efforts at the State House. "We're averaging between 120 and 130 clients per night and it isn't even that cold yet."

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Postponed until next week a request for a change of managers from The Outback Steak House, 223 Parkingway, from Ralph Vitiello to Sean Hannon. Hannon could not appear at Tuesday's meeting.

•Cancelled the common victualer/wine and beer license at the International Buffet, 237 Quincy Ave. because they recently received an all alcoholic license. Under the quota system, the beer and wine license returns to the License Board.

•Postponed a hearing regarding the cancellation of the retail wine and beer license held by The Wine Messenger, Inc. 111 Franklin St. for failure to conduct a business at the licensed premise.

•On Dec. 11, the board will hear complaints from neighbors of the Dunkin Donuts on Sea St. regarding noise from early morning truck deliveries.

•The board will also review expansion plans from the McDonald family regarding the Cafe de Pari on Willard St. next week.

$30,000 Grant Awarded To Literacy Program At Crane Public Library

A $30,000 reading grant recently awarded to Literacy Volunteers of America-Quincy of the Thomas Crane Public Library will enable four LVA-Quincy tutors to receive Level I certification training in the Wilson Reading System.

The four LVA-Quincy tutors to be certified are Donna Hickey, Marnie Dunn, Jennifer Ferent, and Patricia Lambkin.

LVA-Quincy was one of only five library literacy programs in the state to receive grants from the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners for the pilot program, which trains adult literacy volunteers in the Wilson Reading System, developed by Barbara Wilson and published in 1988, a research-based program proven to provide effective instruction for individuals who have difficulty with written language in the areas of decoding and spelling.

Instructor for a two-day overview of the program in November was Barbara Wilson herself, who developed the system, which includes a technique known as "sound tapping," as a more physical way for people to learn how to read.

The direct, multi-sensory, structured, and sequential Wilson Reading System is "excellent because it works," said LVA-Quincy Coordinator Elaine Kline, who herself has Level I certification.

Kline explained that, to those with poor decoding skills for reading, a problem usually caused by dyslexia, "the English language makes no sense.

"For years and years they guess," Kline continued,

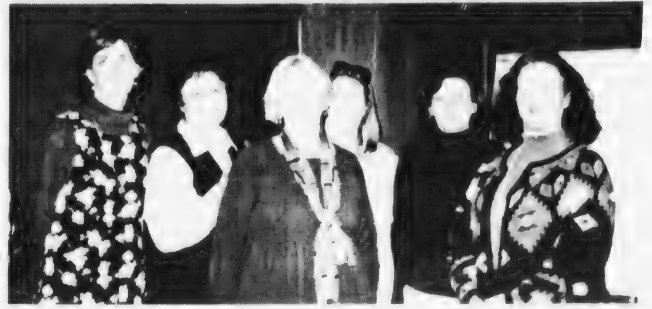

"but if you can't separate those sounds (of a word), you can't spell them. This system shows students how to decode and imposes an order to the English language."

After completing their training, the tutors will receive Level I certification and mentor the next group of 10 volunteers who will be trained in Fall 2002.

A unique component of the program is that tutor training and support will be on-line, incorporating cutting edge technology. The user-friendly instruction will also include demonstrations, video, voice, and graphics.

There are 12 levels of certification in the Wilson Reading System.

For more information on the Wilson Reading System or LVA-Quincy, contact Kline at (617) 376-1314. Internet users can also visit the Wilson Reading System on-line at www.wilsonlanguage.com.

THE GIFT OF READING: A $30,000 grant from the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners will enable four LVA-Quincy adult literacy tutors to attain Level I Certification in the Wilson Reading System. At a recent overview of the certification training program were, from left: Barbara Wilson, founder of the Wilson Reading System; Elaine Kline, coordinator, LVA-Quincy; Shelley Quezada, Mass Board of Library Commissioners; and literacy volunteers/Wilson trainees Jennifer Ferent, Patricia Lambkin, and Donna Hickey. ## Drop-Off Begins Dec. 26 For Quincy Evergreen Program

The Quincy Evergreen Program, now in its 12th year, will once again accept trees for mulching.

The drop-off schedule is weekdays, Dec. 26 to until Jan. 11; and Saturdays, Jan. 5 and Jan. 12, from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In exchange, residents will receive a coupon entitling them to a live, 10-inch Evergreen which can be picked up Saturday, April 27, or Sunday, April 28.

The Quincy Evergreen Program consists of Mayor James Sheets, Program Chairman Leo Kelly, and Jay Cashman, owner of Jay Cashman, Inc., who has served as the program's sponsor since its inception.

The old Christmas trees, Kelly said, are broken down into wood chips and swapped with a Maine company for mulch, which is then used around the city, saving the city money and landfill space.

And the new trees, Kelly added, are planted around the city and have become quite a tradition, with more than 10,000 given away since the beginning of the program.

"Some trees are 15 feet tall," said Kelly, the program's founder.

Rotary Members Donate To NY Terrorist Victims

Members of the Quincy Rotary Club have donated $2,800 to assist relief efforts following the terrorist attack with the funds equally divided between the United Way's Liberty Fund and the Manhattan Rotary Club.

Those two organizations were chosen by the board of directors to distribute the funds because of their knowledge and involvement with local relief efforts.

• On Nov. 30, 1835, Samuel Clemens, later known as Mark Twain, is born in Florida, Mo. In 1875, his novel "Tom Sawyer" was published, followed by "Life on the Mississippi" and his masterpiece, "Huckleberry Finn."

During a visit to the Liddells, English novelist Henry Kingsley happened to notice the manuscript and suggested it be published. Dodgson published the book at his own expense, under the name Lewis Carroll.

Sheets: 'I'm Not Leaving Quincy'

Jim Sheets isn't packing for Pennsylvania. "I'm not going to that million dollar house there," he says. "The one that Peter O'Connell is building for me."

Sheets says that's one of the rumors that was making the rounds during the mayoral campaign.

He says he has no million dollar house in Pennsylvania or anywhere else.

And O'Connell, whom he defeated in 1989 to become mayor and with whom he has remained good friends, hasn't built such a house, isn't building such a house and there will never be such a house for him.

Sheets acknowledges that he and his sister, Dorothy Andreko, do co-own a house in Clarksville, Penn., which he does visit from time to time.

"It's a coal patch house, four rooms, worth about $15,000," he says.

It is one of a number of so-called coal patch houses built by coal mining companies for their workers.

Sheets's father, a coal miner, bought the house for $1,200 in 1941, he says. The front and back porches were falling down and it had cold water only.

Sheets's sister does not live in it. She's a resident of Imperio, Penn.

"I'm not leaving Quincy for Pennsylvania or anywhere else," Sheets says. "Quincy is Joann's and my home. Our children were born here. This is where we are going to stay."

"Another rumor," he says, "was that I was ill. Like the million dollar house that's not true either. I feel fine."

Sheets says he will remain active as mayor "until the very last day of his sixth -- and final -- term."

William Phelan, who defeated Sheets in the closest mayoral election in the city's history, takes over Jan. 7.

The election night tally showed Phelan the winner by just 15 votes. A recount requested by Sheets, gave Phelan a net gain of two votes, making the final victory margin a scant 17 votes.

The closest election to this one, as noted here earlier, was back in 1892 when Henry Fairbanks edged William Hodges by 24 votes.

Sheets sees the voter turnout Nov. 6 a factor in his close loss. "I was disappointed by the turnout," he says. Only 47 percent of the city's record high 53,021 registered voters cast ballots when 60 to 63 percent was expected because of the mayoral battle and four good city council races.

"I kept running into people who told me not to worry, that I was a shoo-in," Sheets says.

"And I kept saying, no, I am not a shoo-in, I need your vote."

Phelan got his vote out. Sheets feels many of those who saw him as a sure-thing were among those who stayed home.

Just nine votes more for him, and he would be going into a historic seventh term.

Sheets says he was pleased to see that Quincy's optical scan voting system which he approved purchasing at City Clerk Joseph Shea's suggestion, proved to be so accurate.

"I only wish," he muses, "that the final results were different."

At age 66 and a 28-year political career behind him -- including 16 years as Ward 4 councillor and four years as a state representative -- Sheets doesn't look or sound like he's ready for a rocking chair.

"I'm not going to fade away," he says. "I'm going to stay active in the community."

SHEETS

He says whatever he decides to do, it will be something challenging.

There's speculation he could become president of his alma mater, Eastern Nazarene College.

"I don't know anything about that," he says. "At this time I don't even know if I would be interested."

Or maybe go back teaching at Quincy College.

Or maybe take a state or federal appointment.

He has a good friend in Washington in Holbrook's Andy Card, President Bush's Chief of Staff with whom he served in the Massachusetts House.

And, of course, there's always a possible political comeback.

Quincy mayors like Gustave Bates and Charles Ross have lost the office in the past and come back to reclaim it.

Other mayors like Thomas Burgin, Joseph LaRaia and Frank McCauley returned to the city council.

In politics, you never know.

Like this year's election, for example.

ADD TWO MORE to those interested in filling the unexpired school committee term of William Phelan when he takes his oath as mayor Jan. 7.

John Cain who twice ran for the Ward 3 city council seat and has been active in that community, says he is definitely interested. And isn't shy in acknowledging he's doing some campaigning for it.

Also interested is a new name on the political scene: Kathryn Gralton Hobin of Manet Ave., Houghs Neck, an attorney.

She has also been a substitute teacher at North Quincy High School and is active in the North Quincy Alumni Theater.

And, she worked for Phelan in his mayoral campaign.

That brings the known field up to around 10.

A city council-school committee convention will be convened to make the decision. There are two years left on Phelan's term.

CAIN

GALVIN

A RECEPTION FOR Secretary of State William Galvin is set for Tuesday, Dec. 11, 5:30 to 8 p.m. at the Common Market, Willard St.

It's billed as a Holiday Gathering for Quincy and Milton Democrats. But no doubt Galvin, who is expected to run for governor, will be looking to line up a few delegates for the state convention.

The reception is being hosted by City Council President-County Register of Deeds Paul Harold, state Rep. Ron Mariano and former state Rep. Joseph Manning of Milton.

This one, by the way, is a little unique in politics. It's a free-bee. No admission charge.

GEORGE BURKE who is known for setting records playing basketball at UMass-Amherst, thinks he may now hold one in football. As a spectator.

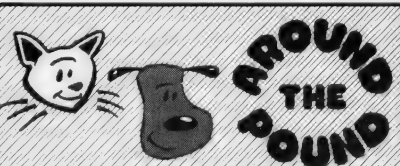

This year's Quincy-North football game was the 58th consecutive one he has taken in. Starting in 1944 as a student at Central Junior and continuing through his years at QHS (he warmed the bench as a second string guard on the 1947 team) through this year.

He wonders if anyone can top that?

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1917 POSTCARD is a view of the old Montclair depot on the Granite Branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad. The tracks ran from Atlantic to Milton across the marsh that was filled in to create the State Street South office complex. The depot building was located near the end of Harriet Street. It was just beyond the green of what is now the tenth hole of the Presidents Golf Course. Today all signs of a railroad in that area have disappeared. The depot was built to serve the Boston commuters of Hillside Park a new residential development that was laid out on the old Pope farm north of West Squantum Street. In the background on the right is one of the first houses built on the hill on Ardell Street, and on the left is a house on Becket Street. The blurred poster on the box in right center appears to be an appeal to buy War Bonds.

Quincy's Yesterdays

New City Hall Under Discussion

By PAUL HAROLD

Councillor James McCormack said a committee would meet to discuss and resolve the perennial question of building a new city hall.

McCormack predicted the issue would be resolved by the new city council within the next two years. The estimated cost was $1 million.

McCormack said the said was obvious with the present overcrowding. He said the city could save money by building a new building that would house departments that were in rented space around the downtown, costing $35,000 annually.

He also pointed out the debt payments of the city were falling, providing the borrowing capacity to build a new building.

EDWARD KENNEDY ELKS SPEAKER

Edward Kennedy, brother of President Kennedy, was the speaker at the Elks annual Memorial Sunday program. The president spoke at the same program 11 years prior, in 1950.

Russell Hally, past Exalted Ruler, was program chairman for the morning. It was expected that Kennedy would seek the U.S. Senate seat vacated by his brother when he became President, but a spokesman said Kennedy would make no comments concerning the senate seat until his 30th birthday. Under the Constitution, the minimum age for a U.S. senator was 30.

BURKE: BRIGHT FUTURE FOR FORE RIVER

Congressman James Burke predicted a bright future for shipbuilding at Fore River, following the yard's successful bid to build a $25 million atomic submarine.

He said because the yard qualified and won the sub contract, the Navy was inviting the yard to bid on three escort ships, one nuclear powered guided missile frigate and one stores ship. He also said the yard was well positioned to win the contract to build two iron ore carriers for the Commerce Department.

Christmas Parade One Of The Best Ever

The 49th annual Quincy Christmas Parade should be chronicled as one of the best to traverse the line of march in Quincy.

The parade was blessed with ideal weather conditions and a turnout of spectators that should go into the record books as the biggest in the history of this grand spectacle.

The spirit of Christmas coupled with a renewed patriotic fervor for Americanism undeniably permeated the atmosphere from the start of the parade route at School and Elm streets to its terminal point at North Quincy High School.

The crowd, four and five rows deep, was really into the spirit of this joyful event. As musical units marched by playing patriotic songs and seasonal melodies, the voices of children, adults and elderly filled the air.

The parade served not only as an official opening of the holiday season in Quincy, but as a catharsis for the emotions and trauma of the unforgettable events of Sept. 11.

A parade of this magnitude and such appeal to the public does not just happen. It takes a dedicated corps of volunteers, sponsors, civic and private agencies. It is brought to fruition by harmonious orchestration. This parade has existed since 1952 because of two other essential ingredients, qualified leadership and experience in planning.

The 25 members of the all-volunteer Quincy Festival Committee express their heartfelt thanks and deep appreciation to the general public for the support given this parade since its beginning.

Also in prime importance to the success of this annual spectacle is the continued and extensive coverage given by local newspapers and electronic media.

The Quincy Festival Committee members will start in a few weeks to plan its 50th anniversary parade that will go down Hancock Street Dec. 1, 2002.

Urges Increase In Pell Grant Funding

Congress and President Bush have debated an increase in funding for the PELL Grant. This grant program provides educational opportunity for millions of Americans at public and private colleges nationwide.

Presently, appropriations are only sufficient to cover PELL levels and not the increase needed to assure that students have financial options when considering how they will fund their education.

Now, more than ever before, parents, families, and friends must contact their elected representatives in Washington and urge them to support and fully fund an increase in the PELL grant to $4,000. Not every student gets the PELL maximum, so any increase makes a difference at every level.

With uncertain economic times, such an increase is not only welcome, but much needed.

Comanches Also Served As Code Talkers

Just about everyone knows the Navajo Code Talkers who served in the Marine Corps during World War II and used their native language for communicating with each other to confuse the Japanese.

I recently discovered through my close friend, John Donlon of Quincy, that there were 17 Comanche Code Talkers who served with his famous 4th "Ivy" Infantry Division, who landed at Utah Beach on June 6, 1944 and did exactly the same thing.

One difference between the two was the Navajos were highly decorated and recently received the Congressional Medal, whereas the Comanches received the Good Conduct Medals. That is what publicity will do for you.

MWRA Wants 'Fast-Track' For 25 Million Gallons Underground Water Tank

By CRAIG SALTERS

The Legislative Caucus of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) has filed a bill that would allow "fast-track" construction of a 25 million gallon, underground water storage tank near the existing Blue Hills Reservoir in Quincy.

If approved, the bill would also "fast-track" a similar project near Spot Pond in Stoneham.

Both projects are part of MWRA's long-term program to place all water storage underground and away from contamination sources, both natural and man-made, including chemical and biological attacks, said Jonathan Yeo, communications director for the MWRA.

The bill, Yeo said, would allow the MRWA to use the "design-build" procurement process to shave up to two years off the project's 2008 completion date and reduce a portion of the project's $29 million pricetag.

The existing open reservoir at Blue Hills was taken off-line in 1981, Yeo explained, leaving storage deficiencies for the metropolitan Boston area. The new project, which Yeo said is being reviewed by various environmental agencies and has been discussed with organizations such as The Friends of the Blue Hills and the MDC, calls for a portion of the reservoir to remain open and the storage tank to be buried partially underneath the open reservoir and partially underneath meadow.

Currently, the MWRA has three underground tanks completed, two more under construction, and the Quincy and Spy Pond tanks in the planning stages.

The 25 million gallon, underwater storage tank would provide "critical redundancy" to the communities of Quincy, Milton, Dorchester, West Roxbury, and Hyde Park.

The seven storage tanks are designed to hold a combined total of 280 million gallons of water brought in from the Quabbin and Wachusett Reservoirs.

State Rep. Robert DeLeo (D-Winthrop) serves as chairman of the MWRA Legislative Caucus.

Cheese Baked Potatoes

Even though our family likes all kinds of potatoes, these baked kind are a favorite.

They can be prepared way ahead of time, a bonus at our house where there is so much other foods to prepare. I served these when we had one of our last summer cookouts.

Cheese baked potatoes
2 pounds peeled potatoes (about 1/4 inch slices)
1 1/4 hot cheddar cheese sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt and a bit of pepper

1/4 cup parmesan cheese
paprika for topping

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Boil the potatoes for about 8 minutes.

Drain. In a slightly greased baking dish, arrange half the potatoes. Pour half the cheese mixture over the potatoes. Repeat. Sprinkle top with the parmesan cheese and the paprika.

Bake uncovered for 25 minutes or until bubbly.. (I almost never make just two pounds of potatoes, but if you cook more than the two pounds, measure other ingredients accordingly.)

"This year we are significantly expanding this program by including and additional; 25 cent contribution for every upgrade to your service, which will also be matched corporately."

JOSEPH SPINALE displays his certificate of appreciation from the National Neurofibromatosis Foundation for raising funds to fight the disease.

In the past year, the Wireless Zone Stores have raised about $40,000 for the Foundation.

this," said Harold, who said he has been in contact with other communities as a member of the Massachusetts Municipal Association. "Until the figures are finalized, the mayor can't set the rates and they (state officials) can't do 351 approvals in two weeks."

Harold has notified members of the Quincy Business Council, the local arm of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, of the council's revised schedule.

The QBC supports the current 169 percent classification and is urging its members to testify at the Dec. 17 public hearing.

Although City Auditor Michael McFarland was unavailable Tuesday to provide exact figures, Sheets said state aid to the city was roughly $100,000 less than last year but "pretty much on target" with the city's projections.

The mayor added that new growth figures for the city, which include assessments ranging from the newly constructed Marriott Hotel in Crown Colony — which Sheets said would add at least $800,000 in revenue — to a new patio on a resident's home, had also not been factored in yet.

With the exception of Fiscal Year 2000, when councilors voted to raise the mayor's recommended tax classification percentage from 169 percent to the state maximum 175 percent — a move which angered many in the business community — the classification figure has remained at 169 percent for many years.

Using the 169 percent tax classification, Fiscal Year 2001 tax rates were set at $15.94 residential and $33.56 commercial per $1,000 valuation of property.

QUINCY'S CERT (Community Emergency Response Team) and students from North Quincy and Quincy High Schools' AFJROTC units, shown here with Anthony Siciliano, deputy director of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency, volunteered their time to make sure recent events such as the turning on of the city's Christmas lights, the arrival of Santa at Faxon Field, and the 49th annual Christmas Festival Parade all went according to plan. Other subdivisions of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency supporting the city's holiday events were: Dive Team, Lighting and Power, Shelter Department, Communications, and Transportation.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

PLAQUE ATTACK

What would happen if you didn't brush and floss your teeth? To find out, a group of dental students gave up oral hygiene for 21 days. At the end of that period, all exhibited signs of plaque, gingivitis, and overt clinical inflammation. Without daily flossing, plaque (a sticky, colorless substance that forms daily on teeth) builds between teeth. In as little as two days, plaque can transform itself into a hard substance, called calculus, which may be removed only with professional cleaning. Then, it may not be long before periodontal disease begins between teeth where a toothbrush cannot reach. In addition, toxins produced by gingival infections can destroy the supporting tissues around the teeth, including bone, leading to tooth loss.

The type of treatment you require depends on your particular case. Gum disease can be treated in ways ranging from cleaning to surgery; but more important, it can be prevented altogether by regular brushing, flossing, and professional cleanings. To alleviate your worries and to address such conditions, a visit to our office is in order. Please call us at 617 479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where you will receive a professional exam to detect and address any existing or impending oral health problems. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Research suggests that periodontal (gum) disease may pose more than a threat to teeth. It may also be linked with such health threats as heart attacks, diabetes, and pre-term births.

Conway Financial Services

It's been a while since this column addressed commonly asked questions about mortgage financing. So, in the spirit of getting "back to basics," this is the first in a series of articles dedicated to the ABCs of applying for a mortgage.

Pre-qualification and pre-approval, as well as the variety of loan products available, are among the topics usually covered in columns about financing a home.

But what about the nuts and bolts of it all — what information you need to collect for your loan application, how much will it cost, the fees being charged at closing and most importantly, why those fees are being charged in the first place.

Like everything else in life, preparation is the key. The more prepared you are for the process, the better it will be. Today, with so many decisions being made at the point of sale, the loan originator can give you a very good idea of qualifying if you have the required information with you at application.

Whether you want to apply for a loan subject to finding a property, or whether you've already found the home of your dreams, you will be asked to gather a series of documents that will help prove your ability to repay the debt.

Your mortgage specialist will ask you to submit the following documents to begin the application process:

- A legible sales contract signed by buyers and sellers
- Your social security number, as well as those of any co-applicants.

- Your home address for the past two years (including name and address of landlords the past 2 years).

- Canceled checks for 12 months housing payments.

- Name, address, and all income earned from all employers for the past two years.
- Copies of previous two years' W-2 forms.

- Copy of most recent year-to-date pay stub.

- Name, address, account number, monthly payment and current balance for: installment loans, revolving charge accounts, student loans, mortgage loans, and auto loans.

- Name, address, account number and balance of all deposit accounts, including checking and savings accounts, stocks, bonds, etc.

- Three months most recent statements for asset accounts including checking and savings, retirement, stocks, etc.

If you are applying for a V.A. loan:

- DD-214, Certificate of Eligibility, or statement from your Commanding Officer if you are on active duty.

If you are divorced or separated:

- Copies of complete separation agreement and/or divorce decree.

- If you choose to include income from child support/alimony, bring copies of court records or canceled checks showing receipt of payment.

If you are self-employed or paid by commission:

- Previous two years' fed-

eral income tax returns with all schedules, and a year-to-date profit and loss statement.

• If you have other forms of income, contact your mortgage specialist to determine what documentation will be required.

If you own other properties:

• Address of properties and current market value.

• Any debt owed on properties; lender's name, address, account number, monthly payment, and current balance.

• Copy of previous two years' federal income tax returns with all schedules.

• If rented, copy of all leases.

• Tax bills and insurance bills may be required for rental properties.

If you have filed for bankruptcy protection within the last seven years:

• Copy of petition and discharge, handwritten explanation of the reason for bankruptcy, evidence of excellent credit since the bankruptcy.

Once a loan originator has received this information, the package of materials will be submitted to a processing department. From there, your financial information is verified and any outstanding documents are collected. This information is analyzed and sent to an underwriter, who will make the ultimate decision on whether to grant the loan.

If your loan has been submitted through an automated underwriting system, the underwriter will validate the information supplied, while the automated system will make the actual decision.

It is during this process that an appraisal is ordered to support the value of the home, which serves as collateral for your mortgage. The closing attorney will also begin the title search of the home you are buying.

Next, we will discuss the fees that are charged in connection with your loan, including the fees for the appraisal and title search mentioned above.

Carol Bulman lives on the South Shore and is past chairman of the Massachusetts Mortgage Association, the trade organization of the Bay State's mortgage brokers. Bulman also is president of Norwell-based Conway Financial Services. ## Important Improvements

You want to improve your home to sell it as quickly as you can, but you're not sure where to begin. You don't have to go as far as a complete renovation to sell your home, but there are small improvements you can make to receive the most from the sale.

Consider projects that will be inexpensive but that can have a significant impact on increasing your home's appeal. Take a look at your carpet and walls for signs of wear and age. Replacing old carpets with neutral carpeting and substituting faded wallpaper with a fresh coat of light-colored paint are wise ideas. Keep in mind that lighter colors make rooms appear more spacious.

If you have recently replaced your carpet, or if you feel it is still in good condition, consider having it cleaned. Then give the walls a fresh coat of paint or simply touch up areas as needed.

In the kitchen, check that all appliances are working properly and make needed repairs. Replacing cabinet handles is an affordable way to add a fresh look to the kitchen or bathroom. And, simply hanging a new shower curtain and displaying a few new towels can further increase your bathroom's appeal.

Real Estate in the New Era

by Vin Moscardelli

THE TRIUMPH OF EXPERIENCE OVER EMOTION

Homebuyers, especially first-time buyers, can become emotionally attached to a home; however, the experience of "love at first sight" can leave them vulnerable. This is when it pays to rely on the experience of a real estate agent, who can raise pertinent issues that need to be examined before committing to a purchase. Does the home meet the buyers' needs? What kind of condition is it in? Does it need work? If so, has that been factored into the price? What is the home's resale potential? What's the neighborhood like? Does the home have easy access to work and shopping? What are the taxes and maintenance and fuel costs? It is the agent's job to make buyers' dreams their reality.

A home is a significant financial investment. For first-time buyers in particular, it's crucial to have impartial evaluations about the true value of a home. ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE provides objective guidance to buyers and sellers. Buyers, we review the type of home and features that you want and help you determine how much you can afford based on your savings and income. The Multiple Listing Service allows us to show you homes in virtually any town. Call us at 617-328-1312 to arrange a consultation, or visit us at 128 Mayor McGrath Highway.

year limited warranty on parts. For top-of-the-line 90 percent AFUE models, expect a limited lifetime warranty on both the primary and secondary heat exchangers.

4. Is an extended warranty available? For additional protection, ask your dealer about extended warranties.

5. Is the rest of my heating system in good shape? If your current furnace is more than 10 years old, ask your dealer to perform an analysis of your entire heating system. This will take into account the registers, the design of your ductwork, the location of windows and the size of your home. This analysis helps the dealer make recommendations to provide you maximum comfort and dollar value.

THE NOLANS — Lisa, Jaclyn, and Shelby — take a well-deserved break during a recent neighborhood clean up of Sailors Home Pond.

Neighbors Work Together To Maintain Sailors Home Pond

By ROSEMARY NOLAN
DPW Program Manager

On a crisp, clear Saturday morning this fall, 24 neighbors in the Sailors Home Pond area came together as a community to achieve a common goal: to help maintain the pond.

The following family names comprised the work crews: Kyle, Themmens, Tran, Lo, Mahoney, Adams, Brennan, Kenney, McKeen, Johnston, Schwartz, Mackey, and Farina. All arrived promptly at 9 a.m. with rakes in hand and ready to work. Parents set an outstanding example of community participation and responsibility by bringing their children along to help out.

Children and adults raked leaves up the embankment, away from the pond, bagged them, and set them curbside for DPW crews to pick up and bring to the city's compost operation at the DPW Yard. At total of 62 bags were filled with leaves. Also, a great deal of brush was removed from the grassy area of the pond as well as dead tree limbs.

It was amazing to see how much approximately 13 families accomplished. Even children as young as 9, 10, and 11 accomplished a great deal. The teenagers never took a break and made a significant contribution.

This was the fourth community cleanup since 1998. Efforts are organized by the Quincy DPW via a mailing to roughly 100 households in the immediate area of the pond. Everyone worked from 9 a.m. until 11:30 to get the job done.

Besides the obvious aesthetic improvement, the motivating factor was to keep as much material from entering the pond as possible since leaves, tree limbs, and brush add to the already excessive phosphorus/nutrient load common to many lakes and ponds.

Excessive nutrients result in an unhealthy situation for the pond, with the pond eventually drying up and becoming a wetland.

Those who treasure Sailors Home Pond as an urban jewel owe a great deal of gratitude to the following individuals: Cathleen and Brigid Kyle; Tommy Tran; Billy Lo; Mary Helen SAILORS HOME POND received a clean-up recently thanks to the efforts of 24 concerned neighbors under the direction of the city's DPW. Volunteers performed such tasks as raking leaves and removing brush to keep the pond aesthetically pleasing and ecologically healthy.

Raise $3,142 At School Fair

Broad Meadows Students Aid Child Victims Of Terrorist Attacks

Broad Meadows Middle School students raised $3,142 for the child victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks through their Red, White, and Blue Children's Fair held recently at the school.

The fair also succeeded in further uniting local, state, and national communities in the wake of the Sept. 11 attacks on America, which left thousands of children fatherless and/or motherless.

Ceremonies recognized honored guests from the United States Marine Corps; Navy Reserves; and Quincy Police, Fire, and Emergency Rescue for "protecting America's freedom and democracy every hour of the day, sometimes silently, often invisibly, always faithfully."

Condolences were also expressed at the ceremonies to flight attendants from American Airlines and United Airlines who were not only honored guests but were also co-workers and friends of the crews whose planes were hijacked and crashed into the Twin Towers on Sept. 11.

"The future of Quincy is in good hands," Mayor James Sheets told student organizers at what was an emotional ceremony for those in attendance.

Also making remarks at the event was Quincy Fire Lt. Gary Patten, who said that firefighters have never felt more appreciated by their communities. "People wave to us whenever they see us go down the street," said Lt. Patten.

Quincy Police Captain

Robert Crowley used his remarks to reassure students and others gathered at the ceremonies. "We will defeat terrorism. Have no doubt about that," Capt. Crowley told the audience.

Anthony Siciliano, deputy director of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency, said that he felt "overwhelmed" by the show of unity and the gratitude expressed for those who protect the city of Quincy.

Speaking through her tears, United Airlines Flight Attendant Nancy Halpin managed to thank the organizers of The Red, White, and Blue Children's Fair for remembering the flight attendants and crew members killed aboard the two United Airlines flights.

"The United Airlines crew members killed on Sept. 11 left behind many children," said Halpin, who was comforted throughout her remarks by Noreen Hayes, Airline Ambassadors' flight attendant from American Airlines. "Those children are devastated but they will survive thanks to the help and generosity of people like you."

During the ceremony, honored guests were presented student-written letters of condolences or letters of thanks, written after-school at voluntary meetings. Student presenters were: Genevieve Humez-Rousseau, Jackie Sullivan, Laura Bloomer, Alex Miner, Jonathan Conso, Maria McNulty, and Lilian Sticco. Hundreds of people attended the fair including students, teachers, and administrators from many Quincy public schools, friends and family members, the business community, the mayor, and several city councillors. Supervision was provided by the Broad Meadows' PTO as well as faculty members.

Prizes awarded during the fair included restaurant gift certificates, hotel vacation packages, museum passes, and sports memorabilia signed by hockey legend Ray Bourque, World Cup and Boston Breakers' star Christine Lilly, Celtics top draft choice Joe Johnson, Patriots quarterback Drew Bledsoe, and several members of the Boston Red Sox.

Broad Meadows Grade 7 students Tom Keefe, Laura Bloomer, and Jackie Sullivan, who together wrote to over 100 local businesses seeking donations, thanked the business community for its "overwhelming response" to the event.

The Children's Fair organizers, who also raised $38 for President Bush's Afghan Children's Fund, will deliver the donations in person to representatives of: Twin Towers Orphans Fund; Airline Ambassadors Adopt-A-Family Fund; Families for Freedom Scholarship Fund; and the Sept. 11 Fund.

All funds will be used for the future education, housing, and mental health of the thousands of children orphaned because of the attacks.

The idea for the Children's Fair was initiated by Broad Meadows students past, present, and future under the direction of Language Arts Teacher Ron Adams.

UNITED WE STAND: Broad Meadows student organizers of the recent Red, White, and Blue Children's Fair, which raised over $3,000 for the child victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks upon America, and their honored guests. From front row left are: Elizabeth Bloomer, Genevieve Humez-Rousseau, Christine DiStasi, Lilian Sticco, Maria McNulty, Laura Bloomer, Alex Miner, and Jackie Sullivan. From middle row left are: Anthony Siciliano, deputy director, Quincy Emergency Management Agency; Staff Sergeant Genaro Trujillo, US Marine Corps; American Airlines Flight Attendants Noreen Hayes of Quincy, Kathy Hayes, and Cassie Hayes; and United Airlines Flight Attendant Nancy Halpin. From back row left are: Quincy Police Capt. Robert Crowley, Quincy Fire Lt. Gary Patten and Quincy Firefighters Anthony Rinella and Thomas O'Connor; former Broad Meadows student Joe Daley of CERT; Mayor James Sheets; and U.S. Naval Reserve Lt. Maher.

AMERICAN AIRLINES Flight Attendants Cassie and Noreen Hayes tearfully accept the Broad Meadows Middle School's sincerest condolences on the devastating losses of co-workers who were hijacked and murdered by terrorists on Sept. 11. Presenting the award is Grade 7 student Christine DiStasi (right).

NQHS Senior Stay-Out Meeting Dec. 11

The NQHS Senior Stay-Out Committee will meet Tuesday, Dec. 11, at 7 p.m. in the media center at North Quincy High School.

All NQHS senior students, whether they attend the prom or not, will be invited to Senior Stay-Out 2002 -- an all-night, substance-free party. The Stay-

Out offers plenty of food, lots of fun and a safe place to spend the night -- all at no cost to the student.

Because parents of seniors are not allowed to attend the actual event, parents of freshmen, sophomores and juniors are especially needed to volunteer to work at this all-night party. The Senior Stay-Out will take place May 10, 2002 following the Senior Prom.

If you are unable to attend the meeting but still wish to be involved in the planning of this year's party, contact Jean Mackey at 617-479-9084.

151 Recognized As City's 'Neat Neighbors'

Mayor James Sheets and the Quincy Park Department announce the winners of the 2001 Neat Neighbors Contest.

The Neat Neighbors contest recognizes Quincy residents who maintain their yard and/or property in the spirit of a cleaner and greener Quincy.

There were 151 nominations this year. Gloria Kavell of Baxter St. received the most votes in the contest for the third consecutive year.

Nominations were accepted by the Park Department from Memorial Day through Labor Day. Residents were allowed to nominate a friend or neighbor who maintained their property in the spirit of a cleaner and greener Quincy.

All nominations were checked to ensure that the property met the minimum standards for the contest. Once it was assured that the project met the program criteria, all nominees were placed in a drawing and the winners were chosen at random.

There is no competitive judging associated with the Neat Neighbors contest. Those properties with multiple nominations had each nomination entered into the contest, increasing the chances of being chosen as a grand prize winner.

The 25 winners will receive a gift certificate to a local garden center and a lawn placard highlighting their achievement.

"I would like to congratulate our Neat Neighbors and the Honorable Mention winners for their hard work and dedication in making our neighborhoods more beautiful," said Mayor James Sheets. "We all benefit from the commitment that these people have taken in the beautification of their properties. They have captured the true spirit of cleaner, greener Quincy with their commitment to keeping their properties beautiful."

Battle Cold, Flu By Boosting Immunity

Never before have Americans been so in tune with the nation's antibiotics supply or more concerned about the impending cold and flu season. That's especially true of parents, says Dr. Alan Greene, a practicing pediatrician on the clinical faculty of Stanford University Medical Center.

"I've seen a dramatic increase in office visits, letters and phone calls from parents asking how they can give their children 'an edge' to keep them healthy this year," said Dr. Greene. "And contrary to what Americans are hearing in the media about 'preventive' antibiotics, the rules for battling cold and flu are more straightened - do everything you can to keep yourself and your family history, and use physician-prescribed antibiotics only when medically necessary."

The reason? Antibiotics are more effective the less often they are used. Frequent introduction of antibiotics into the system allows organisms to develop a resistance to the antibiotic and from new, more harmful strains or variations. While children may get better slightly faster after first taking antibiotics, they are likely to get sick more often and have longer, more stubborn infections that are caused by the more resistant organisms.

Even so, physicians often turn to antibiotics because of pressure from parents to "do something," according to Dr. Greene. Nearly 40 percent of the time children see their doctor, they leave with a prescription for antibiotics. More alarming is the fact that 60 percent of children who have the common cold are treated with antibiotics, even though antibiotics are not an effective course of treatment for colds.

The Best Line Of Defense: A Healthy Immune System

Dr. Greene insists that the best line of defense is a healthy immune system — attacking the cold or flu before it strikes. Good nutrition plays a key role in health, and a new study in the June 2, 2001 British Medical Journal showed that antibiotics can be useful at preventing respiratory infections in children in daycare settings.

Probiotics are the live and active cultures in yogurt and probiotic milk that help stimulate bacteria growth in our bodies. Unhealthy bacteria may cause infections and flu, but our bodies are also full of "good" bacteria and microflora. In fact, our bodies contain more bacterial cells in us and on us than there are human cells. The beneficial bacteria produce critical enzymes that we need for our health.

Top Five Tips For Preventing Colds & Flu

Quandaries about antibiotics can be avoided by working with your child to keep him or her as healthy as possible before and during the cold flu season. Here are five tips for reducing germ exposure and boosting your child's immunity.

- Building immunity with sleep and good nutrition. Children who are healthy at the start of the cold season will be in a better position to fight germs to which they are exposed. Make sure your child is eating a balanced diet rich in probiotics and getting a good night's rest to strengthen their defense systems.

- Examine your daycare setting. Using a daycare setting of six or fewer children dramatically decreases the germ exposure (and illness), especially in winter months. Also ensure that sleeping mats at your daycare are washed once a week or more.

- Be vigilant about hand sanitizing. Instituting good hand washing practices at home is extremely important, but also make sure your daycare is equally vigilant about hand washing at key moments — after nose wiping, after diapering, and before food preparation. Importantly, use good old soap and water — not antibacterial soap — for the best result and to avoid developing a resistance to treatments. Instant hand sanitizers are convenient and effective, and because they are antiseptic and not antibacterial, resistance can't be developed.

- Use paper towels instead of shared cloth towels. Paper towels help reduce exposure to germs.

- Improve the air quality. At home and at your daycare facility, the use of HEPA filters can remove 99.97 percent of pollen, dust, animal dander and even bacteria from the air. Plants can also be excellent air purifiers.

What To Know About Antibiotics

When antibiotics are the answer, be aware of the side effects they have have on children's health. "When children and adults take an antibiotic," Dr. Greene says, "it is like clear cutting rainforest land. Entire species are eliminated. Basically, we are destroying the good and bad bacteria in our system at the same time — the medication isn't selective about what it eliminates."

The short-term results are generally diarrhea and yeast infections. However, parents can anticipate and treat the problems that might ensue. According to Dr. Greene, the best way to combat these negative effects is giving your child probiotics during and after antibiotic treatment. Essentially the opposite of antibiotics is probiotics — substances that promote the growth of beneficial bacteria in the body.

Active cultures found in yogurt, such as Bifidobacterium and Lactobacillus, have been well studied and documented for their ability to reduce the occurrence and/or duration of diarrhea. Dr. Greene recommends all natural and organic options, such as Stonyfield Farm yogurt, which contains six live, active cultures. Parents should give their children at least one serving a day for the best results.

When Are Antibiotics Necessary?

The Centers for Disease Control and the Academy of Pediatrics have issued guidelines for when to use (and when not to use) antibiotics for the most common pediatric respiratory infections. The complete summary is available at www.drgreene.com; however a few key points to remember:

- Penicillin is the best choice for treating Strep throat unless the child is allergic to it. Antibiotics should not be prescribed for a sore throat without a positive test for Strep or another bacteria infection.

- Antibiotics should not be given for treating the common cold.

- Antibiotics are generally not recommended for sinus infections unless accompanied by cough or nasal discharge for a period of 10 to 14 days without improvement.

- Not all ear infections are the same and the type of infection should be determined before antibiotics are prescribed.

Red Raiders' Goal: End Postseason Drought

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy boys' basketball team came up one game short of qualifying for the state tournament last year.

So, the customary thing to do is to look back at the games North Quincy could've won.

The season finale loss to Norwell, a win-and-your-in game, stands out like a high school 7-footer. But then there was also an eight-day stretch in mid-January when it dropped three of four, with all three losses by a combined 11 points.

"Very frustrating," said head coach Ted Stevenson of last year's shortcomings. "It's very frustrating because there were a couple of games we felt we should've won but we didn't."

This season, though, Stevenson feels the Red Raiders have the necessary experience and leadership to contend for the Old Colony League championship and end their three-year postseason drought.

North Quincy has 10 seniors on its 15-man roster, six of whom played varsity ball a year ago. The tri-captains — Phil McGillicuddy (fourth year), John O'Connell (third year), Pat Bregoli (third year) — seem like they have been around forever.

"The tri-captains have great leadership," Stevenson said. "I think their experience will help early in the year and in close games."

For the Red Raiders to get back to the tourney, they'll need to be sharp from the get-go, as seven of their first nine games are on the road. They open the season next Tuesday at Randolph and then head to Quincy that Friday for an early season showdown with their city rivals.

"We have to be ready every night, and if we can do that I think we'll have a great year," Stevenson said. "I definitely feel we're a tourney team this year."

And Stevenson has every reason to be optimistic as he has two of the OCL's top players aboard for another year.

McGillicuddy (17 points per game) and O'Connell (14 PPG), both league all-stars, were the top two scorers on the team last year and will again shoulder much of the offense. The tandem also works a strong inside-outside game, with McGillicuddy at the point and O'Connell at center.

McGillicuddy, who has led the team in scoring the past three years, has close to

North Quincy Eyes Defense Of League Title

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy girls' basketball team had arguably its best season last year when it captured its first-ever Old Colony League championship.

But, still, the Red Raiders' season was labeled incomplete because they were unable to pick up a postseason victory, which has eluded them the past two years like a fugitive on the run.

"Frustrating," said head coach Doug MacFarlane of the team's premature exits from the tournament the last two seasons. "One goal this year is to repeat as the OCL champions. The second goal is to go beyond the first round."

To help remedy the quick hooks, MacFarlane has scheduled tougher non-league games. Over Christmas vacation, the Red Raiders will participate in a tournament with Foxboro, Duxbury and a team from western Mass. And over February vacation, they will take part in a tourney with Andover, Stoughton and Somerville, all sectional finalists a year ago.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

"I'm hoping that our non-league schedule will toughen us up for the tournament," MacFarlane said. "When we get to the tournament it won't be a big deal because we will have played four quality teams out of six non-league games."

Before North Quincy starts thinking about March, it will first have to make a smooth transition in its offensive game plan. With the graduation of point guard Casey Ridge, North Quincy loses the school's career assists leader. No longer will it have the luxury of playing a half-court offense directed by a creative floor general.

"That position is going to be tough to fill," MacFarlane said. "Without Casey, I think we're going to be a different team in that we can't afford to slow it down and set it up. Casey was hard to cover and she initiated an awful lot of offense."

"This year we're going to be more of a running team. We're going to fast break more. And when I say run it, I mean run it on a made basket, too. We're going to push the ball up the floor. We're going to be an exciting team to watch."

The Red Raiders have the athletes to play an up-tempo style, as 12 of the 13 girls played on either the soccer.

Presidents Grow Into Contending Team

The young and inexperienced Quincy boys' basketball team that finished two games shy of the postseason last year is all grown up.

With seven returnees from that surprising squad, head coach John Franceschini believes he has the right mix of veterans and newcomers to get back to the state tournament this season.

"We're bringing back about half of the varsity squad from a team that missed the tournament really by a game in our opinion, so we're real optimistic," Franceschini said.

Senior Michael Lorenzano and Adam Vecchione make up that seasoned core, along with juniors Kevin O'Connell, Matt Ramponi, Craig Keenan, Washington Morrissey and Shawn Munchbach.

Unfortunately, the Presidents will be without O'Connell and Keenan for the first two games of the season. O'Connell hurt himself in the junior varsity football game against North Quincy and Keenan suffered an ankle injury in the second practice of the season.

They'll miss Monday's season opener at home against Marshfield and next Friday's early clash with city rival North Quincy. With the team's 13-day break between the second and third games, they should both return to the lineup Dec. 27 at Marshfield.

"Our main goal now is getting some of those players healthy again so by Christmas time we'll be ready to rumble because that is when we get into league play," Franceschini said.

As it seems like it is every year on Coddington Street, the Presidents will rely on an attacking defense to generate their offense. They'll play a scrappy, feisty, floor-diving brand of ball, looking to create turnovers that will lead to easy scoring chances.

"We'll look for our defense to make our offense," Franceschini said. "We're primarily a man-to-man program. We run a lot of presses off the man-to-man. I like to make people work the 85 feet. There's no mystery that when you're going to play Quincy, people are going to be in your face for the whole court. That will not change this year."

In the backcourt, Quincy is led by O'Connell at the point accompanied by

AIR AND TEMPERATURE

It pays to regularly check the air pressure in your vehicle's tires. Improper air pressure can lead to irregular tread wear if the pressure is too high or too low. This can reduce the service life of the tire, as well as handling and braking performance. Contrary to popular belief, the single most common cause of reduced tire pressure is not leaks, but changes in temperature. For every 10 degrees Fahrenheit the temperature drops outdoors, the pressure in your vehicle's tires goes down about one pound per square inch (p.s.i.). If you have not checked the air pressure in your tires for several months, seasonal temperature fluctuations may be responsible for a far different pressure reading than you may expect.

For your safety it's important to check your car's tire pressure routinely and often LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car. 800 points in his career and Stevenson feels the veteran will put together his best season on Hancock Street.

"He has a shot at 1,000 points and I'm expecting him to do huge things in his fourth year," he said. "He's bulked up and gotten stronger. He's come back in great shape and is ready to play."

North Quincy will continue with its offensive and defensive schemes from last year. With similar personnel (read: no real big man), the Red Raiders will look to run and score easy baskets in transition, while playing a suffocating man-to-man defense.

"We push the ball very well," Stevenson said. "These kids look to run. We're going to play an up-tempo game. A lot of the kids can freelance and create their own shots. Defensively we look good. We'll go man-to-man mostly and concentrate on half-court defense."

Seniors Mark Maher, Mike Haines and Bregoli, junior Kevin Holleran and sophomore Jim Burke will accompany McGillicuddy in the backcourt.

Seniors Dan Duggan and Matt Donovan can play both guard and forward. "They're really starting to show and they look like they'll be good players," Stevenson said.

The Red Raiders have a little bit of size down low with O'Connell (6-4) and senior center Adam O'Hara (6-3). Rounding out the frontcourt are seniors Dennis Thomson and Jack Luizzo, junior Sean Bowes and sophomore Daryl Costa. Junior Adam Smith, who will miss 4-6 weeks with a fractured hand, will play small forward.

Presidents Contenders

Ramponi and Keenan. Over the second half of the season, O'Connell really developed into a solid point guard with a knack for coming through in the clutch.

"Kevin's attribute is that he sees the floor very well," Franceschini said. "When you're playing defense against Kevin you really can't play him for the pass because if you do he's a very good shooter."

Ramponi became a legitimate scorer down the stretch, averaging 22 points over the final five games of the season. Keenan, who Franceschini said is the team's "purest shooter," is deadly from 10 to 16 feet and is particularly effective when guards penetrate and kick it back to him on the wing.

Rounding out the guards are Munchbach and former JV starters Bryan Eaton and Malcolm Lynn, both juniors, and senior Kris Kamborian. Eaton can shoot from outside, Lynn will back up O'Connell and Kamborian brings leadership.

Junior John David-Hyacinthe and sophomore J.J. Niamkey can play both guard and forward. Hyacinthe, a transfer from Archbishop Williams, is an outstanding defensive player, while Niamkey is described as an "untapped resource."

"J.J. brings to the table, in plain and simple terms, athleticism," Franceschini said. "I think he proved that as a football player as the football season went along. I think we're really looking at basketball as the same way. I don't think we know how good J.J. might become."

In the frontcourt, Vecchione and Lorenzano will start at forward. Although they're a bit undersized, they both play physical games and are strong on the boards.

"They bring back a lot of toughness," Franceschini said. "Both of these kids are about six-feet tall and always play against kids that are bigger, but with their physical attributes I think they do a great job on both ends rebounding."

Coming off the bench are Morriset and junior Anthony Boyle. Morriset, the New England high jump champion, will see more playing time in just his second year of organized basketball. Boyle, the tallest kid at 6 foot 3, will also get plenty of time in his first season with the team.

"He's a McHale-ish built kind of a kid," Franceschini said. "He does a very nice job on the offensive and defensive glass, and has the ability to step out and shoot."

volleyball or cross country teams in the fall. Junior forward April Suprey, the only player who did not participate in a fall sport, happens to play basketball year-round.

After only four practices, MacFarlane said last week that senior co-captain Allie Lacey and senior Kathryn MacRitchie would make up the starting backcourt, although that could change before next Friday's season opener at Quincy. Junior Lauren Kalil and sophomores Beth Goodrich and Ashley Ridge, Casey's sister, are also in the mix.

Senior co-captain Lauren Sleeth, co-MVP of the OCL last year and an all-star, can play both guard and forward. Sleeth, no doubt, is the go-to player on offense and will be counted upon to reproduce last year's performance. She is also the only legitimate threat from the outside, a glaring weakness for North Quincy this year, which makes the running game that more important.

"We're not a very strong outside shooting team so we really can't afford to set up, especially against a zone," MacFarlane said. "When people pack it in against us I think we're going to be in trouble."

In the frontcourt, Suprey will provide offense in the paint which should make for a nice inside-outside game with Sleeth. She was an honorable mention to the league all-star team last season.

"I think April is going to have a great year," MacFarlane said. "She worked real hard in the offseason. She has great post moves. I think she's really going to come into her own this year."

Defensively, MacFarlane, as of last week, hadn't decided what type of scheme he'll run. He's hoping he can continue to run a 1-3-1 zone, but that depends if he can find a suitable replacement for the graduation of Jen Conley, who manned the back line.

"I'm hoping that we can because I love the 1-3-1," MacFarlane said. "I think April Suprey can step in and play Conley's position. April is very vocal and sees the floor very well."

As North Quincy prepares to defend its league championship and end its jinx in the tourney, MacFarlane has stressed to the team in the preseason that it will take more work than last year to fulfill its goals.

"I've been preaching this: 'It's hard work to get to the top, even harder to stay there,'" he said. "That's the philosophy we're going at it with. We're not taking anything for granted. We're going to work even harder this year than last year. And hopefully we'll repeat. I think we can do it and I think we can move on in the tournament this year."

Roy Lind, 69

Popular Broadcaster For WJDA, Voice Of The South Shore For 40 Years

Roy Lind, 69, of Scituate, who retired a year ago as a South Shore institution broadcasting music, news, sports and talk over Quincy Radio WJDA for nearly 40 years, died Sunday at Quincy Medical Center.

He leaves his wife, Joan, two sons and a daughter and a legion of devoted fans whose days really didn't begin until they tuned their radio dials to 1300 to listen to Roy spar gently with sometimes irate callers to "Party Line" and note birthdays on "Breakfast with JDA."

He was also the station's program director who broadcast high school football play by play, covered Republican and Democratic National Conventions and interviewed celebrities from President Jimmy Carter on down.

Mr. Lind won a United Press International national award for his documentary, "A Bucketfull of Silk and Gold," detailing the return home of Scituate's Dave Silk after the U. S. Hockey Team won the gold medal at the 1980 Winter Olympics.

He was recognized as Citizen of the Year by the Quincy Jewish War Veterans in 1997 and, after his retirement on Nov. 3, 2000, he was grand marshal of the annual Quincy Christmas Parade.

WJDA President Jay Asher said Mr. Lind was a "true broadcasting professional."

"Roy Lind was a major market performer and talent dedicated to the South Shore listening audience. His talent, quick humor, remarkable creativity and flawless technical skills made him a true broadcasting professional.

"Roy was a wonderful friend to us all, a dedicated husband, father and grandfather," Asher said. "All of us at WJDA are grateful to have worked with him and known Roy."

"We shall miss him very much, and our thoughts and prayers are with his wife and family."

Every day throughout his radio career, Mr. Lind rose at 4 a.m. to drive from his home in Scituate to Quincy, missing only two days during the Blizzard of '78 when he was forced by the storm to turn back after reaching North Weymouth.

"I must be in the wrong business to fight snow and sleet to make it to work to tell teachers they don't have to work," he used to say.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

As we go through life all of us at one time or another face many crises. When these crises occur confusion sometimes occurs. To face a crisis requires courage -- and courage is a personal matter. Courage cannot be leased, borrowed or bought. It must be drawn from one's self for one's self. And when courage is shown, it often draws out the courage in others. When courage is shown, confusion can and often does disappear.

Even since time began, the greatest source for courage has been traced to a foundation on a faith. Faith creates hope. Without faith and hope, courage is difficult to come by. In spite of dark clouds, faith, hope and courage will always be the means to let us see the rays of sunshine again.

Jones also noted that representatives of Quincy's service clubs and organizations and individuals are also volunteering to man kettles at various sites.

Sheets, Phelan To Team Thursday 35 More Community Leaders Will Man Salvation Army Kettle

Thirty-five more community leaders, including Mayor James Sheets and Mayor-elect William Phelan teaming together, will man a Christmas kettle in Quincy Center today (Thursday) and Friday to help the Salvation Army help those in need this holiday season.

Money raised will go directly to the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St., to aid local families.

The "Celebrity Kettle" will be in front of Ryder's Home Decor and More Store, 1489 Hancock St., both days from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., the same location where it was manned last Friday by 17 community leaders.

Sheets and Phelan, making their first public appearance together since the Nov. 6 election, will be at the kettle today (Thursday) from noon to 1 p.m.

Sheets has proclaimed December "Salvation Army Month in Quincy."

This is the fifth year community leaders have volunteered to man the kettle.

And, as in the past, they ask friends, colleagues and residents to stop by and "help fill the kettle" to help the many in need of help, especially in this year's sliding economy and rising unemployment.

Major Doug Jones, and his wife, Major Linda Jones, co-commanders of the Quincy Temple Corps, said more volunteers are still needed. Any individual, group or organization able to give a little of their time are asked to call the Salvation Army headquarters at 617-472-2345.

"We are most grateful to all the volunteers who have been helping us this season but Christmas is coming on fast and we could use more help at the kettles," said Major Doug Jones. "We would appreciate anyone who has a little time to help us."

The community leaders kettle schedule for Thursday and Friday:

THURSDAY Dec. 13

9 A.M.-10 A.M.: Ward 1 City Councillor Greg Hanley and Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton.

Down From Expected City To Get $400,000 Less In State Aid

By CRAIG SALTERS

Recently released state revenue figures show that the city will receive roughly $400,000 less in state aid than previously anticipated.

"It's a sizable decrease," said Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the Board of Assessors, who said the city had expected some decreases due to recent state budget battles but didn't receive the final figures until Monday.

The city will receive $43,922,614 in receipts from the state, "a little over $400,000" less than preliminary "cherry sheet" figures from three months ago, Fantucchio said.

Total charges, which represent the city's cost for state and county government, came in at $3,867,098, reflecting only a "negligible" difference from preliminary estimates.

The lion's share of the decrease, Fantucchio said, came from state highway funds, where figures were expected to be $440,110 but came in at $111,028.

Fantucchio, who said state officials are in the process of certifying the city's property assessments, will incorporate all the data when she provides the city's financial figures to Mayor James Sheets, who will subsequently submit next year's tax classification percentage and corresponding tax rates to the City Council for approval.

A public hearing on the classification percentage, currently at 169 percent, was scheduled for Tuesday evening and was expected to be continued until the council's last scheduled meeting of the year Monday, Dec. 17.

Councillor Frank McCauley, chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council, who received a copy of the figures prior to Tuesday's public hearing, said the numbers represent a reverse of last year when a strong economy yielded more than $400,000 in unexpected state aid.

But McCauley, who said the city will receive $443,742 less than what was estimated by the state in March, is not overly pessimistic about the figures.

"Obviously, it's not good news but, given the state's declining economy, it could have been a lot worse," said McCauley, who emphasized that new growth figures, which he said were traditionally "the last piece in the puzzle," had not yet been factored into the equation.

Of the $443,742 decrease, McCauley, using rounded figures, said the city received $330,000 less than expected in Chapter 81 highway funds and $162,000 less than expected in lottery revenue.

The city actually received $72,600 more than projected for various Education programs.

When all is said and done, McCauley said, the city could possibly find itself tapping its near $5 million in stabilization funds to balance the budget.

A vote by the City Council on the city's tax classification percentage and tax rates for residential and commercial property is expected after the public hearing Dec. 17.

Tax bills must be sent before Jan. 1, 2002, to avoid the costly prospect of short-term borrowing by the city.

Candle Seen As Cause One Family Homeless In $100,000 Blaze

A three alarm fire at a Putnam St. duplex, which left one family homeless and caused in excess of $100,000 in damages, was started accidentally by an unattended candle, investigators say.

"It was purely accidental," said Quincy Fire Department Inspector John Keegan, who investigated the Dec. 5 fire which gutted the 103 Putnam St. home of Tracy Sullivan and her two children, Hannah and Heather, and caused extensive smoke damage to the adjoining 105 Putnam St.

The duplex itself is owned by Gordon Parry.

The candle, Keegan said, was placed down by the floor near the litter box of the family's two cats, who both died in the blaze.

Although it is impossible to confirm, Keegan said one possibility is that one of the cats knocked over the candle.

"Candles are becoming the number one cause of fire," said Keegan, adding that something as simple as a curtain blown over an open flame could lead to tragedy. "You have to be very careful, especially during the holiday season."

In all, 12 pieces of fire apparatus were used in putting out the fire, including two pieces from the assisting Boston Fire Department.

The first alarm sounded just after 2:30 p.m. that afternoon.

Noting the intense heat caused by the Dec. 5 fire, Keegan praised the quick work of Quincy firefighters but called the 103 Putnam St. address "unlivable" and in need of extensive repair.

A total of 12 pieces of apparatus was used to contain the blaze, which left one family homeless, caused more than $100,000 in damages, and resulted in the deaths of two pet cats. An unattended candle was blamed for the accidental fire.

Hearing Continued On Noise Complaints At Sea St. Donut Shop

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday continued a hearing regarding complaints at Dunkin' Donuts, 364 Sea St. including early deliveries and noise from the dumpsters.

Two abutters told the board that at 4 or 5 a.m. each day, deliveries are made to the donut shop and rubbish is picked up as early. They also complained of traffic and on street parking while customers run in for a cup of coffee.

However, last week, owner Paul Cleary said that had changed and that deliveries were now made at 11 a.m. and rubbish picked up as well.

He said the sign that was posted regarding no parking between 7 and 9 a.m. in the morning had been "knocked down" by a driver who had a seizure. He said he had spoken to Ward 1 Councilor Greg Hanley regarding the sign which will be replaced.

Acting Police Chief William Falco read a letter from Hanley with complaints from the Adams Shore community regarding the early morning parking.

The donut shop used to be across the street from the present site for more than 20 years, with Cleary, the same owner.

Two years ago, Cleary decided to re-locate the donut shop across the street which now abuts a residential area, rather than a marsh.

Chairman Joseph Shea, in giving a history of the relocation, said that a traffic study was done by Tom Stokes and approved by city traffic engineer Jack Gillon.

Cleary said he hopes to expand his parking lot on a site next door to provide 15 parking spaces. He said he has to meet with the Conservation Commission because the lot is considered a flood plane zone.

The hearing will continue on March 5.

Board Approves Expansion At Common Market

The License Board Tuesday approved plans for the alteration and expansion of The Common Market, 93 Willard St.

In presenting plans to board members, Owner John McDonald and son Greg McDonald told the board that construction, which will begin in the spring, will consist of a small addition on the left of the building where a mural is now displayed.

It will also include handicapped rest rooms. The six parking spaces now existing where the construction will be, will be across the street next to McDonald's Insurance.

McDonald said the addition will abut the existing kitchen so that business will be able to continue as usual.

Greg McDonald said the reason for the addition is that private functions have increased and are virtually taking "seating away from patrons"

McDonald said the restaurant has 162 parking spaces available.

The restaurant will apply for an occupancy permit and approval from the building department when construction is completed.

Peter Corea And Roy Lind: Community Treasures

Peter Corea and Roy Lind were, each in his own way, a community treasure.

There has already been deserving words of tribute to both but I would like to add a few personal thoughts and remembrances of them as friends.

Rev. Dr. Peter Corea, who died Thanksgiving Day at age 77, was pastor of Houghs Neck Congregational Church for nearly 55 years — 53 of them as co-pastor with his wife, Rev. Alicia Corea.

For all those years, it's been just plain Peter and Alicia. No frills. Just down to earth people's pastors.

Roy Lind, whose radio career at WJDA made him a friend and favorite in Quincy and South Shore homes for nearly four decades, died Dec. 2 at age 69.

He had retired only 13 months earlier but a persistent illness short-changed him of what were supposed to be his golden years.

On a September, 1947 Sunday, 23-year-old Peter Corea arrived at Houghs Neck Congregational as guest preacher for that day only.

But, there was something about him the congregation liked and he was invited back the next week. And they liked him even more.

So much so, that the very next month — Oct. 16 — they called him to be their minister. He was ordained that Dec. 8 in the church sanctuary.

Alicia was ordained May 5, 1949 — the very first woman to be ordained in Massachusetts.

Their team ministry was historic, too, together serving one church longer than any other pastors in Quincy.

Peter had a well known trait. He loved to hug people to show he really cared about them.

He also had a well known fault: He was a damn Yankee fan.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, retired Quincy assistant school superintendent, church member and Red Sox fan, once recalled how she and Peter had a 10-year wager on which team would win the pennant.

PETER AND ALICIA Corea on the 50th anniversary of their ministry at Houghs Neck Congregational Church in 1997. It was a lucky day for Quincy when he arrived as a young guest preacher for a day that turned into nearly 55 years.

She was in junior high school at the time it started and couldn't remember ever winning. She had looked forward to winning the year Peter promised — if the Red Sox won — he would eat a pair of his old shoes. (A safe bet for Peter).

By losing, Carol Lee had to wash the windows in the parsonage. "I washed a lot of windows," she said. "But Peter always paid me when I got through."

Peter was also a professor at Emerson College where his students included Jay Leno, Jason Alexander, Susan Wornick and Sara Edwards.

Some of the teachers told Leno they didn't think he would make it as a stand-up comic. Peter, though, thought he would and encouraged him. They became friends.

Leno sent an audio tape that was played at a memorial service for Peter at Emerson College last week.

"I always appreciated everything Peter ever did for me," he said. "One of the things he told me was to never compete with other people, but just compete within myself."

Peter (and Alicia) was always there to encourage young people to go on to college, stressing the importance of a good education. And backed it up with church scholarships and personal financial aid.

Peter and Alicia brought Houghs Neck Congregational from a summer mission to a full-scale church, conducting well over 5,000 worship services, thousands of weddings, baptisms — and funerals. And volunteered thousands of hours, reaching out to people in the congregation and in the community.

And, didn't take a salary from the church, living instead on Peter's salary at Emerson and other colleges where he taught.

It was a lucky day for Houghs Neck and Quincy that Sunday when that young fellow came by to guest preach for that one day.

And stayed nearly 55 years.

Roy Lind, a Quincy boy, got to do just about everything during his near four decades at WJDA. And did them well: news, sports, special assignments, documentaries.

He won a number of awards, one of them a UPI National Award for his documentary on the Scituate homecoming of Dave Silk, a member of the famed U.S. Olympic hockey team that won the Gold Medal and the hearts of America in 1950.

But he was best known for hosting "Breakfast With JDA" and "Party Line" as well as serving as program director.

He was easy-going and low-key and nothing seemed to rattle him.

But I asked him once if he ever hung up on anyone on "Party Line."

"There was this woman," he replied, "who called in one morning complaining about the treatment she received at Quincy Hospital for a bloody nose."

"She went on and on and kept repeating how they put sticks up her nose. A little too graphic. I said, 'that's it' and hung up."

That got him an angry letter from a listener who called him "The Ayatollah of Quincy" for hanging up on the woman. And he threatened to call WJDA advertisers to boycott the station.

Roy also cut off an anti-Semitic.

"But I generally let people vent their feelings," he said. "You have a call-in show and invite people to call in and express their opinions. Most of them are polite, pleasant and make sense. Now and then you get one of the others."

Roy had the knack for putting people at ease when interviewing them. He made you forget there was a microphone in the studio. That it was just like two friends shooting the breeze.

Roy had one regret in his career: the Blizzard of '78, which buried the area under 27 inches of snow and brought everything to a standstill.

WJDA stayed on the air around-the-clock for two days and nights keeping vital information flowing to listeners. And broadcasting appeals for snowmobiles and four-wheel drive vehicles needed by Civil Defense and other emergency units.

Gathering the information and taking turns at the mike were Jay Asher, Win Bettinson, Ken Fallon, Herb Fontaine, John Nicholson, Charlie Ross and Don Baird.

But no Roy.

"I missed all the action," he would lament whenever the subject came up.

He was trying to make it to WJDA from his home in Scituate but couldn't move an inch beyond the Back River Bridge in Hingham.

He abandoned his car, hitched rides on snowplows to Cohasset and trudged the remaining four miles to his home.

"I didn't make it to WJDA until three days later," he recalled.

And when he did, he got a little good natured ribbing from his storm tired colleagues.

Roy retired Nov. 3 of last year. He and his wife, Joan, had plans to do some traveling and maybe take a cruise.

But Roy's illness, which kept coming back, cheated them.

Roy, as I have said before, was one of those real nice guys you would love to have as a next door neighbor.

He and Peter Corea will be missed. But long — and fondly — remembered.

Scenes From Yesterday

LAST JULY, in Scenes From Yesterday, we ran this 1942 picture of Platner's Pharmacy on the corner of Adams and Shirley Streets in Lakin Square. We incorrectly stated that Platner's later became Lakin Square Drug or Glazers. In fact, at this time, the Lakin Square Drug was across Adams on the far corner of Beale Street. Jack Glazer later moved it across Adams to the corner of Stedman St. Platner's later become Gordon's, that name is still visible on the Coca Cola sign on the Shirley

St. side of the building. Pharmacist Nelford Platner owned the 1937 Lincoln Zepher sedan shown here. His grandson, Dave Leitch, worked at the store's soda fountain and recalls serving ice cream sundaes to singer and band leader Vaughn Monroe who was a regular customer here after attending church services in nearby Milton. Thanks to all those who called to correct our mistake on the picture.

'No Gifts' Policy Clarified By School Committee

By PAUL HAROLD

Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard clarified the school department's "no gift" policy for teachers and all school personnel.

Dr. Gossard said the perennial issue arose this year when the question was asked if a group, rather than an individual, could make a gift to a teacher. The answer was the same: "no."

"To avoid possible embarrassment to pupils and possible criticism to the schools," Gossard said, "no teacher should accept gifts from individual pupils or groups of pupils."

600 PAY TRIBUTE TO 'RED LEWIS'

Six hundred friends and colleagues from city government attended the testimonial for City Manager "Red" Lewis at Coral Gables in North Weymouth.

Toastmaster John Flavin, former city solicitor and former president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, said it "was the greatest spontaneous tribute to a fine fellow of any that I have ever seen in my experience."

Lewis became acting manager when manager Donald Blatt left, following the voters' rejection of the Plan E (city manager) former of government.

Among those paying tribute to Lewis was Police Chief William Ferrazzi who grew up with him in South Quincy. He said Lewis's favorite expression was "ready every time." As a result, young Lewis was given the nickname "Ready," later shortened to "Red."

READERS FORUM

America: We Heard The Message

We have all learned a great deal since the tragedies of Sept. 11 and the American Red Cross is not alone in confronting incredibly complex issues that have resulted from the attacks on America. Compounding this challenge is our duty to match America's unprecedented outpouring of generosity with the overwhelming needs of the victims.

Just as the attacks that stunned the world were unfathomable acts of terrorism, the abundant support for our aid program quickly reached record levels. Within weeks, the Red Cross received $543 million to the Liberty Disaster Fund, which we established immediately in response to the attacks. Our volunteers and staff were at the site of the attacks immediately, providing assistance to thousands of people.

But not everything has gone as well as we would like, and some of the problems have to do with not listening closely to the concerns of our donors and other friends. People have become frustrated that contributions are not being handed out more quickly to victims. And

Special Education Committee

Meeting Dec. 18

The Special Education SubCommittee of the Quincy School Committee will meet Tuesday, Dec. 18 at 7:30 p.m. at Broad Meadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd.

After the meeting, QPAC Parents Support Group will take place at 9 p.m.

Meetings are open to the public.

many do not agree with our initial decision to use some of the donor contributions to improve our strategic blood reserve capability, while investing in other terrorist response programs not directly connected to the victims of September 11.

Let me assure you, we have heard America's message loud and clear. We have changed our policy in three important ways: We are dedicating all of the money collected in the Liberty Fund solely to the immediate and long-term needs of those affected by the attacks; we are giving aid directly to victims in larger cash amounts and more quickly; and we are including our aid recipients in a common database with other relief agencies to streamline the process for everyone.

Let me also assure you, a great deal of good has already resulted from America's generous donations. The Red Cross has provided $137 million in cash assistance and services to more than 25,000 families since September 11. This is an unprecedented rate of charitable giving over an eight-week period. We have served more than 10 million meals — an average of 100,000 per day — to survivors and emergency personnel working at the three disaster sites. We have offered mental health and spiritual counseling to more than 144,000 people, including more than 100,000 in the New York area alone. We have also deployed 46,000 disaster workers — 43,000 of them volunteers — to provide services at the areas of need.

While extraordinary progress has been made since the Sept. 11 disasters, we realize there is much to be done. We are sending a letter to all the victims' families asking if we have their approval to share information about our assistance with other charities working in this area. The letter is part of our effort to work closely with the Attorney General of New York, Eliot Spitzer, to develop a system that would coordinate all the relief efforts underway to help victims of September 11.

And we are expanding our family gift program, which covers basic living expenses such as housing, food, utilities, and healthcare for the victims' families, from three months to a year. By the end of the year, we will have spent $275 million on relief efforts and we will have a plan for spending the rest of the money as quickly and effectively as possible.

For the past two months our volunteers and employees have done an extraordinary job of helping people in very difficult circumstances. At the same time, as an organization we could have done a better job of listening to the American people. But we are listening now. Our humanitarian traditions are intact and we look forward to working hard every day to earn the trust you have bestowed upon us through these difficult times.

Happy 75th, Father Bill

Finn, former executive secretary at Father Bill's Place; Rev. Daniel Graham, pastor St. Joseph's Church who served with Fr. McCarthy at St. John's; Congressman William Delahunt and John Yazwinski, present executive director of Father Bill's Place.

THANKING THOSE ATTENDING. Fr. William McCarthy told them he would like to see "the taking down of that sign at 38 Broad St., the sign that says Father Bill's Place," heralding the day when the shelter for the homeless would no longer be needed. All the proceeds from the birthday party went to Father Bill's Place.

MAYOR-ELECT William Phelan, who attends St. John's Church where Fr. William McCarthy was pastor, told of his generosity helping the needy. He recalled giving a donation to the church when one of his children was baptized and seeing Fr. McCarthy pass it on to a needy person.

You never know when you or your family may need to visit the hospital emergency department. But you can take comfort in knowing that Milton Hospital is ready to provide the emergency and urgent care you need, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Extra Coverage - Extra Care

In addition to providing extra coverage on weekends, our emergency department now has a physician's assistant on duty every day during our busiest period (from 2 to 10 p.m.). This enables us to direct emergency cases to the department physician, while the physician assistant treats less critical conditions. The results are shorter waits and more personal attention for our patients. We take the time to answer your questions and address your concerns. It's the kind of personal care that has earned us high marks in recent independent patient satisfaction surveys.

Here When You Need Us

More than 18,000 people are treated in Milton Hospital's emergency department each year, at all hours of the day and night. We hope you don't have to visit us, but isn't it good to know that we'll be here if you do?

Quincy Resident Serves AT NYC's 'Ground Zero' With Salvation Army

Quincy resident Chris Hogan, director of social services with the Massachusetts Salvation Army, recently returned from Ground Zero of the World Trade Center disaster site, where he was part of a group of 46 Massachusetts Salvation Army personnel that served near the base of where the World Trade Center once stood.

"I thought I knew what I was in for before heading down to the site," said Hogan, "but nothing could have prepared me for what we witnessed. There are no words to describe the actual feelings of loss and destruction in an around the area."

Even amidst the ruins and flurry of activity taking place at Ground Zero, Hogan remembers thinking how well everyone worked together.

"Despite all that was happening," he said "I was amazed at how much love and care total strangers showed one another. It was deeply touching."

While at Ground Zero, he helped serve meals from a mobile feeding unit, just one of 20 such units operated by the Salvation Army near the site. To date, the Salvation Army has served more than two million meals to police officers, firefighter and other rescue workers on the scene. He also helped distribute clothing, boots and medical supplies.

"People were deeply appreciative of the services we provided," recalled Hogan. "It was a real honor to serve these people in this time of great need."

He is still unable to talk about many of his experiences at the disaster site and said it will take some time to fully process everything that he witnessed. One story he recounted was of a young woman he served a meal to one night.

"I thanked her for all of the great work she and the other relief workers were doing and she turned and told me that 'I don't have the abilities to do great things, I only do small things with great love.' She helped put a lot of perspective on the work I was doing at the site."

"As much as we're helping these people," said Lt. Col. Fred Van Brunt, divisional commander, "they oftentimes have a greater impact on our lives."

Van Brunt, who also spent time at the site, said that many Salvation Army officers, board members and volunteers that have served at Ground Zero are more than willing to return, even though they know the hardships of serving under such difficult circumstances.

Among them is Major Douglas Jones, co-commander with his wife, Major Linda Jones, of the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps, who served there two weeks.

Asked if he would be willing to return to the site again, Hogan responded without hesitation, "In a heartbeat."

To find out how you can make a direct impact on the relief efforts undertaken by the Salvation Army, call 1-800-SAL-ARMY.

Onion Pie

If you like onions, here is a great recipe for onion pie. It will go well as a side dish with almost anything.

Onion Pie

40 saltine crackers (crushed)
4 cups sliced onions
3/4 cup butter or margarine
8 ounces shredded sharp cheese
1 1/2 cups milk
3 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 350 degrees
Grease a 13" x 9" baking dish. Mix crushed crackers with 1/2 cup melted butter. Press into the pan. Sauté onions in the remaining 1/4 cup butter until brown.

Spread on top of the cracker crumbs. Top with cheese. The last thing you have to do is scald the milk, add the beaten eggs, salt and pepper. Pour over the cheese. Bake for 30 minutes until center resembles custard.

COMPOSITE SKETCH

Composite bonding involves the application of tooth-colored resin to teeth to correct a variety of problems in a quick, affordable, and aesthetically pleasing manner. Usually completed in a single session, the technique may be employed to repair root abrasion (on roots exposed by gum recession or notched by years of aggressive brushing), close spaces between teeth, improve or change the color of permanently stained or discolored teeth, or reshape crooked or misshapen teeth. Composite bonding adheres to the tooth to provide a relatively strong and durable repair while removing very little (if any) tooth structure. Available in a variety of colors and special shades, composite bonding can be made to look as natural as your own teeth.

Even the subtlest change in your smile can make a dramatic difference in the way you look and feel about yourself. We invite you to talk to us about the cosmetic dental options most suitable for you, what your expectations are, and the dental fees involved. We are a highly qualified and experienced team of professionals. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where our entire staff is thoroughly trained, skilled, and sensitive to your needs. Our goal is to make each visit to our office a comfortable and positive experience. PH: 617-479-6220. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. P.S. Although not as strong as porcelain veneers, a bonded restoration may last five years, or more, before requiring touch-up or replacement.

Stephen Brenner Cited As Teacher Of Influence

Stephen Brenner, a biology teacher at North Quincy High School, has been cited by Tufts University as a teacher who inspired his students through talent and caring that changed their lives forever.

For the past 12 years, Tufts has asked its students to remember those teachers so that they can be honored through a special recognition program.

Each year, entering students are given an opportunity to nominate a teacher who markedly influenced their lives.

"This program has allowed us to honor those educators who are changing the world by challenging students' minds," said David Cuttino, dean of admissions, who founded the program.

"The stories students tell when nominating their mentors have a lot to teach us about the importance of this profession, which far too often goes unrewarded."

May all the aches and pains of 2001 become a distant memory in 2002!

Valerie Vigoda Named DOVE Executive Director

VALERIE VIGODA

DOVE, the South Shore's largest program for victims of domestic violence, announces Valerie Vigoda has been named executive director.

Vigoda, an experienced leader and advocate for community organizations, will help the Board of Directors and staff move DOVE to the next level of service for the Greater Quincy area.

"We are both excited and proud to have Valerie with us," said Laurie Kelliher, president of DOVE's Board of Directors. "Valerie's professional background and accomplishments are just what we need to help us as we continue our fight to stop domestic violence, and to help the thousands of victims who count on our services every year."

"I am truly honored to be DOVE's new executive director," Vigoda said. "I will work hard every day with our board, our dedicated staff and our volunteers to continue DOVE's great efforts and to meet the ongoing challenges we face. As part of our work to end domestic violence I am eager to build partnerships throughout the community, enhance our current programs and develop new and exciting initiatives."

Reflecting on DOVE's struggle to end domestic violence, Vigoda said, "We began our work over two decades ago — before almost any other organization — and we are committed to continuing until domestic violence is truly ended. As a community we must all remember that one victim is one too many — and we currently serve hundreds of victims every year who need our emergency services and thousands who need our help."

Vigoda's past experience includes running the adult basic education program at Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., overseeing special projects at Boston Emergency Medical Services, and consulting for private businesses. She also worked in the Massachusetts Legislature on the staffs of former State Senator Shannon O'Brien and former State Representative Marjorie Clapprood.

Vigoda earned her master's degree from the Public and Non-Profit Program at Boston University's School of Business, and her undergraduate degree from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

DOVE, based in Quincy, provides emergency shelter, crisis intervention, counseling, legal and housing advocacy for women and their children who are victims of domestic violence.

DOVE was founded in 1978 with the establishment of a crisis hotline. Since that time the non-profit organization has grown into a multi-service agency, including two crisis hotlines, the emergency shelter, transitional housing, community outreach and education.

In the past six months alone DOVE has provided on site and housing assistance to over 500 women and children, and provided counseling to over 2,300 women and teens from all parts of Massachusetts.

Quincy Business Council Makes Its Case On Tax Classification

The Quincy Business Council is waging a campaign to keep the city's current tax classification percentage of 169 percent for the coming year.

The campaign, led by QBC Chairman Anthony Agnitti in anticipation of the City Council's vote on the matter Dec. 17, is a proactive attempt to urge councillors to approve the 169 percent which Mayor James Sheets said he would submit to councillors in time for tax bills to be sent out by Jan. 1.

The QBC, the local arm of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, is asking its members to write councillors and also attend the Dec. 17 public hearing prior to the vote.

By doing so, the QBC hopes to avoid the situation which occurred in December of 1999 when the council voted to change the mayor's recommended 169 percent classification in favor of the state maximum 175 percent classification.

That move angered many business leaders who protested that the percentage hike not only hurt business but came without warning.

The city uses the classification percentage to set the residential and commercial tax rates, multiplying the total value of commercial property by the figure to shift the tax burden from residential to commercial property. Using the 169 percent last December, for instance, the city set Fiscal Year 2001 tax rates at $15.94 residential and $33.56 commercial per $1,000 valuation of property.

In addition to writing their own letters, QBC members are being urged to sign and return a letter prepared by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce which touts the current classification percentage as striking the right balance for the city's growth.

A portion of the letter reads:

"In order for Quincy to remain successful during these uncertain economic times, there must be an effort to compete with neighboring towns that are constantly working to attract new businesses into their communities with a competitive flat tax rate.

"If the city is to remain successful, it is vital that this council continues to serve as the driving force for solid growth through a reasonable tax classification code. A tax classification rate of 169 percent will provide Quincy with the type of business growth and expanded tax base necessary to ensure the city's continued success as an economically viable community."

The letter also asks councillors to consider the following points:

- At the current tax classification rate of 169 percent, Quincy businesses pay almost 38 percent of the total taxes collected by the city, yet the business community makes up less than 23 percent of the overall assessed valuation.

- According to a recent study by Quincy 2000, at the current tax classification rate of 169 percent, Quincy businesses save city residents between $17-18 million dollars in property taxes each year.

- Quincy businesses provide jobs to residents, create a strong local economy, and have a positive impact on the overall health of the city.

As a final point, the letter states that "the business community has consistently displayed an unwavering commitment to the city. Quincy businesses actively participate in the community through fundraising drives, charitable contributions, and other community based initiatives.

"Quincy businesses are good neighbors who care deeply about our community."

The public hearing regarding tax classification was scheduled to begin Tuesday night with the expectation that it would be continued until the Dec. 17 date.

A Step Beyond Beauty Raises $2,343 To Fight Breast Cancer

A Step Beyond Beauty Salon and Spa recently raised $2,343 for the Faulkner/Sagoff Centre and the early detection of breast cancer by holding a Cut-A-Thon at its 1446 Hancock St. location.

As part of the event, sponsored in part by Paul

Mitchell, many customers cut their long locks of hair — including owner Lee Cohen's own daughter Sarah — to donate them to children who are suffering with hair loss due to medical conditions.

The hair will be donated to Locks of Love, a not-for profit organization founded in 1997 that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children.

Hair donations of 10 inches or more are accepted by Locks of Love. For more information, contact Patricia Queeney of Patricia & Company at (617) 698-0088.

Esther R. Sanger Center Elects Two New Board Members

Weymouth resident Karen van Unen and Braintree resident Donald Young have been elected to the board of directors of the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion in Quincy.

Van Unen is the Director of the Office of Community Benefits, Children's Hospital Boston.

Young is Academic Dean

Emeritus of Eastern Nazarene College.

The non-profit Sanger Center for Compassion runs the Quincy Crisis Center, which operates a "food pantry on wheels" program for emergency food deliveries throughout the South Shore and a hot meal program weekdays at the United First Parish Church in Quincy Center.

The non-profit organization also runs the Mary Martha Learning Center in Hingham, a residential educational program where homeless families, primarily women with young children, receive training designed to help them achieve positive, long-term changes in their lives.

The ladies joined many who purchased hair and nail care that day, raising $2,343 for the Faulkner/Sagoff Centre and the early detection of breast cancer. From left are: Patricia Queeney of Quincy, Patricia & Company; Susan Thierren of Quincy, South Suburban Oncology; Lee Cohen, owner, A Step Beyond Beauty Salon and Spa; Karen Donnellan of Quincy (in chair) and Aggie Flaherty of Dorchester; and Rosie McMullin of Quincy, South Suburban Oncology, who holds Donnellan's donated lock of hair.

The holiday season is one of giving for most of us but it is also a time of taking for the element in society that preys upon the rest of us when we are most vulnerable.

Here are some recommendations from the Massachusetts Bankers Association on how we can minimize the risks and save money at the same time.

* Be extra careful with wallets, handbags and credit and debit cards when shopping. In the holiday crush it is easy to mislay belongings or have them spirited away when you aren't looking.

* Check your surroundings when using an ATM machine. If you feel anyone suspicious is nearby, wait and use another machine. Close the door firmly when entering and leaving the facility, put your cash away at once and take your receipt.

* Keep an eye on your packages and guard your PIN number. Never write your PIN number on your card or keep it in your wallet or purse. Always check your statement for unauthorized use of your card.

* Never provide your Social Security number or financial information by telephone or on line unless you initiate the contact and are familiar with the business. Never respond to e-mail requesting personal information.

* Verify that any charitable solicitations are legitimate by contacting the Attorney General's Public Charities Division. It is also better to give by check or credit card to a recognized charity rather than on impulse to some cause you never heard of.

Watch out for older friends and family members who may be the victims of frauds or scams that are frequently perpetrated against the elderly, particularly around the holiday season.

* Be alert to any unusual financial behavior on the part of an older friend or family member. The withdrawal of large amounts of cash by an elder may be a warning sign that a fraud is in progress.

* Consult your bank or local police if you suspect that a fraud may be underway. Many local banks participate in the Association's elderly scam-prevention initiative called the Bank Reporting Project.

* If an older friend or family member wins a prize in the mail or through a telephone call, inquire further. Most such prizes are marketing ploys or worse and you should check with the Attorney General's office.

Holiday purchasing can also get out of hand. Here are some tips to help you avoid a post-holiday financial hang-over when the bills start coming in.

* Plan ahead in terms of how much your household can reasonably spend. Impulse buying can be a budget-buster.

* Remember that many friends and relatives would rather have a gift of your time and activity-sharing than they would one more gadget.

* ATMs are extremely convenient and a great way to avoid carrying excess cash. To save money, use your own bank's ATM or get cash back by check or debit card.

* Create a budget to decide where your money should go, including getting into a routine of paying yourself through a contribution to your regular savings account.

Christmas Tree Care

Floral experts at 1-800-FLOWERS.COM offer the following care and handling tips for extending the life of your real Christmas tree this holiday season:

- Choose a fresh tree. Check for green and healthy appearance and few, if any, brown needles.

- Store live trees in a cool place until ready to be used, protected from sun and wind to prevent them from losing moisture.

- Before bringing the tree inside, make a fresh cut across the base of the trunk, an inch from the end, to break the sap seal that may have formed when the tree was originally cut.

- In choosing a spot for the tree, set it away from heat sources, such as fireplaces, radiators and heat vents. Keep the tree away from TV sets and other major appliances as well.

- After bringing the tree inside, place it in a stand that holds at least one gallon of water. Check water level daily and never let it drop below the cut end of the tree. The drier a live tree gets, the easier it is to ignite. Be sure to check the branches for brown, dry spots.

- Use only decorative lights that are UL-approved. Do not use outdoor lights on an indoor tree, as they will generate too much heat.

Quincy Career Center Open House Thursday

The Massachusetts Division of Employment and Training, in partnership with the City of Quincy and Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission will hold an open house and ribbon cutting ceremony today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at the Quincy Career Center, 152 Parkingway.

The ceremony will showcase the Quincy Career Center's new location as a central resource for local businesses and job seekers. Participating will be DET Director Jack King, South Coastal Workforce Investment Board Chairman Don Uvanitte, Mayor James Sheets and Catherine Scifres, Career Center Committee Chair, local legislators and Workforce Investment Board members.

"The current economic climate demands that Massachusetts have One-Stop Career Centers that provide both businesses and job seekers with fast, responsive service," King said. "The Center's more convenient location will help strengthen its capacity to provide that kind of high-caliber service."

Uvanitte said, "The Center's grand opening reflects the spirit set forth in the Workforce Investment Act to better meet the needs of customers in this region. Our goal is to provide a Career Center that works for everyone, and this is just the first step in being able to achieve that."

At this and other One-Stop Center sites throughout Massachusetts, job seekers can access career planning and resume development services, referrals to job training opportunities, job search workshops, job postings on the Internet, labor market information and use of personal computers. Businesses can take advantage of customized services that include personnel recruitment, marketing job vacancies to qualified job seekers, access to occupational wage data, and information on tax credits and Workforce Training Fund Program funds.

George Bowman Honored For Role In First School-Business Partnership

George Bowman of State Street Bank, who had a major role in Quincy's oldest school-business partnership, was recently honored at this year's partnership signing breakfast at North Quincy High School.

Over the years, Bowman has overseen school-business partnership initiatives that have become national models. The Great Ideas and Best Practices initiatives have been emulated in cities like Chicago and San Francisco. The technology grant initiative has enabled North Quincy High to keep abreast of evolving technologies.

Bowman cited people instrumental in the development of the partnership, including retired principals Peter Crisom and Eileen Feeney. He referred to Barbara Clarke of State Street Bank and Mary Beth Curran of North Quincy High School as "key players" for their special roles in developing and expanding the partnership.

Bowman was presented a decorative mirror etched with an image of North Quincy High School.

Other partnership members and honored guests who addressed the gathering included Steve Cronin of Boston Financial Data Services, Mayor James Sheets, School Supt. Richard DeCristofaro and North Quincy Principal Louis Ioannili.

Expectations High For 'Senior' Presidents

By CHRIS POISSON

Bob Sylvia has been waiting a couple of years for this Quincy High School hockey team to arrive on Coddington Street.

The class of 2002, which has 10 members on the team this season, showed promise as sophomores, blossomed as juniors and is now expected to reel in championships as seniors.

"This is a senior dominated team," Sylvia said. "This is the team we've been waiting for for a couple of years. And this is a team that has done well in past years, so the expectation is high."

As sophomores they helped the Presidents make the tournament where they were ousted in the first round by a powerful Archbishop Williams squad. Last year they led the team all the way to the Division I South semifinals. As they developed during the season, the team simply got stronger, culminating in a huge win over top seed Falmouth in the quarterfinals.

BOYS' ICE HOCKEY

"When you take a look at what they've done athletically as sophomores and juniors, you can understand why we have high expectations this year," Sylvia said.

Offensively, the Presidents have the personnel to burn many red bulbs. Seniors Brian Scott, Andy Ross, Bill McKeon, Dave Germain and sophomore Matt Germain are the star forwards that will be counted upon to anchor the scoring.

"Those are kids that can skate on any team in the league," Sylvia said.

Another player, forward Paul Campbell, is included among the team's elite forwards but there is question as to whether he can face the skates this season.

"He's a member of our team but he can't play until he gets a waiver," Sylvia said. "This would be his fifth year and he didn't play one of the years, so it's a decision the MIAA has to make."

With the five premier forwards, the idea is to spread them out over three lines with the inexperienced varsity players to create a balanced and deep scoring attack.

"We go by colors," Sylvia said. "We don't have a first line or a second line or a third line. Our goal this year is to play three lines. I believe that in order to achieve our goals, we're going to have to have three functioning lines."

The Germaines were paired together on the same line last year and they clicked from the get-go. There's no way Sylvia is going to tinker with that brotherly magic.

Quincy-North Debuts With Impressive Win

The Quincy/North Quincy girls' hockey team kicked off its first season as a program last Saturday with a resounding 8-0 win over the Mt. St. Joseph's (Brighton) varsity squad.

Quincy/North Quincy has jayvee status and will be playing both jayvee and varsity teams this year. It will play a 16-game schedule consisting of all non-league games.

Senior Audra Hill netted two goals to power the offense and goalie Jessie Poggi

Juniors Lauren Struzik and Kelly Rice, sophomores Nicole Murray, Lindsey Langel and Kristina Manganaro, and freshman Marissa Powers all tallied a goal.

"We're a brand new program," said head coach Laura Prisco. "We have some strong skaters and we have some that are skating for the first time. We have a variety of ability. We have a lot of work to do as a team."

Red Raiders' Mission: League Championship

After Rocky Balboa-like comebacks the past two years just to get into the state tournament, Bob Doyle has changed the North Quincy High School hockey team's mission this season.

No longer are the Red Raiders content with being .500 and sneaking into the playoffs, they now hold higher expectations as they begin their season Saturday night at 7:50 at home against Taunton in hopes of competing for the league championship.

"We've always said the goal is to make the tournament, but we have elevated that this year to make a run for the Old Colony League championship," Doyle said. "The league is wide open this year. We've been settling for making the tournament, which is mediocre."

With the graduation of 12 seniors, including all three of its goalies, and only 10 returnees, Doyle said he foresees a slow start. Hopefully, not as slow as last year when North Quincy stumbled to a 5-9 record before winning five of its last six to qualify for the tourney.

"I expect some growing pains early on with our experience," Doyle said. "But with a new, strong sense of discipline the team is more in line or more focused."

MacDonald, who had an off-year last season, will be counted upon to produce numbers similar to his sophomore campaign (14 goals, 11 assists).

"He had a tough year last year," Doyle said. "I expect big things from him this year. He's a scorer and a playmaker. I'm hoping he returns to his old self."

Grazioso led North Quincy in scoring a year ago with 19 points and was an

SAFE TO SAY

By law, all cars sold in the United States offer a mandated minimum amount of protection for a crash at 30 mph. To come up with its ratings, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) crashes new cars at 35 mph head-on into a wall to determine the level of safety beyond minimum. Its lowest rating (one star) suggests that the occupants would suffer serious or even life-threatening injuries in a crash. Drivers of a car with at least a four-star rating can expect a 20% or less chance of a serious injury. Last year, 88% of the cars tested by the NHTSA made the top two rankings of four and five stars, versus only 31% in 1979.

Quincy Starts Season In Win Column

By CHRIS POISSON

A new era for the Quincy High School girls' basketball team has brought immediate success.

After suffering through an 0-for-season campaign last year, the inexperienced Presidents wasted no time finding the win column this year, topping Marshfield, 49-43, on the road in the season opener Monday night.

"It's a huge win for the kids," said first-year head coach Jeff Bretsch, an assistant last year who has taken over the reigns left behind by the resignation of Bob Noble. "It's a confidence-builder and it gives them a little taste of success."

Junior forward Shannon Paine pumped in 23 points to anchor the offense, while sophomore guard Bonnie Hirtle and freshman backup center Alysia DiMuzio each chipped in with 8 points.

Quincy hosts cross-town rival and defending Old Colony League champion North Quincy tomorrow (Friday) at 6:30 p.m.

"The kids are already excited about it," Bretsch said. "It's going to be a challenge for us. No doubt the kids are up for it mentally. We've struggled against them and I see us competing at their level by the end of the season."

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The Presidents graduated nine players from last year's squad and return only two, Hirtle and senior captain Christine Niosi, a forward. As of right now, they are the only two who are penciled into the starting lineup on a regular basis.

Accompanying Paine and Niosi at forward are senior Jena Maze, junior Stephanie Fiandaca and sophomores Katie Kisielius and Brittney Tobin. Joining them in the frontcourt are senior center Lauren Sullivan and DiMuzio.

Niosi has provided great leadership since the start of preseason and has helped smooth the transition for Bretsch.

"She's been outstanding so far," he said. "She really exudes leadership for the kids. That's been a huge help for me in my first year."

In the backcourt with Hirtle are juniors Jennifer Gropp and Courtney Rand and sophomore Sarah Shea. Offensively, Quincy did not shoot particularly well against Marshfield but it was relentless at attacking the basket.

"We were just aggressive and attacked the basket,"

Bretsch said. "We did a good job on the boards and got a lot of rebounds."

Bretsch said he is not sure who will provide consistent scoring, but if the first game is any indication, Paine, who started on the jayvee last year, could become the team's go-to player. And Hirtle, a starter on varsity last year, will also be expected to put the ball in the basket.

One of the goals this season is to develop a defensive identity and Quincy looked strong in that area against Marshfield.

"We need to establish pride on defense and understand team defense," Bretsch said. "We played hard on defense against Marshfield and I'm proud of them."

Although Quincy has tasted early success, Bretsch understands that this season is still going to be a rebuilding year.

"There's definitely going to be some transition," he said. "It's going to be a new year. We only have two returnees from last year. We have a lot of young kids. But I have confidence in them because they are hard workers."

Expectations High For 'Senior' Presidents

it's automatic," Sylvia said. "Why would you break them up? It doesn't make sense. If we have to break them up, we're in trouble."

Defensively, the Presidents should be strong with the return of four veterans. Senior quad-captains Matt Conso and Shawn Richardson and fellow classmates John Chevalier and Kevin Patten anchor the blue line. They should help make the transition easier for junior Dan Derosier.

Backstopping the defense is senior goalie Shaun Flaherty, one of the top netminders in the Old Colony League last season. With Quincy having moved to the Atlantic Coast League, Flaherty will no doubt be among the upper echelon.

"As far as I was concerned in the OCL, he was the best goalie coming back," Sylvia said. "He was an all-scholastic last year. So I look for immediate strength in the net."

Now that the team Sylvia has been waiting for is here, the 36-year veteran coach feels it needs to get off to a quick start and believes it will do so. Quincy opened the season against Hanover Tuesday and Dennis-Yarmouth yesterday (Wednesday), both at home, and will travel to Sandwich Saturday.

"In my opinion we should start off strong," Sylvia said. "You're talking about kids that know what it takes to win. We have a very positive outlook this year. Our goals are high. I have high expectations, and they do too."

Red Raiders' Mission: League Championship

honorably mention to the OCL all-star team.

"He's driven and knows what is ahead of him," Doyle said. "He's one of the best forwards on the team without a doubt. He's been the best player in the ice in the scrimmages."

"He's a good player," Doyle said. "He's strong on his skates and he's a great forechecker for us. He's a captain now so he has to lead by example."

Senior tri-captain Joe

Fitzpatrick, who will play right wing on the first or second line, will miss the first two or three games due to a broken leg he suffered in the Thanksgiving Day football game.

The third and fourth lines, Doyle said, are interchangeable, depending on who is playing well at the time. Junior center Billy Barter, sophomore left winger Rich Stone and junior right winger Mike McGonagle make up the third line. On the fourth line, freshman Chris Tufo is at center, junior Tim Coughlin at right wing and freshman Paul Graham at left wing.

Snowling. Juniors John Mateu, Andy Flores and Jim Kuhn will rotate for the sixth spot.

"Duggan and Kelley are the backbone of the blue line," Doyle said. "There are questions concerning the depth of our defense. They'll be on the ice every other shift. Both are heads-up defencemen. They move the puck extremely well and don't make too many mistakes."

Junior netminders Bruce Maggio and Matt Peters have been called up from the jayvee team to fill the void left behind from the graduation of Matt Gregory, Pat O'Donnell and Matt Delorey.

"I'm pleased with both of them," Doyle said. "They will both see duty this season."

Pasta Sauce Receives Heart Healthy Mark

(NAPS) -- Frederico Fellini once said that life is a combination of magic and pasta. Fellini didn't know how right he was. Now it turns out that Italian pasta sauce is not only tasty, it's good for your heart.

Francesco Rinaldi Original Traditional No Salt

Added Pasta Sauce has received the American Heart Association's heart-check mark.

The distinctive red heart-check mark, signifying that the product meets the Association's criteria for saturated fat and cholesterol certified for healthy people over age two, is now featured on the label.

The American Heart Association's heart-check mark program, created in 1995, is designed to provide consumers with an easy, reliable way to identify and select heart-healthy foods. The program guidelines for official certification require foods to be low in cholesterol, fat and saturated fat; contain no more than 480 milligrams of sodium per serving; and contain at least 10 percent of the minimum daily values for one or more of six primary nutrients: protein, dietary fiber, vitamins A and C, calcium and iron.

A bowl of pasta with red sauce that carries the heart-check mark offers a perfect solution for the health-conscious and fast-paced lifestyles of today's consumers, who also don't want to scrimp on taste.

Research shows 69 percent of grocery shoppers recognize the mark, and 88 percent find it helpful.

Evaluation Of Impact Quincy

By ROBERT SHAW, Ph.D.

The goal of Impact Quincy is to reduce the use of alcohol by Quincy youth, ages 12-17. A multi-pronged media campaign educates adults and youth in the community to the realities of alcohol use by Quincy youth and ways of encouraging young people not to use alcohol. Evaluation plays an important part in this program in several ways.

Surveys of children in the schools and adults in the community show us the level of alcohol use by Quincy youth, and concerns of youth and adults regarding alcohol use. This information is used to develop the messages of the media campaign. For example, most youth and adults in Quincy believe that the large majority of teenagers in Quincy drink alcohol. But the reality is that considerably fewer than half of the youth in Quincy have had a single drink of alcohol in the past month.

It is important to get this message out to youth so they do not believe that "everyone is doing it, and I should too." In fact, if teenagers want to be like "everyone else," they should abstain from drinking. Surveys of parents in Quincy find that only three-quarter of them are confident that they can detect signs that their children are drinking or that parties their children attend are serving alcohol. Even fewer are confident that they can tell if their children's friends are drinking.

These are issues that will be addressed in the media campaign. It is important to determine if a community program is having a positive effect. We want to know that the media campaign is helping people understand what they can do to reduce underage drinking, and if the youth of Quincy are actually drinking less.

Surveys of adults in Quincy at the beginning of the program in 2000 and at the end of the program in 2002 will demonstrate if parents and other adults know more about how to keep underage youth from drinking. Surveys of alcohol and other drug use in the schools in 2000 and 2002 will show us if Quincy teenagers are more aware of the dangers of alcohol use, and if few teenagers are drinking.

'The reality is that considerably fewer than half of the youth in Quincy have had a single drink of alcohol in the past month.'

Stay tuned.

Impact Quincy editorial is a series of high-impact activities published once a month in The Quincy Sun, a format that addresses critical substance abuse issues such as underage drinking in the City of Quincy.

Using Emotional Free Techniques Reduce Stress For The Holidays: Live Better, Longer

What is the number one reason that life expectancy is shortened? Stress.

Certainly the holiday season creates many stressors of varying degrees in our lives. Family gatherings, gifts, expectations, traveling and added responsibilities. Holiday stress has even been linked to heart attacks. All of this comes in a climate of uncertainty since the Sept. 11 attack.

To deal with these concerns is an effective new stress-reducing strategy called EFT (Emotional Freedom Techniques). By simply tapping on a series of stress-relief points on the body, you can use these techniques to clear stuck emotions and self-defeating patterns. Most people report lasting results. And anyone can do it, including children.

Rudolph Ballentine, M.D., author of Radical Healing, calls EFT "the medicine of the future." For anyone who wants to live longer and enjoy life more during the holidays (and the rest of the year), EFT can be an invaluable aid.

EFT originated in the early 1980s. Dr. Roger Callahan, a psychologist, discovered that tapping on certain acupuncture points while saying an affirmation could produce remarkable results.

In 1991 Gary Craig refined and simplified Dr. Callahan's techniques and called them EFT, the Emotional Freedom Techniques. Now Phillip and Jane Mountrose have written a book on the subject, Getting Thru to Your Emotions with EFT: Tapping into Your Hidden Potential.

Teachers and healers, the Mountroses have incorporated EFT into their own holistic healing processes called the Getting Thru Techniques (GTT), which help people identify and heal deeper issues in their lives.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It is an interesting phenomenon how two people view the same situation so differently, according to how they think.

Have you ever thought about why some people say a day is partly sunny and others, commenting on the day, will say it is partly cloudy? It is the optimist who remembers the sunshine; the pessimist remembers the dark clouds. . . Or if a glass of water is half full, the optimist will think of it that way. But the pessimist will say, "It's half empty!"

How you think and what you think can and does affect your actions. Lovable thoughts produce one result. Thoughts of hate produce the opposite results. It is true . . . "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

Wouldn't today be a good day to begin to think hopefully and look for opportunities in every difficulty instead of difficulty in every opportunity?

Being an optimist is much more fun than being a pessimist. . . It is more pleasant to be around an optimist than a pessimist. . . Don't you agree?

Medicare or Medicaid: Who Will Pay For Long Term Care

By DAGMAR M. POLLEX

A recent survey by the National Council on Aging (NCOA) revealed that 69% of Americans are worried about how they would finance long term care for themselves and their spouses. There is good reason for this concern: the cost of long term care is staggering. The average cost of nursing home care in eastern Massachusetts is over $6000 per month, and going up. At the same time, there is much confusion about who pays for long term care (probably because of the similar program names). Seventy-three percent of the NCOA survey respondents thought that Medicare pays for long term care costs. In fact, Medicare will only pay for the first three months of care, and then only under certain limited conditions. Ordinary health care plans do not pay for long term care either. Medicaid pays for nursing home care but requires you to impoverish yourself to qualify for benefits.

This means that it is important to look at your options (housing, medical and legal). There are almost always greater opportunities available if you plan ahead.

and if you learn about the options before you need them. This is one area where there is lots of misinformation floating around. It is also important to find someone who is trained in this area: the law, the rules are highly technical and change often.

Long term care insurance may be a good option to explore. One important advantage of having a long term care insurance policy is that it will provide payments for care at home and for assisted living. Generally, Medicaid only pays for nursing home care. And since most people would prefer to have the option of staying at home or in an assisted living residence, this can be a major benefit of having long term care insurance. Also, long term care insurance will protect your assets from the spend-down that Medicaid requires.

Wireless Zone Helping Families Affected By Neurofibromatosis

Shoppers who do some holiday shopping at the Wireless Zone Store, 1250 Hancock St. at Presidents Plaza, will be helping the thousands of families and individuals affected by Neurofibromatosis at the same time.

When patrons activate or upgrade a wireless telephone system from The Wireless Zone, the Quincy store will make a 25 cent contribution to the National Neurofibromatosis Foundation, a contribution matched by the Wireless Zone's corporate office.

Last year, those same 25 cent donations added up to over $40,000 being contributed to the National Neurofibromatosis Foundation's research, public education, and patient service programs.

Neurofibromatosis is the term used for a genetic disorder that causes tumors to grow along nerves anywhere in or on the body. NF can lead to blindness, deafness, brain and spinal tumors, severe disfigurements, bone abnormalities, developmental delays, and learning disabilities.

NF, a common disorder, affects both sexes and all races and ethnic groups equally. It is more prevalent than Cystic Fibrosis, Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy, and Huntington's disease combined. NF affects approximately 1 in 4,000 births.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Right now you are especially vulnerable to holiday scams that seek to take advantage of your generosity. Best advice: Check them out before you send out your checks.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The upcoming holiday season gives the Big Cat much to purr about. Relationships grow stronger, and new opportunities loom on the horizon, just waiting to be pounced on.

Medicare or Medicaid:

Who Will Pay For Long Term Care

By DAGMAR M. POLLEX

A recent survey by the National Council on Aging (NCOA) revealed that 69% of Americans are worried about how they would finance long term care for themselves and their spouses. There is good reason for this concern: the cost of long term care is staggering. The average cost of nursing home care in eastern Massachusetts is over $6000 per month, and going up. At the same time, there is much confusion about who pays for long term care (probably because of the similar program names). Seventy-three percent of the NCOA survey respondents thought that Medicare pays for long term care costs. In fact, Medicare will only pay for the first three months of care, and then only under certain limited conditions. Ordinary health care plans do not pay for long term care either. Medicaid pays for nursing home care but requires you to impoverish yourself to qualify for benefits.

This means that it is important to look at your options (housing, medical and legal). There are almost always greater opportunities available if you plan ahead.

and if you learn about the options before you need them. This is one area where there is lots of misinformation floating around. It is also important to find someone who is trained in this area of the law. The rules are highly technical and change often.

Long term care insurance may be a good option to explore. One important advantage of having a long term care insurance policy is that it will provide payments for care at home and for assisted living. Generally, Medicaid only pays for nursing home care. And since most people would prefer to have the option of staying at home or in an assisted living residence, this can be a major benefit of having long term care insurance. Also, long term care insurance will protect your assets from the spend-down that Medicaid requires.

He played semi-professional football and basketball for town teams.

He was a former member of the Knights of Columbus in East Weymouth.

Wireless Zone Helping Families Affected By Neurofibromatosis

Shoppers who do some holiday shopping at the Wireless Zone Store, 1250 Hancock St. at Presidents Plaza, will be helping the thousands of families and individuals affected by Neurofibromatosis at the same time.

When patrons activate or upgrade a wireless telephone system from The Wireless Zone, the Quincy store will make a 25 cent contribution to the National Neurofibromatosis Foundation, a contribution matched by the Wireless Zone's corporate office.

Last year, those same 25 cent donations added up to over $40,000 being contributed to the National Neurofibromatosis Foundation's research, public education, and patient service programs.

Neurofibromatosis is the term used for a genetic disorder that causes tumors to grow along nerves anywhere in or on the body. NF can lead to blindness, deafness, brain and spinal tumors, severe disfigurements, bone abnormalities, developmental delays, and learning disabilities.

NF, a common disorder, affects both sexes and all races and ethnic groups equally. It is more prevalent than Cystic Fibrosis, Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy, and Huntington's disease combined. NF affects approximately 1 in 4,000 births.

The mayor was scheduled to meet Tuesday morning with Senator Edward Kennedy and would hopefully meet later in the day with Senator John Kerry, Keating said.

Keating refused to elaborate as to which city projects were being discussed, citing the "confidential nature" of some of the projects and the complexity of ongoing negotiations, but he did say Sheets wanted to tie up as many loose ends as possible before the new administration of Mayor-Elect William Phelan takes office Jan. 7.

Sheets was scheduled to return to Quincy today (Thursday).

A six-term incumbent, Sheets lost by 17 votes to Phelan in the November election, the closest mayoral election in city history.

The Christmas Story

THE NATIVITY SCENE which graces McIntyre Mall outside of City Hall was recently dedicated by the Catholic Parishes of Quincy in loving memory of the Very Rev. Cornelius J. Heery, former pastor of Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy who died in 1996. Dedication ceremonies included a welcome by Thomas Koch, executive director of Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments; a telling of the Christmas Story by the Rev. John O'Brien, pastor of Sacred Heart Church; the blessing of the Nativity Scene by the Rev. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Church; and the unveiling of a plaque by Heery's sister, Mary Morton. The dedication also featured Christmas selections sung by the North Quincy High School Choir and the singing of "What Child Is This?" by Department of Elder Services Director Thomas Clasby. ## Average Valuations Going Up

Tax Vote Delayed But Estimated Bills By Jan. 1

By CRAIG SALTERS

Delays in state certification of city financial figures mean the city will send out third quarter property tax bills prior to the Jan. 1 deadline using estimated, rather than actual, tax rates.

Those preliminary tax bills, however, will also come with inserts preparing commercial and residential property owners for a fourth quarter tax bill using actual tax rates and reflecting average valuation increases of 24 percent for commercial property and 25 percent for residential property.

"Generally speaking, all values are increasing," Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the Board of Assessors, told city councilors at Monday night's public hearing on the tax classification percentage, the ratio used to shift more of the tax burden onto commercial property.

The average assessed value of a single-family home in Quincy for Fiscal Year 2001 was $154,100. Using the 25 percent increase "as a very rough estimate," Fantucchio said, that same property would be valued at $192,600.

Emphasizing that the valuation increases were averages and based only on preliminary totals,

Sheets Calls Personnel Office Break-In 'Very Foolish'

State Police, Special DA Join Probe

By CRAIG SALTERS

A special assistant district attorney and a Massachusetts state police detective have joined the investigation of the break-in into the city Personnel Director's Office at City Hall.

Daniel Keating, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, has admitted and apologized for forcing his way into the office of city Personnel Director Kevin Madden. He said he was looking for a firefighters' contract.

Sheets called the incident a "very foolish thing for him to do" but said he could not answer questions because of the ongoing investigation.

State Police Detective Lt. Robert Zepf from the state police headquarters in Framingham has been assigned to the case, said David Traub, spokesman for Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating.

In addition, Traub said, the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office has appointed Boston attorney George Jabour to serve as Special Assistant District Attorney on the case to handle any legal issues, such as search warrants, which might arise during the investigation.

Jabour is a former full-staff Assistant District Attorney of Suffolk County.

A state police detective was not assigned from DA Keating's Office, Traub explained, because of the need for unquestioned neutrality in the case.

"We decided it was best to have the investigation 'specialized-out,'" said Traub, who would not comment on the investigation itself because it was not the Norfolk County DA's case.

Also emphasizing the need for impartiality was Acting Quincy Police Chief William Falco, whose department requested state assistance for that very reason.

"Although the Quincy Police Department is fully confident it could perform its own investigation, we've requested assistance by the State Police so that there's no appearance of favoritism," Falco said Tuesday.

Falco confirmed that an investigation was moving forward concerning the Dec. 15 incident but declined to provide details of the investigation.

Mayor James Sheets described Keating's actions, which apparently involved forced entry into two office doors of Madden and later

Food, Clothing, Toys Donated To Many Families Putting Merry In Christmas For The Needy

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Quincy organizations in the true spirit of the holiday season are reaching out and helping needy families.

They include The Salvation Army, The Koch Club, The Quincy Lodge of Elks, Father Bill's Place, The Quincy Crisis Center, and The American Red Cross.

The Salvation Army will help 100 needy families as they distribute toys, new clothing and food vouchers to purchase food that can be cooked for a Christmas dinner.

According to Major Linda Jones, Salvation Army Temple Corps, more than 100 persons had applied to the Salvation Army for help.

The Red Cross distributed 900 filled stockings and toys and gifts to needy children in Quincy and surrounding communities. In Quincy there were 310 children who received gifts.

According to Jackie Gardner, director of the Red Cross South Area, more residents donated as well as businesses, schools. She noted that people seem to "all come together this holiday season to help the needy." Gardner said the Red Cross, South Area has been donating holiday gifts for about 20 years, and said the numbers "keep growing and growing every year."

The Quincy Lodge of Elks gave out 150 baskets to needy families throughout Quincy and South Shore with 125 from Quincy alone, according to Past Exalted Ruler Terry Cullen, who orchestrates the program for the Elks. The baskets include a complete meal with turkey and all the fixings for a complete holiday meal including fruit.

According to John Yazwinski, executive director of Father Bill's Place, the Interfaith Shelter for the Homeless, who said every guest gets a bag full of items including gloves, hats, certificates to stores, toothbrushes, toothpaste and deodorant. He said about 150 bags were given to individuals to 25 to 30 families. Yazwinski said gifts are also given to the nine homeless teenagers in the Teenage Shelter. They range from 13-17 years of age.

Rev. David Wooster, director of the Quincy Crisis Center said the giving of holiday gifts is a "continuation of what we do all year - deliver to families that can't get out to other places for assistance." He said gifts include a turkey, and all the fixings for a Christmas dinner and additional groceries to try to help them through the week.

For families with children 16 and under Wooster said the Center provides articles of clothing, books, hats and mittens and toys. Last year they helped 111 families with the complete meal plus additional families with turkey and toys for 26 other families. He said while some other agencies have finished taking names they continue to serve people right up to Monday. "We try to help right up to the end" Wooster said.

Thomas Koch, executive director of park, forestry and cemetery, said the Koch Club distributes food baskets which include a 16 pound turkey, a three pound ham, fresh fruits and vegetables and boxes of non-perishables to needy families. Also gift items and toys to 50 families including about 200 children.

Koch's father, that late Richard Koch, originated the food basket program back in 1952, a tradition Koch said has been easy to carry on because "generous donors contribute each year helping to keep the program going."

MAJOR DOUG JONES of the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps receives one of the Squantum School's donated boxes of food from students Brittany Bryson and Brittany Purtell, all part of the school's recent fifth grade holiday food drive to benefit the Salvation Army. Also lending a hand are Edward Hugill, Vivian Pham, Jessica Howlett, and Nicole Winters. In background is Fifth Grade Teacher Emily Blampied, organizer of the food drive.

Death Of Man In Burning Car Seen As Accidental

The death of a Weymouth man, whose body was found in a burning car early Monday morning at Marina Bay, is believed to be accidental.

Investigators said the preliminary results of an autopsy indicate there was no foul play.

The victim is believed to be Charles E. Cummings, Jr., 56, Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Keating's office said dental records would be checked in hopes of making a positive identification.

The body was discovered around 2:30 a.m. Monday when residents of a condominium at 1001 Marina Drive noticed the fire outside the building and called police.

The fire, investigators said, may have started in the engine compartment of the 1992 Cadillac Deville Cummings was driving.

Cummings reportedly was the father of three grown children and divorced.

Harold, D'Amico, McDermott Leaving Councillor Farewells Mark Year-End Meeting

The City Council held its last meeting of the year Monday night, giving its four departing members the opportunity to bid farewell to colleagues and friends and thank their longtime constituents.

"There is life after the City Council," outgoing City Council President Paul Harold told the three other "Class of '96" councillors who were also leaving office: Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, and Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin.

Harold, who decided not to seek re-election as a councillor at-large following a successful bid to become Norfolk County Register of Deeds, spoke from experience, reminding audience members that he gave a similar farewell speech to the council 22 years ago and thanking those who supported him in what he called "the second cycle of my political career."

Like his colleagues, Harold singled out for special thanks the work of City Clerk Joseph Shea, Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallens, and the City Clerk's Office for its efforts.

Harold also joined colleagues in praising the work of Clerk of Committees Jeanne Reardon but added that his relationship with Reardon began not as a councillor but as Reardon's Adams Shore paperboy during his youth.

Invoking the "Manet" motto found on the city's seal, Harold told present and future councillors that "the names may change" but the responsibility to the city's well-being would always remain.

McDermott thanked family, friends, and his new bride Tracy Wilson McDermott but finished his remarks by thanking the people of Ward 6 who elected him to three successive terms.

"I was privileged and honored to represent such a wonderful community," McDermott said.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, in turn, thanked "the people of South and West Quincy for their trust over the last six years" and added that he "loved every minute" as ward councillor.

D'Amico, who promised to remain active in city affairs, thanked his parents and family, including his grandmother who watched the meeting on television.

Outgoing Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin thanked his supporters for the "honor and privilege" of serving on the council, adding that two of his goals were to live up to the public trust and maintain the standards set by his Ward 5 predecessors.

Durkin also thanked his wife for her constant support during his years in office as a school committeeman and ward councillor.

McDermott, D'Amico, and Durkin also thanked outgoing Mayor James Sheets for his leadership during the decade and the "strong legacy" he left for the city.

The 2002 City Council will be sworn in Jan. 7.

Fire Takes Mother's Life

A three-alarm fire Tuesday morning at 1162 Sea St. claimed the life of a Quincy woman despite rescue efforts by Quincy firefighters and the woman's own two children.

Katherine Madden, age 48, died in the blaze which began around 9 a.m., said Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Quincy firefighters,

Gorman said, attempted to rescue the woman, who was terminally ill and bedridden, but were driven back by the heavy smoke and fire.

One of Madden's two children suffered minor burns to her hand as both children attempted to save their mother, Gorman said.

The cause of the fire, which started in the bed area, is unknown but Madden's motorized hospital bed is being checked as one possible cause.

In addition to the loss of life, the tragedy also caused an estimated $250,000 in damages to the home.

"The house is a total loss," Gorman said.

No Quincy firefighters reported injuries.

Two Different Scenes

It wasn't Watergate, but the weekend break-in at City Hall was pretty much as bizarre to many people.

"Stupid," Mayor James Sheets called it. To which his executive secretary, Dan Keating, agreed.

Keating reportedly has admitted and apologized for forcing his way into city Personnel Director Kevin Madden's office looking, he said, for a copy of the firefighters' contract.

State and Quincy police are still investigating and City Hall staffers and residents, stunned by it all, are waiting for a full explanation. And entitled to one.

The incident doesn't make any sense. And rumors, which quickly started flying around, need to be tracked down and nailed down as fact or fiction.

It's too bad it happened. The episode has put a damper on the holiday season in City Hall and in the community. And, unfortunately, has smudged Sheets's 12-year administration -- overall a good one -- in its waning days.

Just two days earlier there was a much better scene: Sheets and Mayor-elect William Phelan standing together manning a Salvation Army kettle in Quincy Center.

The pair, who were in a hard-hitting mayoral campaign, an historic election, and a recount, set political differences aside to do their part to help a worthy cause.

And, they looked like they were enjoying it. Smiling and chatting as they each rang a bell in front of Ryder's Home Decor and More store on Hancock St. It was their first public appearance together since the Nov. 6 election which Phelan won by 17 votes -- the closest margin in the city's history.

Sheets gave Phelan's two-year-old son, William Arthur, a big Papa bear-like smile when he came by with his mother, Tracey, to make a donation. Sheets handed him his bell to ring for a while.

And chatted with Phelan's mother, Theresa Phelan, when she came by.

Tracey, of course, is the daughter of former Mayor Arthur and Shirley Tobin.

William Arthur is named for his father and grandfather.

"It was almost Arthur William," Phelan laughed. "I'm only kidding."

Sheets and Phelan standing together was a picture for posterity.

Photographer John Black came by to snap a few and remarked: "What we need is a little snow to give it a Christmas touch."

"Oh, no!," Sheets replied. "No snow until after Jan. 7."

Phelan will be sworn in that date. Sheets was hoping to leave office before a big snowstorm to contend with. "You won't like it (snow)," he told Phelan. "I haven't liked it for 12 years."

Sheets, as mayor, was baptized with a snowstorm shortly after taking office in 1990.

Did Sheets have any mayoral advice for his successor?

He did. It was brief. "Keep things in perspective. And have time for your family."

MAYOR James Sheets and Mayor-elect William Phelan smile as Phelan's son, William Arthur, 2, tries his hand at ringing the bell for the Salvation Army. (Marilyn Manning Photo)

Phelan is looking forward to his inauguration which will take place Monday, Jan. 7 at 10 a.m. at Quincy High School.

People smiled as they came by the kettle, liking what they saw: the soon to be former mayor and new mayor side-by-side helping the Salvation Army help the needy this holiday season.

They shook hands before manning the kettle and again at the end of their stint.

"It was good for the community," said one observer. "And, I think, good for both of them."

For the community, it was like a sign of unity. With the uncertain times ahead -- the shaky economy and rising unemployment, we are going to need that unity -- lots of it.

The picture of Sheets and Phelan together was a scene to remember.

Hopefully, more so than the present one at City Hall.

WHEN BILL PHELAN is sworn in as mayor Jan. 7 it will only be a temporary political breather for his father-in-law former Mayor Arthur Tobin and the Tobin family.

After a family-unified grueling campaign to get Phelan elected, they are now gearing up for another one.

Mark Tobin will soon be officially announcing his candidacy for Norfolk County Registry of Probate.

Tobin, now an assistant juvenile court clerk, served 14 years as head administrative assistant in the Norfolk County Probate Court.

The family will also be out there campaigning for the re-election of Mark's brother, state Rep. Steve Tobin.

Arthur Tobin, now clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court, is looking more and more like the patriarch of a political dynasty.

TIM CAHILL is wrapping things up for his bid for state treasurer.

Cahill is about to file the necessary papers with the Campaign and Political Finance Office, to change his election committee from county treasurer/city councillor to state treasurer.

He reportedly already has over $200,000 in his war chest for the state-wide campaign.

His decision to run is expected to touch off a scramble for his county treasurer post.

MERRY CHRISTMAS from QUINCY, MASS.

Largest Christmas Tree in United States.
85 feet high contributed by Retail Merchants.

THIS EARLY 1930's postcard is one of the favorites of Quincy Sun readers who look forward to seeing it at Christmas. This is the seventh year it has appeared at popular request. It is a view of what was claimed to be the largest Christmas tree in the United States erected in front of the new art deco Granite Trust building at the intersection then known as Granite Five Corners. On the left was Howard Johnson's restaurant, and at the entrance to the bank lobby was Flagg's cigar shop and the Beech's newsstand. On the right was Homer's Jewelry now the site of Rogers Jewelry store. The merchants division of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce donated the 85-foot tall Christmas tree.

Taxpayers' Group Appoints Research Director

Alan Cousin, president of the new Quincy Taxpayers' Association, announces Robert C. Haley of Victoria Rd., Quincy, has been appointed the association's volunteer research director.

Haley, who is treasurer of the Town of Hanover, recently presented Cousin with a package of intensive research on the Quincy School Department budget. Cousin said he plans to release this package to the press soon.

"We have a few people in the association with the desire and ability to help with research and analysis, and we will need all of them," Cousin said. "But the depth and thoroughness of Bob Haley's work, along with his 17 years of professional experience in municipal finance, convinced me that he is the person to lead the effort."

Quincy's Shopping Bucks Nat'l Slump

By PAUL HAROLD

Alexander Purdon, executive vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, reported holiday shopping in Quincy Center was up, despite a national and regional sales slump. "Quincy is withstanding the downward trend experienced in other cities in the vicinity," he said.

Dec. 20-26
53 Years Ago

Purdon noted three factors contributing to Quincy's success: excellent parking, the Christmas lighting and the merchants' concern for "value."

Employment in the retail sector increased 12 percent from October, making it the largest increase in the state.

CITY TO KEEP HALF MOON ISLAND

The proposed sale of Half Moon Island was halted this week when Mayor Charles Ross decided to hold the property for future city needs.

The 40-50 acre sand bar off the coast of Adams Shore was taken from the Boston Sand and Gravel Company for back taxes. Two bids of $300 were made by Charles McCormick of Rockland St. and David Kneeland of Sea St. who wanted exclusive clamming rights to the island.

The mayor said the city should keep the island as a source for fill for the reconstruction of Quincy Shore Drive.

HIGHEST PEACETIME EMPLOYMENT AT FORE RIVER

Frank Leahy of Bethlehem Steel said with 7,700 employees, Fore River reached the highest peacetime employment in its 63-year history. The number was doubled from last year.

He noted that while the total number of employees had increased there were some temporary furloughs in some of the yard's 40 departments, while in others there were second and third shifts working 24 hours a day.

A recent $10 million contract was to build engines for the Sparrows Point yard. Navy work scheduled included the refitting of the USS Salem and the USS Northampton, known as the ghost ship.

Christmas Pumpkin Cheesecake

On holidays, because our family gets bigger each year, we each contribute a favorite entree or dessert. Here is one from our daughter Rita which has received raves galore!

It's pumpkin cheesecake and one of the most mouth-watering desserts ever! It's going to be one of our Christmas desserts.

Rita's Pumpkin Cheesecake

- 1 1/4 cups graham cracker crumbs
- 1/4 cups sugar
- 1/3 cup butter or margarine

Filling

- 2 pounds softened cream cheese
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1/3 cup flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon allspice
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups pumpkin puree

Mix crust ingredients together in a bowl. Press evenly in a 9 pinch springform pan with back of spoon. Cook in 375 degree oven for 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove and cool. Reduce heat to 325.

Place cream cheese in a large mixing bowl and beat until smooth. Add spices, sugar, flour and eggs, and beat for one minute until well blended. Add pumpkin and blend for another minute until smooth.

Cover outside of springform pan tightly with aluminum foil. Pour filling into pan. In a roasting pan add some hot water making in half full and then set the pan in it and place it in the oven. Bake for 1 1/2 hours. The outside edges should be set, but the center will still be loose. Turn off the oven and let the cake stand in the open oven for 30 minutes.

Transfer to wire rack, remove foil and let cool completely. Remove springform sides carefully, and place covered cake in the refrigerator for 4-5 hours. After that, it cuts like a dream.

Wollaston Garden Club Beautifies Busy Intersection

Volunteers from the Wollaston Garden Club recently completed a beautification effort at the intersection of Beale St. and Newport Ave. in Wollaston.

Volunteers have added a host of new plantings, a stone walkway, and a handsome granite bench to the area.

"We are very grateful to the women of the Wollaston Garden Club for their efforts in helping spruce up this area," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park and Forestry Department. "It is through the volunteer work of benevolent groups like the Wollaston Garden Club, the Seaside Gardeners of Squantum, and other organizations that we all enjoy a cleaner and greener Quincy."

The Wollaston Garden Club spent more than three weeks preparing the area and planting the materials and are now in the process of maintaining the new plantings.

The organization's beautification efforts are seen by thousands of residents and commuters each day. In addition, the area is now more easily recognized by the granite bench with "Wollaston" emblazoned on its side.

"I would like to give special thanks to the volun-

Children's Advocacy Center Founded In Norfolk County

Many hands make for light work and dealing with child sexual, physical, and emotional abuse can be some of the heaviest work conceivable.

That's where the Children's Advocacy Center of Norfolk County comes in.

"As much as we can do separately, we can do more with a more comprehensive and seamless system," Norfolk District Attorney William Keating said at the December ceremony establishing the CAC's founding membership.

After Keating and a handful of others spoke, leaders from more than 50 agencies came, one-by-one, to the podium to sign the interagency agreement pledging to "support the multidisciplinary team approach to child abuse investigation, prosecution, and follow-up medical and mental health services."

The signing agencies varied from local police departments, who are often the first officials to contact a child victim, to the hospitals where they are brought for treatment, to the state and community agencies who provide them with the services they need in the months and years to follow.

Geoffrey King Wins Three Sailing Awards

Geoffrey King of Merrymount, an eighth grader at the Broad Meadows Middle School, received three awards at the 46th annual junior awards ceremony at the South Boston Yacht Club.

He was sponsored in the sailing program by his grandfather, John Valencius of Quincy, who is 94 years old a life member of the club.

Geoffrey received the McMann Essay Scholarship Award, the Marlinspike Seamanship Award and his U.S. Sailing "Small Boat Sailor" certificate.

It was also signed by DA Keating, whose job it is to bring those who hurt children to justice and to support and protect their victims.

Quincy Police Lt. Thomas Malvesti, South Shore Mental Health CEO Harry Shulman, Dr. Michael McManus of South Shore Hospital, Anne Priestley of Quincy-based Family Service of Greater Boston, Carol Ann Sowden of the Dianne DeVanna Center, Quincy Social Worker Kim McNamara, Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti, and South Shore Mental Health Center CEO Dr. Peter Scanlon were among the more than 50 who signed the agreement.

"I cannot thank the Quincy Police and the Quincy community enough for their part in this," Keating said. "The CAC model, coordinating and focusing the work of discrete agencies into a single effort, is working across the country to make caring for abused children more effective and less traumatic. The children of Norfolk County deserve no less than the best that we, together, can do."

USS Salem Restoration Training Opportunities

The USS Salem and the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum in Quincy will hold a volunteer "Ship Restoration Team" training class aboard ship Saturday, Dec. 29, and Saturday, Jan. 5.

Training classes will be from 9 a.m. until noon and will include ship's maintenance, upkeep, and restoration as well as surface preparation and preservation techniques.

Trainees will help to restore the ship's Gunner's Office, preparing it as a new exhibit. Once complete, volunteers will participate in the exhibit's Grand Opening Ceremony.

An in-depth tour of the USS Salem, history regarding Naval Shipbuilding, and information regarding the various museums aboard the ship will be included in the training.

Volunteers would be required to be available to the Ship Restoration Team a minimum of two days per month.

Refreshments will be served at training and graduates will receive a Restoration Team Member T-shirt. Former crew members, shipyard workers, armed forces personnel, retirees, and history buffs are encouraged to attend.

To reserve a spot in the training class, call the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum at (617) 479-7900.

1000 Southern Artery Seniors Complete Citizens Fire Academy

Dozens of seniors from the 1000 Southern Artery Senior Center completed the newly created Citizens Fire Academy, receiving certificates at ceremonies held recently in the East Wing of the center.

Graduates were also treated to demonstrations of firefighting techniques and equipment, including the use of QFD's Ladder One ladder truck to reach the roof of the senior complex.

"The response has been incredible," said Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton, who worked with the Quincy Fire Department to create the program.

Newton said the Citizens Fire Academy is modeled after the citizen training courses run by the Quincy Police Department, adding that officials are discussing the possibility of a second course in the fall.

The new program, explained Deputy Chief Paul Cuddy, Jr., is designed to educate residents about the Quincy Fire Department and how it does its job and also about fire prevention and safety measures that residents can take to ensure that they and their families remain fire safe.

The Citizens Fire Academy, Deputy Chief Cuddy said, consists of four sessions, each session lasting approximately two hours, and covers the following general topics: the history of fire and the fire service in America; the history and organization of the QFD; careers in the fire service; the science of fire; the principles of fire prevention; smoke detectors and sprinklers systems; home/building escape planning; firefighter gear; self-contained breathing apparatus; the tools of the firefighting profession; fire department pumps; fire department aerial apparatus; and fire extinguishers.

State Fire Marshal Stephen Coan visited the Citizens Fire Academy recently and said he was impressed with what he saw.

"I very much applaud the Quincy Fire Department for their forward thinking on this issue," said Coan, who added Quincy's Citizens Fire Academy was one of only a handful across the state and would be used as a model at the annual Public Fire Education Conference in Westford. "Our most effective approach (against fire fatalities and damages) is through education and this is a very innovative program."

The Quincy Fire Department has identified four groups it feels would benefit most from the Citizens Fire Academy: elderly citizens; high school students; organizations from the Asian community; and girl and boy scout organizations.

It is anticipated that the first year of the Citizens Fire Academy will be used to develop, evaluate, and refine the content of the program and to present a pilot program for said groups, with each program tailored to meet a group's specific needs.

For more information on the Citizens Fire Academy, contact Deputy Chief Cuddy at (617) 376-1034.

Nine Residents To Carry Torch City To Host Olympic Torch Relay Dec. 27

The Olympic Torch will make a historic visit to Quincy next Thursday, Dec. 27.

Quincy was chosen by the Salt Lake Organizing Committee to host an Olympic Torch Ceremony, one of only two such ceremonies in Massachusetts.

The torch will be carried by selected runners through Quincy next week.

"We are honored that the Salt Lake Organizing Committee would choose Quincy to participate in the Torch Relay and be a host community for this historic event," said Mayor James Sheets. "The torch symbolizes the best of athletics and competition; those that compete for the love of sport. We are proud to be associated with such a great event."

The 2002 Olympic Torch Relay began in Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4. The flame will arrive in Olympic Stadium in Salt Lake City Feb. 8, 2002 and will remain there for the duration of the 2002 Winter Olympic Games.

It will travel more than 11,500 miles and make its way through 46 states in 65 days. The torch will travel an average of 208 miles per day, being carried an average of 12 hours per day.

The torch will enter Quincy from Braintree on Quincy Avenue. It will be carried up to Quincy Center for the Olympic Torch Ceremony on Hancock Street in Quincy Center, before being carried north on Hancock Street to Boston.

Chevy and Coca-Cola, the major corporate sponsors of the Olympic Torch Relay, will provide entertainment for the ceremony, including the Olympic Torch Relay Interactive Truck.

Prior to the Olympic Torch Ceremony in Quincy Center, the City of Quincy will sponsor entertainment for families and children. There will be music and lots of fun starting at 12:30 p.m. in Quincy Center by City Hall.

The Quincy torchbearers are:

Karen Cashman-Lehman and her brother Ron Cashman will carry it through Quincy Center. Karen was a 1994 Winter Olympic bronze medal winner in short-track team speed-skating as a member of the U.S. 3,000-meter relay team.

Ray Cattaneo will also carry it though Quincy Center. Cattaneo has been a volunteer coach in American Legion baseball for 30 years and has been involved in a host of other charitable and benevolent causes.

Dan Coughlin will carry it along Quincy Avenue. For more than two decades, Coughlin has improved the lives of hundreds of Quincy youngsters as a dean, teacher and coach at North Quincy High School.

Geoff Hennessy will carry it in Boston on the Mass. Ave. Bridge. Hennessy, Quincy Track Club organizer and scholastic track coach, has given more than 25 years of volunteer instruction for the youth of Quincy.

Gaetano Spinelli and his son Guy Spinelli will carry it on Hancock Street near Merrymount Park. David McCarthy and Donald Cornell will carry the torch in Boston.

Each runner will carry the torch a previously designated distance of 0.2 miles. In addition to the above-mentioned names, corporate sponsors Coca-Cola and Chevy have host torchbearers that will carry the torch through Quincy.

The torchbearers were chosen from more than 210,000 people that were nominated. They were nominated by a 50-100 word essay and chosen based on the following criteria: inspire others to greater achievement, inspire their communities, embody the inspirational spirit of the Olympic movement and motivate others by encountering and overcoming adversity.

For more information on Quincy's Olympic Torch Relay participation, call Rhonda Merrill, director of events and tourism, at 617-376-1296.

Sheets: Olympic Torch In Quincy To Be 'Proudest Moment'

After more than a decade as the city's top official, Mayor James Sheets can claim many proud moments in office, including the opening of the Clifford Marshall Elementary School, the saving of what is now Quincy Medical Center, and the recent addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library, to name just a few.

But as he prepares to leave office in January after six consecutive terms in office, Sheets says his proudest moment as mayor is not behind him but ahead of him, namely: the carrying of the Olympic torch through the city Thursday, Dec. 27.

"For me, that will be the highlight of my 12 years," said Sheets. "I take extreme pride that we were one of only four Massachusetts communities chosen for the honor."

What makes the carrying of the torch through Quincy so special, the mayor said, was that the city did not seek the honor but rather had the honor bestowed upon it.

"We were sought for that honor because we're a great city," said Sheets, adding: "It will be Quincy people who will carry that torch."

The Olympic torch will visit the city as it makes its way across the country in time for the 2002 Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Ginger Betty's Bakery Wins 'Best Of Show' Award

Ginger Betty's Bakery of Quincy recently received the "Best of Show" award in the annual gingerbread competition at the World Trade Center Artisan Holiday Craft Festival in Boston.

The winning entry captured the "whimsical and fun loving spirit" found in the magical land of Harry Potter and featured gingerbread interpretations of Hogwarts Castle, the surrounding Forbidden Forest, and characters such as Hedwig, Hagrid, and Harry Potter himself.

Ginger Betty's Bakery, owned by Beth Veneto and located on 10 Tyler St. in North Quincy, is a regular at the World Trade Center Artisan Holiday Craft festival and in past years has created a replica of Walt Disney's Cinderella's Castle, The Emerald City from The Wizard of Oz, and the Candyland board game for the charity event.

Basketball Great Ernie DiGregorio Visits Atlantic Middle School

Former NBA player Ernie DiGregorio donned his old Celtics uniform recently and paid a visit to Atlantic Middle School to promote the "Savings Makes 'Cents'" program sponsored by the Commonwealth's Department of the State Treasurer.

Joining "Ernie D." was Kathryn Hannon, director of the program, which is designed to teach elementary school children the ABCs of money management.

As part of the "Savings Makes 'Cents'" program, local schools and banks work together to teach children basic monetary concepts, including how to open a savings account, the origin of money, basic budgeting concepts, and what interest is.

A recent project conducted by the American Consumers for Education and Competition (ACEC) demonstrates the need for financial literacy programs in schools: the average score on a money skills test given to more than 800 high school seniors across the nation was 36.6 percent.

Morrissey Supports $215 Million Human Services Funding

The state Senate has approved over $215 million in state aid to programs that vulnerable citizens of the Commonwealth rely upon, reports Senator Michael Morrissey.

He said the Senate has passed two supplemental budgets in addition to the annual state budget and that human service programs were top priorities in both.

"When our economy takes a downturn so can the quality of life for those who rely on the state for basic services," Morrissey said. "It is appropriate that these additional budgets direct funding to children, the disabled, the disadvantaged and seniors."

"Throughout the year, the Senate has been fighting for a better budget for kids, seniors and working people," said Senate President Tom Birmingham, "and with these human service allocations we are again declaring our priorities."

"I am pleased the Senate

took this action," said Morrissey, who made mental health and mental retardation funding his top priority because of the serious need to help some of the most vulnerable citizens.

One budget was also approved by the House and has been submitted to the Governor. That budget includes funding for a number of Senate priorities, including:

- $12.5 million for Adult Basic Education.
- $16.6 million for Department of Mental Health.
- $33.8 million for Department of Mental Retardation, including $15 million to help satisfy a court order.

• $14 million for emergency family shelters.

• $2.5 million for AIDS services run by the Department of Public Health.

• $500,000 for the New England Board of Higher Education to restore the New England compact and allow students to qualify for in-state rates at out-of-state public colleges.

Morrissey said he was also pleased that the Senate supported additional funding through a supplemental budget that, having passed the Senate, is now before the House:

• $60 million the Department of Social Services, with the majority of the funding supporting group care, adoption and foster care services.

• $25 million for the Department of Transitional Assistance, including $15 million for Aid to Families with Department Children.

• $9.8 million for scholarships including $1 million for the foster care financial aid program.

• $3.4 million for Elder Home Care.

• $1.2 million for Mass Rehab Commission.

"Our economic circumstances are forcing tough decisions but supporting $215 million for these programs was an easy decision," said Morrissey, who added he hopes the Governor soon signs the first budget and the House soon passes the second.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

BATTLING BAD BREATH

About 65 million Americans suffer from halitosis (bad breath) at some point in their lives. Many believe onions and garlic are the culprits, but these foods are rapidly absorbed into the bloodstream. The blood is then carried back to the lungs, where they food smells are released by the lungs and evaporate into the air, causing food odors from the mouth. After they run this course, however, the breath eventually returns to normal through evaporation. More problematic are the bacteria that cannot survive in oxygenated areas and hide in the thick surface in the back of the tongue. They emit a sulfur compound that causes the offending odor. This problem must be addressed with brushing or scraping the tongue.

Interestingly, some people with this problem don't have much bad breath when they just blow air from their mouths. It's when they begin to talk that the odor makes itself evident. Our aim is to provide gentle, compassionate dental care of the highest quality. If you would like to schedule an appointment, please call us at 617-479-6220. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we invite your questions about this and other oral health issues. We're currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Brushing teeth, without brushing the tongue, is only about 10 to 20 percent effective in removing odor caused by offending bacteria at the back of the tongue.

Tax Vote Delayed But Estimated Bills By Jan. 1

Fantuccio did say there existed the possibility of a "substantial increase" in fourth quarter tax bills reflecting the increased valuations.

The delayed certification also means that the tax classification percentage and corresponding tax rates will not be submitted this year by Mayor James Sheets and set by the 2001 City Council, but will be submitted next year by Mayor-Elect William Phelan and set by the 2002 City Council, which includes four new members and a new council president.

Fantuccio said the Department of Revenue began reviewing city financial figures last week but called Monday requesting additional data.

Although she said she expected no significant changes in the numbers, the DOR request means the city will have to re-submit its figures for certification.

Those figures, she said, should be certified by the end of February "at the latest," providing time for public hearings on tax rates in March and the sending of fourth quarter tax bills by April 1, which would be due May 1.

Fantuccio said the state has waived the law mandating that the third quarter payment use actual tax rates, thus allowing the city to issue its tax bills on time and avoid costly short-term borrowing.

The downside of that decision is that the difference between estimated tax owed and actual tax owed will be lumped into the fourth quarter bill only, raising the fear, some councillors said, that the taxpayer could get "whacked" with their last payment.

Mayor James Sheets, who favors maintaining the city's tax classification at 169 percent, said the statewide "time crunch" is the result of the late approval of the state budget.

"It is causing a problem for the city," the mayor said, adding that all communities in the state are seeking DOR certification in the same short period.

Commenting Tuesday, Mayor-Elect William Phelan reaffirmed an earlier commitment made at a recent public hearing to submit a 169 percent tax classification.

News that there would be no vote on classification or tax rates until next year overshadowed Monday night's public hearing on the matter but those in favor of keeping the city's 169 percent classification and those in favor of raising it were still well represented.

"We (residents) have had enough," said Mateo Pannarelli of Taylor St. who spoke in favor of raising the classification. "It's time to give us a break."

Others speaking in favor of at least some raise in the classification rate, an idea championed Monday night by Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley and apparent Council President-Elect Daniel Raymond, included Ann Yeomans, Carol Evans, Patrick Joyce, Julie Berberan, and Allan Cousin, founder and president of the recently formed Quincy Taxpayers Association.

Equally passionate against the raising of the percentage were members of the Quincy business community, including Quincy Business Council Chairman Anthony Agnitti, Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino, and Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA).

Business leaders made the case that they already paid 2.1 times that of the residential property owner and that raising the percentage would push future growth away from the city.

"You can't tax a business that's closed," said James Mullaney, who spoke both as a business owner and resident.

attempts to conceal the act by switching office doors, as a "very foolish thing for him to do," but said he was unable to answer questions because of the ongoing investigation.

Attempts by The Sun to reach Keating, who reportedly admitted to the break-in and called his actions "stupid," adding that he sought a copy of a firefighters' contract in Madden's office, were unsuccessful and Keating was not in attendance at Monday night's meeting of the City Council.

No files appear to be missing from Madden's office and, as of press time, no charges had been filed in the case.

Ballot Deadline Dec. 31 Nominations Coming In For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations are coming in for The Quincy Sun's 17th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Carol Herbai was honored for her dedication, enthusiasm and inspiration as a volunteer for a half century at Quincy Medical Center, the American Red Cross and a leper colony.

Herbai was selected from among 37 nominees submitted by Sun readers. A panel of judges representing a cross-section of the community made the final decision.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears on Page ?? of this week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

After nominations close Monday, Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn. Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 31.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by

Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his/her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense), 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch, Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE) and longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Olin Taylor for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love," 1996.

Robert Derbes for his volunteer work and many contributions to the community during a "life-long love affair" with his native Quincy, 1997.

Robert "Bob" Curry for his long-time volunteer work in worthy civic and charitable causes as a member of many local organizations, including the Quincy Partnership, Quincy Commission on the Family and the Marie A. Curry Foundation which provides free mammograms for individuals not covered by health insurance, 1998.

Ronald G. Adams, who has given freely of his time to guide and inspire his Broad Meadows Middle School students in highly acclaimed efforts to right social wrongs and oversights, both local and worldwide, 1999.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Monday, Dec. 31.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Lead Paint Safety Funds Available For 40 More Units

The Quincy-Weymouth Consortium that administers the Lead Paint Safety Initiative (LPSI) announces its final promotional campaign to use its remaining grant for lead paint hazard control and its pilot employment and training program.

LPSI is funded through a $2,000,000 Lead-Based Paint Hazard Control grant that the Consortium received in 1999 from the US Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Created through Title X of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1999, the mission of the HUD grant is to "reduce the exposure of young children to lead-based paint hazards in their homes."

Research studies (e.g., National Academy of Sciences, 1993 and HUD, 1997) have demonstrated that childhood lead poisoning causes reduced intelligence, low attention span, reading and learning disabilities, and has been linked to juvenile delinquency, behavioral problems, and many other adverse health effects.

Lead is highly toxic and affects virtually every system of the body. It can damage a child's kidneys and central nervous system and cause anemia. At high exposure levels, lead poisoning can cause coma, convulsions, and death. At low levels (10 micrograms of lead per deciliter of blood or ug/dL), the neurotoxic effects of lead have the greatest impact on children's developing brains and nervous systems, causing reductions in IQ and inattentiveness, reading and learning difficulties, hyperactivity or aggression. Exposure can also result in reduced physical stature and impaired hearing.

Despite past efforts to address the issue, nearly one million children in the United States have lead poisoning. The problem is noted to be more acute among children in pre-1946 dwellings.

Nationally, children in Medicaid represent a high-risk group, comprising 80 percent of children with blood levels 15 ug/dL and above. Similarly, 16 percent of low-income children living in housing prior to 1946 are lead poisoned. Without prevention and control efforts, a large number of young children may continue to be exposed to lead paint hazards.

Said Planning Director Richard Meade: "Our past efforts have generated some success in reducing the threat of lead paint poisoning in hundreds of homes but there remain a large number of units occupied by low and moderate-income households with children that have lead paint."

Close to 85 percent of houses in Quincy and Weymouth were built before 1979.

According to HUD Data, about 65.5 percent, or 24,700 units, in Quincy and 65 percent, or 14,220 units, in Weymouth contain lead paint. It is estimated that the number of children ages 0-6 years who are at risk for lead poisoning in Quincy and Weymouth are 3,688 for Quincy and 3,249 for Weymouth.

Moreover, a concern in Quincy and Weymouth is the increasing number of Asian-American households who should be made aware of the threat. The Asian population is now estimated to be between 15.4 percent (2000 Census) and 25 percent. As

John Chen, the city's Asian Liaison Officer, explains, "Many Asians are not well informed on the risks of lead paint poisoning among children since that was not an issue in their homeland."

Massachusetts has been an advocate for addressing lead poisoning issues. Its Lead Law requires the removal or covering of lead paint hazards in homes built before 1978 where any children under six live. Owners are responsible with complying with the law. If a child is lead poisoned by lead hazards where the child lives, the owner is legally responsible. Also, an owner cannot evict or refuse to rent to anyone because of lead paint. Discrimination is against the law and carries penalties.

Unfortunately, lead abatement can be expensive. But that is where the grant comes in.

One family helped by the program were Stephen and Maureen Grey: "We were first-time homebuyers and were not aware of the dangers of lead paint until our child tested positive for lead poisoning."

With a new mortgage, the Greys had no place to turn until they were referred to the city's program.

By January 2002, the Consortium expects to have helped remove lead hazards from 85 housing units in Quincy and Weymouth.

There is available funding for about 40 more units. However, the grant will expire by early 2002. The Consortium has submitted a request for an extension. However, if it is unable to show that there are enough projects to fund, HUD may ask the Consortium to return the uncommitted funds.

Grant Administrator Angelito Santos says, "It would be unfortunate if homeowners and rental owners do not take advantage of these funds now because we

WHAT BUYERS WANT

For many buyers, the decision to move is often prompted by the desire for more bedrooms. Whether the extra bedroom is used for sleeping, a guestroom, an exercise room, a child's playroom, or hobby room/office, buyers want the versatility that the extra space affords them. With this in mind, sellers are encouraged to purge their homes of clutter to free up as many rooms as possible that could qualify as bedrooms. As for the master bedroom, most prefer to have it separated from the home's other sleeping quarters. And while the kitchen continues to remain the focus of a majority of buyers, many are placing increasing emphasis on such exterior features as a porch, deck, and patio.

If you're selling a home, it's to your advantage to clear rooms of clutter so that prospective buyers can get a true sense of the amount of space each room offers. At ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, our goal is to help sell your home quickly and ensure that you receive full market value. We provide sellers with a market analysis, advise them on how to increase the home's curb appeal, and coordinate open houses with qualified buyers. To give a home maximum exposure, we list it in the Multiple Listing Service and coordinate open houses. Call us at 617-328-1312, or visit us at 128 Mayor McGrath Highway.

worked hard to obtain this grant. We may not again have this kind of additional resource in the foreseeable future."

Only three communities in Massachusetts received this HUD grant in 1999 and no Massachusetts community was awarded this competitive grant in 2001.

Eligible applicants are owner-occupied or rental properties that are occupied by households whose income is at or below HUD's moderate income limits and with children under six. For example, the yearly income of a family of four should not exceed $52,500.

However, the Consortium also participates in the MHFA's Get the Lead Out Program which has a higher income limit. LPSI offers a 50 percent grant and a 50 percent loan for the remaining balance at either a zero percent or two percent-deferred interest rate.

It is common for homes built prior to 1978 to have lead paint hazards in or around windows, doors, exterior and interior walls, and ceilings. Related renovation work in Quincy could also receive additional grants and loans through the city's other housing rehabilitation programs.

In addition to upgrading their homes and saving on heating costs, a family that undertakes a $10,000 deleading project would earn a tax credit of $1,500. Then if they obtain a grant plus a zero-percent, 10-year loan from LPSI, they would save between $8,933 to $13,632 compared to a seven percent home equity loan or a credit card rate of 14 percent payable monthly also in 10 years.

Under Massachusetts Law, some work must be done by a licensed deleader. However, an owner or agent can perform some specific tasks so long as the home is inspected by a licensed lead inspector and the owner or agent is properly trained to perform the deleading work.

There is considerable risk if a homeowner and investor owner without proper training does deleading work on his own. Tom Barry, a Housing Specialist at the Office of Housing Rehabilitation, explains: "Scraping, sanding, or simply disturbing old lead-based paint can release large amounts of toxic lead dust. Studies have shown conclusively that most children are poisoned by invisible dust that is released when lead paint is peeling, damaged, or disturbed or when you open and close windows with lead paint."

Lead dust settles on floors and other surfaces. From there it can easily get onto children's hands or toys and into their mouth.

Applications for lead hazard control grants may be obtained from the following offices:

Office of Housing Rehabilitation, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, (617) 376-1050.

Neighborhood Housing Services, Hancock St., Quincy, (617) 770-2227.

Weymouth Office of Community Planning and Development, (781) 335-2000.

Many cases of childhood lead-poisoning cases, however, go undiagnosed and untreated because most poisoned children have no obvious symptoms. The only conclusive way to determine if your child is suffering from the effects of lead poisoning is with a blood lead test.

Unfortunately, a significant number of children are not given blood lead tests. State data show that in FY 2000, 46 percent and 41 percent of children 6-72 months were not screened in Quincy and Weymouth, respectively.

The test is simple, quick, and available in a doctor's office or clinics. Free blood screening is provided by the Quincy Health Department at (617) 376-1270 and the Weymouth Office of Planning and Community Development at (781) 335-2000.

In related news, the Consortium has just initiated its Deleading Training and Employment Program for Economically Disadvantaged Workers, a pilot program that seeks to: help contractors obtain qualified help in the lead abatement field which will enable them to bid on more jobs and to complete current contracts in a timely manner; increase the number of workers who are trained and skilled in lead abatement; and provide economically disadvantaged persons an opportunity to acquire job skills.

LPSI is working with various organizations such as the Department of Employment and Training, Department of Transitional Assistance, Father Bill's Place, the Quincy Housing Authority, and Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) in identifying participants for this program.

fying participants for this program.

The program is open to all contractors provided that they have all required licenses and insurance. They must be willing to provide construction work to the selected applicant and on-the-job training and supervision. They are expected to pay competitive wages based on the applicant's skills and experience.

The applicant for employment must be 18 years or older, a welfare recipient, dislocated worker, or economically disadvantaged individual whose household income is at or below 80 percent of the area median, pass a CORI background check, and be physically able to perform job functions.

The selected applicant will receive free training on lead paint abatement in early January, 2002. He or she should be willing and able to show up for work every day the contractor has work for them.

For more information about this employment and training program, call Nick Fisher at the Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development at (617) 376-1362.

Ronald Devera, Steven McHugh Commended Scholars

Quincy residents Ronald Devera and Steven McHugh, both seniors at Boston College High School, have been named Commended Scholars in the 2002 National Merit Scholarship Program.

A letter of commendation from the school and the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC), which conducts the program, will be presented by BC High Principal William Kemeza to Devera, McHugh, and 18 other scholastically talented seniors at Boston College High School.

Commended Students throughout the nation are being honored for their exceptional academic promise. Although they will not continue in the competition for Merit Scholarship awards to be offered next spring, Commended Students placed among the top five percent of more than 1.2 million students who entered the 2002 Merit Program by taking the 2000 SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

McHugh was also named an AP Scholar by the College Board in recognition of his exceptional achievement on the College-Level Advanced Placement (AP) Examinations. Only about 13 percent of the more than 700,000 students who took AP examinations in May 2001 performed at a sufficiently high level to merit the designation "Scholar."

THE PLAQUE on the new Nativity Scene on McIntyre Mall reminds passersby that the scene is dedicated in memory of the Very Rev. Cornelius J. Heery, who served as pastor of Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy from 1976 to 1996. The inscription reads "a gentle and humble servant of God whose influence extended far beyond his parish." The plaque was unveiled by Heery's sister, Mary Morton, during recent dedication ceremonies.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

Fifth grade students in Quincy public and parochial schools were invited again this year to submit articles for this special holiday section.

The theme is: "If I Could Have One Wish Come True This Holiday Season It Would Be . . ."

We at The Sun are happy to share their thoughts with you. Publishing these articles each year has become a tradition that we all look forward to and we hope that you do, too.

We want to thank Janet DiTullio, Director of Curriculum, for again coordinating the public schools' participation and the principals and classroom teachers of those schools.

We also thank Ms. Elizabeth Mirasolo, principal of St. Joseph's School and Sister Anne Marie Ghiloni, principal of Sacred Heart School and the teachers of those schools for their participation and cooperation.

To all who took part we extend warmest season's greetings and wishes for a happy, healthy New Year.

Thank you all, most sincerely.

December is a time of bright holiday decorations and colorful wrapping paper. It's a time of parties and family gatherings and shopping for our favorite people. But traditionally, it's also a period when many people experience depression, otherwise known as "the holiday blues."

And in our post-September 11 world, more people may be affected than usual.

Typical holiday depression is caused by a variety of factors. People who are alone often feel especially down during a time that places so much emphasis on family and friends. This is especially true for anyone who has experienced a significant loss during the year.

But depression can also result from the fatigue caused by holiday preparations, the stretching of the household budget beyond its limits, family, tensions, over-commercialization of the holidays, lack of time for oneself, and unrealistic expectations.

Even people who don't experience depression during the holidays can have other stress reactions such as headaches, excessive drinking, over-eating, and difficulty sleeping. And there are many among us who already have some of these symptoms as a result of the terrorist threat.

Holiday festivities may be dampened this year by absent family members, letters and packages that may appear suspicious, lingering concerns about cities and shopping malls, and a variety of vague rumors and suspicions.

However, the unique concerns that surround the holiday period of 2001 make it even more important to seek warmth and joy and togetherness. We just may have to be more creative and flexible this year in planning our celebrations.

If some of the usual people can't make it for a holiday dinner at your house, consider meeting halfway for a restaurant dinner. Stay close to those who are far away by exchanging videos, talking more on the phone, and communicating via computer. Don't allow your own holidays to be spoiled by someone's absence and don't make a relative feel guilty because he chooses not to travel.

Be especially organized this year to allow time for mailing delays and clearly mark your packages. Don't increase your stress by thinking of an elderly parent or favorite niece without a remembrance from you during Christmas or Chanukah. If the economy is hitting you hard, send photos or hand-created items to stay close. Indeed, regardless of your economic situation, this is a particularly good year to share photos of happy times and messages of support. Boosting the mood of family and friends should be given a high priority.

Give thought to new holiday activities that will replace those that may not be possible this year. What a perfect time to find someone in town who needs extra cheering and provide it. Call an old friend whom you haven't seen for years and catch up. Attend holiday musical events, tree-lighting ceremonies, religious services, and charity functions that will connect you with others in the community and lighten your spirit.

Don't, however, look to holiday spirits to boost your spirit! While moderate drinking is OK, if you're already feeling somewhat down, drinking increases depressive symptoms.

Each holiday is unique and can be enjoyed in its own way. This year presents more challenges than most, but its very difficulties may reinforce the closeness you feel to your family and friends as well as your appreciation of those things that make life special.

You always set yourself up for disappointment if everything has to be just like the "good old days." This holiday season, put your effort into finding ways to celebrate that will bring you, and those close to you, real happiness and peace.

Peer Education

Program Donates

$563 To Aids Consortium

"H20 (Health 2 Others)", a peer education program of Bay State Community Services, has presented a check in the amount of $562.99 to South Shore AIDS Consortium.

The monies are the result of a month-long penny drive that the group conducted to raise money and awareness in Quincy for World AIDS Day.

This is the third year the group has conducted this penny drive and it has reached more people and raised more money with each passing year.

H20 is a group of seven extensively trained peer educators who are passionate about educating other teens and their community about the still growing numbers of new HIV infections among youth.

The group has been a part of Bay State Community Services for almost five years and has reached thousands of youth since their organization began. Each year, there are 40,000 new cases of HIV in the United States. Half of these new infections are among youth.

At the end of year 2000, there were 36.1 million adults and 1.4 million children living with HIV and about 5.3 million people in the world became infected with the virus that causes AIDS. This epidemic has not gone away and H20 continues to work to prevent and educate the Quincy community.

Let's fight hate with love.

Supporting Cast Keys
North Win Over Quincy

By CHRIS POISSON

Opponents may want to rethink their strategies when they face the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team.

In the early, very early showdown between Quincy and North Quincy last Friday night, the Presidents focused their attention on the Red Raiders' top scorer but did not account for their supporting cast.

Quincy held senior Phil McGillicuddy to just six points, but his backcourt mate, senior Dan Duggan, picked up the slack with 22 points, including six 3-pointers, to lead North Quincy to a 50-30 win at Coddington Street.

"Danny Duggan was the difference in the game," said Quincy head coach John Franceschini. "His 3-pointers were timely. He seemed to hit them when we were making a run. It really kept us at bay."

"Danny Duggan stepped up huge for us," said North Quincy head coach Ted Stevenson. "They were basically saying to us, 'If we stop Phil, we'll stop North Quincy.' Well, that didn't happen."

Although McGillicuddy didn't match his 33-point performance in the season-opening win over Randolph, he was a factor on the court in another way. When he drew the double team he found the open guys instead of forcing his offense.

"He didn't realize what he did tonight," Stevenson said. "Every time he moved, two men moved and that opened it up for everybody else. He was patient. He didn't force anything. He did what he had to do to help the team."

"We did a good job on Phil McGillicuddy," Franceschini said. "I don't think by any means they're a one-man team. But the things they do go around him. He generates good shots for other people. They shot the ball well from the outside."

North Quincy hosted Taunton Tuesday and today

(Thursday) it travels to Falmouth. Meanwhile, Quincy is off for nearly two weeks as its next game is Dec. 27 at Marshfield.

In the first half, Quincy kept pace with North Quincy before the Red Raiders went on a 9-0 run in the closing minutes.

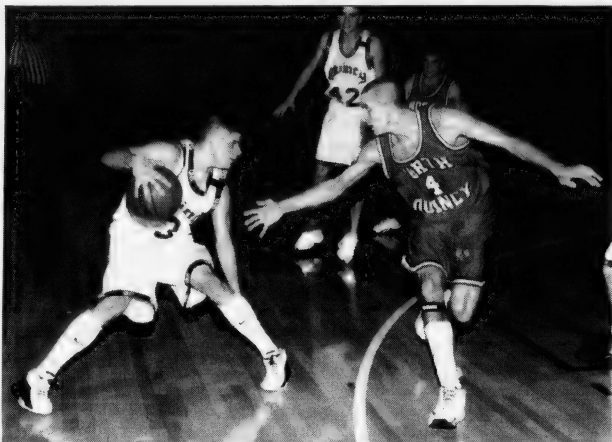

After junior guard Craig Keenan buried a jumper to make it 16-13, Duggan drilled back-to-back, uncontested 3-pointers for a 22-13 lead. He then fired a long strike to a streaking John O'Connell (12 points) for a fast-break layup. Senior Mark Maher added a free throw for a 25-13 advantage at the break.

"They went with a diamond-and-one: one man on Phil all over the court and everybody else playing a zone," Stevenson explained. "Every time Phil drove a second guy would slide in and help take him out of the game. That's why Danny kept getting the threes."

"Danny is just playing with confidence galore now."

THE QUINCY HIGH boys' basketball team dedicated the 2001-2002 season to the late Paul G. Fitzpatrick, who was the captain of the 1965-1966 team and a teacher in Quincy Public Schools. The team will wear a memorial band on its jerseys in his memory. Shown here, from the left, are former teammate Ron Mariano, Quincy High Athletic Director Ed Miller, mother Betty Fitzpatrick, nephew Robert Tripp, sister Donna Tripp, and former teammates Paul Beston, Daniel Raymondi and Jim Rendle.

SHAWN MUNCHBACH (3) dribbles behind the arc with North Quincy senior Jack Liuzzo (4) guarding him. The junior guard finished with 8 points in Quincy's 50-30 loss to its rivals last Friday night.

I don't think he knew what we expected from him at the start of the season. When he realized he was going to get a ton of playing time, the confidence just came. He's really stepped up."

In the second half, Quincy came out attacking. Senior guard Adam Vecchione (12 points) scored a layup on a slashing, baseline drive and the defense created a turnover, forcing Stevenson to call a timeout after one minute of play.

"We knew Quincy was going to make us make turnovers," Stevenson said. "That's their style of play. I thought overall we handled it pretty well. We kept our composure."

After the timeout, senior Mike Lorenzano scored on a nice drive to the basket to pull Quincy within eight at 25-17. Duggan nailed his fourth trey of the night, but junior guard Shawn Munchbach (8 points) followed with one of his own. Vecchione scored to make it 28-22.

North Quincy, though, responded with seven straight points, capped by a Duggan 3-pointer, for a 35-22 lead and never looked back. The defense turned it up a notch, limiting Quincy to two field goals and four free throws over the final 13 minutes.

"We've been struggling on the offensive side," Franceschini said. "North played good defense, but we didn't take advantage of some good shots."

"I can't say enough about our team defense," Stevenson said. "Our defense has been outstanding right from the get-go. We held Randolph to 44 points. We held Quincy to 30. We only gave up 20 points once in eight halves during the preseason. It has been the biggest difference from last year."

THE RAINING CHAMP

Remember the days when the "intermittent" feature was a welcome addition to the "fast" and "slow" selections on the windshield wiper stalk in your car? Well, now, many luxury and family vehicles offer a rain sensor that automatically adjusts the windshield-wiping interval as needed. This technical feature utilizes infrared light to measure the amount of rain hitting the windshield. The latest generation of such sensors is installed when the windshield is autoclaved, rather than later at the vehicle assembly location. This is similar to the application of a mirror mount, and makes for simple attachment of the wire harness at the assembly line. Depending on the rain intensity, the optical sensors work to select one of seven speeds automatically.

North Quincy Opens With 45-30 Win Over Quincy

By CHRIS POISSON

The halftime score at last Friday night's match between the Quincy and North Quincy girls' basketball teams told it all.

The scoreboard read: North Quincy 12, Quincy 7.

A combined 19 points by two varsity teams? There has to be an explanation.

"It was our first game and there were a lot of jitters," said North Quincy head coach Doug MacFarlane.

"The nerves factor into the this game," said Quincy head coach Jeff Bretsch.

Fortunately for the fans, the butterflies left the gym during the 10-minute break and both teams' play improved dramatically.

In the second half, North Quincy found its championship form from a year ago and pulled away with a 45-30 win.

North Quincy traveled to Taunton Tuesday and today (Thursday) it hosts Falmouth at 6:30 p.m. Quincy (1-1) hosted Brighton Tuesday and today (Thursday) it travels to Brighton for a rematch.

In the first half, senior co-captain Lauren Sleeth almost single-handedly prevented the Red Raiders from being shutout, scoring 10 of the team's 12 points. She finished with 23 points, nine rebounds and two steals.

"Lauren Sleeth was Lauren Sleeth," MacFarlane said.

And Sleeth is the reigning co-MVP of the Old Colony League and a two-time league all-star.

Quincy, meanwhile, didn't get on the board until senior captain Christine Niosi scored on a putback with 7:39 remaining in the half.

"I thought the girls played incredibly hard," Bretsch said. "We held them to 12 points in the first half, but we had difficulty putting the ball in the hole. We missed a lot of shots we normally make."

In the second half, North Quincy featured a balanced scoring attack. In addition Sleeth, senior center Kahli Dearani added six points, the only other starter to score.

Junior forward Kristen DiMaggio (5 points) and junior guard Lauren Kalil (4 points) provided some offense. The sophomore trio of Beth Goodrich, Alyssa STEPHANIE FIANDACA (23) slips by Kahli Dearani (42) for a layup after a steal at midcourt.

Dearani and Ashley Ridge showed they're capable of coming off the bench to help.

"Ashley Ridge, Beth Goodrich and Alyssa Dearani really played well, considering they're sophomores and this was their first Quincy-North game," MacFarlane said.

North Quincy put the game away with a 15-2 spurt and then a 14-5 run down the stretch.

"We have some young kids with inexperience," MacFarlane said. "It was our first game and I really didn't know what to expect. We've had some up and down scrimmages and this was Quincy-North. I think we came out in the second half and did better."

LAUREN SLEETH (24) beats the Quincy defense for two of her game-high 23 points in North Quincy's 45-30 win last Friday night. The senior co-captain also grabbed nine rebounds and had two steals.

Quincy closed the game with seven straight points to make the score more respectable. Niosi finished with a team-high 11 points.

"She has done such a great job in terms of leadership," Bretsch said. "That was a big offensive game for her. She usually doesn't take a lot of shots, but she came ready for this game. She was fired up for the last week about this game."

"We started to come to together a little bit," he added. "We just never really hit our flow offensively. Some nights the shots aren't going in."

Quincy-North Girls Hockey Team Win 2

The Quincy-North Quincy girls' hockey team continues to shine in its first year as a program, picking up a pair of wins last week.

Q-NQ will play at Quincy Youth Arena next Thursday, Dec. 27, at 3:10 p.m. against Brookline.

In a 3-1 win over Duxbury last Friday at Shea Rink, junior goalie Jesse Poggi turned in an impressive 27-save performance.

Duxbury struck first on a goal by Ashley McGrath three minutes into the first period. Kelly Rice netted the equalizer with four minutes left in the second.

Less than two minutes later, freshman Marissa Deegan potted the go-ahead goal that proved to be the game-winner. Sophomore Kristina Manganaro tied the game with Q-NQ's third goal with less than a minute left in the final period.

"Duxbury was slightly better than us," said head coach Lauren Prisco. "We won because we played as a team. All my players know what their individual role is regardless of their skating ability. This team is very patient and has a lot of heart."

In a 2-1 win over Falmouth last Saturday, Q-NQ trailed 2-0 late in the second period before Manganaro put the team on the board. With four minutes left in the game, sophomore Nicole Murray netted the tying goal.

The next three and a half minutes would prove to be Q-NQ's most determined play all season, scoring four goals for the victory. Murray tallied two for the hat trick and senior captain Audra Hill also deposited two. Sophomore Lindsay Lantieri picked up the victory assist.

"There were a lot of tough moments, but the girls were strong skaters. Prisco said, "We skated three times more than half the game compared to their two. This helped us in the end."

"I told the girls after the first period, 'We need to be patient and don't panic. This is a long game and our three lines will make the difference.' My team really stayed strong and played as a team."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

With Christmastime once again upon us, let us pause and remember the simple joys of days gone by. Though times have changed, the true spirit of the holiday remains forever constant. May the enduring happiness and brotherhood that marks this wondrous season be yours always.

In the true spirit of the Christmas season, let us pray that joy, beauty, hope and, above all, abiding faith be with us, one and all. May the blessings of peace surround us -- the peace to build and grow, to live in harmony and sympathy with our fellow man. Let us pray that strength and abundant courage be given to all whose mission is to work for a world of reason and understanding -- so that the good that lies in every man's heart may day to day be magnified...

We at the Deware Family Funeral Homes, at this very special time of the year, would like to extend to all our friends and readers our warmest wishes for a Happy Holiday and a most joyous New Year.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) I know, dear Lamb, that you don't like anyone trying to take charge of one of your projects, but try to be a bit more flexible. A new idea could help hasten a positive result.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) I'm sure, like the time-thrifty Taurus that you are, that you've done much of your holiday shopping. But don't relax yet. Wrap those gifts' now to save yourself lots of unwanted pressure.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be receptive when a family member or friend asks to confide in you. Your positive reaction could ensure that he or she will have a happy holiday experience.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't be rushed into wrapping up that workplace problem. Consider leaving it until after the holidays. This way you'll have the facts you need to reach the right resolution.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You'll get news that will make you glow brighter than the lights of the holiday season. Be sure to use what you learn both carefully and kindly, to avoid giving the wrong impression.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) That frayed relationship could be mended in time for the holidays if you were more flexible. Give a little, and you could get back a lot more than you imagined.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Things might not seem to be settling down as quickly as you would prefer. But it might be just a little holiday time flutter. You'll soon get news that will lead to more stability.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Stop getting so involved in everyone's personal problems that you lose precious time with loved ones. Remember, even the Supreme Court closes for the holidays.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) All signs point to a bright holiday, with all of those pesky problems finally resolved in your favor. Share the good times with people you love and, of course, who love you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your plans should not be set in stone and cemented over. Leave some openings in case you need to make changes. Spend the holidays with your nearest and dearest.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Surprise! This holiday finds you on the receiving end of the generosity of those who are usually the recipients of so much that you give so freely and lovingly.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) That piece of good news assures that you'll be swimming in clearer, calmer waters this holiday season. There might be a storm or two ahead, but you'll weather it all in fine style.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a flair for seeing things as you'd like them to be, as well as a gift for turning your perceptions into reality.

A TURKEY DINNER with all the trimmings was given to Quincy firefighters assigned to work this Christmas by students of the Montclair Elementary School via its "Adopt A Firehouse" program with the assistance of its partner, Stop & Shop Supermarkets. While Stop & Shop provided the turkey, the school raised funds for the rest of the dinner by collecting 11 cents from all Montclair students, the specific number intended to honor those who responded so heroically to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. ## Nine Residents To Carry Torch

Olympic Torch Relay Comes To City Today

Nine residents will carry the Olympic Torch as it makes an historic visit to Quincy today (Thursday).

Quincy was chosen by the Salt Lake Organizing Committee to host an Olympic Torch Ceremony, one of only two such ceremonies in Massachusetts.

"We are honored that the Salt Lake Organizing Committee would choose Quincy to participate in the Torch Relay and be a host community for this historic event," said Mayor James Sheets. "The torch symbolizes the best of athletics and competition; those that compete for the love of sport. We are proud to be associated with such a great event."

The torch will enter Quincy from Braintree on Quincy Avenue. It will be carried up to Quincy Center for the Olympic Torch Ceremony on Hancock Street in Quincy Center, before being carried north on Hancock Street to Boston.

Chevy and Coca-Cola, the major corporate sponsors of the Olympic Torch Relay, will provide entertainment for the ceremony, including the Olympic Torch Relay Interactive Truck.

Prior to the Olympic Torch Ceremony in Quincy Center, the City of Quincy will sponsor entertainment for families and children. There will be music and lots of fun starting at 12:30 p.m. in Quincy Center by City Hall.

The 2002 Olympic Torch Relay began in Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4. The flame will arrive in Olympic Stadium in Salt Lake City Feb. 8, 2002 and will remain there for the duration of the 2002 Winter Olympic Games.

It will travel more than 11,500 miles and make its way through 46 states in 65 days. The torch will travel an average of 208 miles per day, being carried an average of 12 hours per day.

The Quincy torchbearers are:

Karen Cashman-Lehman and her brother Ron Cashman will carry it through Quincy Center. Karen was a 1994 Winter Olympic bronze medal winner in short-track team speed-skating as a member of the U.S. 3,000-meter relay team.

Ray Cattaneo will also carry it through Quincy Center. Cattaneo has been a volunteer coach in American Legion baseball for 30 years and has been involved in a host of other charitable and benevolent causes.

Dan Coughlin will carry it along Quincy Avenue. For more than two decades, Coughlin has improved the lives of hundreds of Quincy youngsters as a dean, teacher and coach at North Quincy High School.

Geoff Hennessy will carry it in Boston on the Mass. Ave. Bridge. Hennessy, Quincy Track Club organizer and scholastic track coach, has given more than 25 years of

Over 25,000 Expected At First Night

First Night Quincy will ring in the new year and mark its 10th anniversary with a lineup of entertainment and activities that promises to be the best in the event's history, organizers say.

More than 25,000 revelers attended last year's celebration and Rhonda Merrill, director of Events and Tourism and coordinator of First Night Quincy, expects that number to rise given the year that was 2001.

"We anticipate more than last year because people are staying closer to home," Merrill said.

Highlights of this year's show include a fireworks display, laser light shows, the annual Festival of Lights Parade — with a "Flashback to the Fifties" theme — and more than 30 entertainment acts throughout Quincy Square.

First Night Quincy buttons are now on sale and can be purchased for $7 before Dec. 31. Buttons will cost $10 if purchased the day of the event. A First Night button will allow access to all First Night venues from 4 p.m. until midnight.

Another highlight of this year's First Night Quincy is the return of KIDSFEST, which will be held at the Center for Technical Education (Vo-Tech) gym from 4 p.m. until 10 p.m. The venue will feature numerous games, a moonwalk, children's entertainment, a mini-golf course, and a host of activities designed to keep the kids going all day long.

"First Night Quincy offers a fun, safe, alcohol-free environment in a convenient location," said Rhonda Merrill. "There is an extensive range of events and activities, guaranteeing a fun New Year's Eve experience for the whole family. It is the perfect way to ring in the new year."

The First Night fireworks display begins at 6:15 p.m. over Faxon Field on Coddington St. The display can be easily viewed from most of Quincy Square.

Following the fireworks will be the annual Festival of Lights Parade. This year the parade is featuring a "Flashback to the Fifties" theme that promises to add even more enjoyment. The parade will travel down Hancock St. by Quincy City Hall and the First Parish Church.

Once the parade is completed,

On TV Program Tonight David Murphy Wants To Be A 'Millionaire'

By CRAIG SALTERS

If you want to find out if Quincy's David Murphy was a big winner on the ABC game show Who Wants to be a Millionaire?, you'll have to watch the broadcast tonight (Thursday) at 9 p.m.

That's because Murphy, program director for the Park and Recreation Department, is forbidden from discussing certain details of the upcoming show, details such as whether or not he actually won one million dollars.

What Murphy will admit to is tantalizing enough: that the Oct. 30 taping in New York City was "a surreal experience," that he did, in fact, sit in the "hot seat" across from none other than Regis Philbin; and that, although almost blowing the $200 question and not knowing the answer to any question past the $8,000 round, he did experience "a great run of luck" at one point during the game.

Does that mean he won some cold, hard cash on the program?

"It was an incredible

experience," said Murphy, smiling.

Although Murphy may or may not have achieved monetary success on the program, his efforts to promote the city were certainly successful: Murphy, who had made an earlier promise that America would know about Quincy "even if I have to embarrass myself," drew a chilly response from New Yorkers when he called Quincy "the greatest city on Earth."

Undaunted, Murphy proceeded to invite a national television audience of millions to the city's Flag Day Parade.

"When am I going to get that chance again?" asked Murphy.

Murphy didn't say whether attempts to secure Pulitzer Prize winning historian David McCullough as a

"phone a friend" lifeline were successful, but he did say he had invited family and friends to watch tonight's (Thursday's) episode at the Quincy Lodge of Elks on Quarry St.

Would a sane man invite friends and family to watch him embarrass himself from coast to coast? Would Murphy want people tuning in if he didn't know the difference between a Dorothy Hamill and a Peggy Fleming, between Hans Christian Anderson and Hans Solo, between Ralph Furley and Ralph Branca?

"It was an incredible experience," said Murphy, smiling.

Murphy, who tried out for the show "on a whim" Oct. 12 at the Boston Park Plaza at the urging of his father Don, a big fan of the show, is actively seeking to buy a home in Quincy for himself and wife Amy, so maybe he's a millionaire.

But he and his wife are searching for that home by driving about town in a 1997 Ford Taurus, so maybe he's not.

But, seriously, how much, if any, did Murphy win? A million? A half-million? A few grand? Bus fare home?

"It was an incredible experience," said Murphy, smiling.

2001 In Review

Phelan Mayoral Win,
Sept. 11 Top Stories

By TOM HENSHAW

The stunning loss by Mayor James Sheets as he sought a seventh two-year term as the city's chief executive dominated the news in Quincy in the year 2001.

Sheets, facing major opposition for the first time since he won his first term in 1989, bowed to School Committeeman William Phelan by a mere 17 votes after a hand recount.

The new mayor, who is the son-in-law of former Mayor Arthur Tobin and brother-in-law of State Rep. Stephen Tobin, will be sworn into office Jan. 7.

The aftermath of the terrorists' attack on New York City with hijacked planes reached all the way into Quincy, where police officers hurried to the Big City to help out and everyone from Rotarians to schoolkids raised money for victims' relief.

Here is a month-by-month rundown of the things that happened in Quincy during the first year of the third millennium:

JANUARY

Attorney and former City Councillor George Burke was the high bidder at $160,000 for a silver tankard donated to the First Parish Church by Col. John Quincy in 1767 as the church's silverware went on auction to pay for repairs.

"I had never bid at an auction before," said Burke. "Here I was up against some of the best silver and antique experts in the United States. They knew the value of the tankard. I didn't. I was bidding on its history."

The John Quincy tankard was expected to be one of the least expensive of the 11 pieces of silver with an estimated price of $50,000. The auction netted $2.7 million, more than enough to pay the $1.7 million bill for repairs to the church building.

The tankard, named for the man who lent Quincy his name, made its first public appearance under Burke's ownership in the window of The Quincy Sun on Hancock Street, a few doors down from the historic Church of the Presidents.

Mayor James Sheets selected affordable housing as a top priority for his administration in 2001 as he delivered his historic sixth mid-term address, the most of any mayor in Quincy's 113-year history.

"I have two major meetings with developers and I will shortly present to the City Council my recommendation for dealing with the affordable housing crisis," said the mayor. "Our goal must always be to have 10 per cent of Quincy's housing stock affordable."

In his 20-minute address that highlighted the past year's accomplishments as well as outlined the goals for the coming year, Sheets attributed part of the affordable housing crunch to the very economic growth his remarks celebrated.

"Our successes with the local economy and the quality of our school system have attracted many new families to Quincy," he said, "but our successes beget other challenges. While housing prices rise, we find that rent increases are putting too many of our families on the streets."

The mayor's call for affordable housing solutions was echoed by City Council President Paul Harold following his reelection as president by a 6-3 vote. He survived a challenge for the post from Councillor Stephen Durkin to win a second term.

Harold stressed finding a new developer for the Fore River Shipyard and siting of the new Quincy High and Central Middle Schools as well as exploring affordable housing options as the three top priorities of the coming Council sessions.

Less than a week later, Harold was sworn in for a second time, this time to a first six-year term as Norfolk County Register of Deeds.

Jeanne Reardon also was reelected unanimously to her 21st one year term as clerk of the City Council's committees.

Both houses of the State Legislature passed the home rule petition creating a hotel/motel tax for the city of Quincy on the last day of the legislative session.

The tax would go into effect in July, starting with a one per cent local room occupancy tax and increasing by one per cent annually until it reaches the state maximum of four per cent in 2004.

A crowd of more than 25,000 greeted what some thought of as the first new year of the millennium during the ninth annual First Night in Quincy, which started at 2 p.m., Dec. 31, to allow children to see some of the 200 performers.

Police Chief Thomas

Franc underwent triple bypass heart surgery at Boston Medical Center and was recuperating at his home.

The all alcoholic and common victualler's licenses of the George Bryan VFW Post were suspended for three days following complaints of illegalities, including nudity at a bachelor's party for which the hall had been rented.

Quincy 2000 proposed a privately financed $50 to $60 million, 300 residential unit development with a three-story parking garage for 1,000 vehicles for the John Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center.

Phelan Mayoral Win, Sept. 11 Top Stories

By TOM HENSHAW

The stunning loss by Mayor James Sheets as he sought a seventh two-year term as the city's chief executive dominated the news in Quincy in the year 2001.

Sheets, facing major opposition for the first time since he won his first term in 1989, bowed to School Committee member William Phelan by a mere 17 votes after a hand recount.

The new mayor, who is the son-in-law of former Mayor Arthur Tobin and brother-in-law of State Rep. Stephen Tobin, will be sworn into office Jan. 7.

The aftermath of the terrorists' attack on New York City with hijacked planes reached all the way into Quincy, where police officers hurried to the Big City to help out and everyone from Rotarians to schoolkids raised money for victims' relief.

Here is a month-by-month rundown of the things that happened in Quincy during the first year of the third millennium:

JANUARY

Attorney and former City Councillor George Burke was the high bidder at $160,000 for a silver tankard donated to the First Parish Church by Col. John Quincy in 1767 as the church's silverware went on auction to pay for repairs.

"I had never bid at an auction before," said Burke. "Here I was up against some of the best silver and antique experts in the United States. They knew the value of the tankard. I didn't. I was bidding on its history."

The John Quincy tankard was expected to be one of the least expensive of the 11 pieces of silver with an estimated price of $50,000. The auction netted $2.7 million, more than enough to pay the $1.7 million bill for repairs to the church building.

The tankard, named for the man who lent Quincy his name, made its first public appearance under Burke's ownership in the window of The Quincy Sun on Hancock Street, a few doors down from the historic Church of the Presidents.

Mayor James Sheets selected affordable housing as a top priority for his administration in 2001 as he delivered his historic sixth mid-term address, the most of any mayor in Quincy's 113-year history.

"I have two major meetings with developers and I will shortly present to the City Council my recommendation for dealing with the affordable housing crisis," said the mayor. "Our goal must always be to have 10 percent of Quincy's housing stock affordable."

In his 20-minute address that highlighted the past year's accomplishments as well as outlined the goals for the coming year, Sheets attributed part of the affordable housing crunch to the very economic growth his remarks celebrated.

"Our successes with the local economy and the quality of our school system have attracted many new families to Quincy," he said, "but our successes beget other challenges. While housing prices rise, we find that rent increases are putting too many of our families on the streets."

The mayor's call for affordable housing solutions was echoed by City Council President Paul Harold following his reelection as president by a 6-3 vote. He survived a challenge for the post from Councillor Stephen Durkin to win a second term.

Harold stressed finding a new developer for the Fore River Shipyard and siting of the new Quincy High and Central Middle Schools as well as exploring affordable housing options as the three top priorities of the coming Council sessions.

Less than a week later, Harold was sworn in for a second time, this time to a first six-year term as Norfolk County Register of Deeds.

Jeanne Reardon also was reelected unanimously to her 21st one year term as clerk of the City Council's committees.

Both houses of the State Legislature passed the home rule petition creating a hotel/motel tax for the city of Quincy on the last day of the legislative session.

The tax would go into effect in July, starting with a one per cent local room occupancy tax and increasing by one per cent annually until it reaches the state maximum of four per cent in 2004.

A crowd of more than 25,000 greeted what some thought of as the first new year of the millennium during the ninth annual First Night in Quincy, which started at 2 p.m., Dec. 31, to allow children to see some of the 200 performers.

Police Chief Thomas

Frane underwent triple bypass heart surgery at Boston Medical Center and was recuperating at his home.

The all-alcoholic and common victualer's licenses of the George Bryan VFW Post were suspended for three days following complaints of illegalities, including nudity at a bachelor's party for which the hall had been rented.

Quincy 2000 proposed a privately financed $50 to $60 million, 300 residential unit development with a three-story parking garage for 1,000 vehicles for the John Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center.

Festival Of Lights Parade Encourages 1950's Theme

First Night Quincy will sponsor this year's annual Festival of Lights Parade during the First Night Quincy celebration.

The Festival of Lights Parade will begin Monday night at 6:30 p.m. on Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

This year's parade promises to be even more amusing as organizers are inviting participants to enter with a 1950's theme.

Participants, however, may use any vehicle and dress it up for the parade. First Night Quincy is not limiting entries to the 1950's theme and encourages ingenuity for the annual event.

Entry forms for the Festival of Lights Parade can be picked up at all branches of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy City Hall, or at the Events and Tourism Office, 1 Merrymount Parkway.

First, second, and third place prizes of $500, $250, and $100, respectively, will be awarded to the most creatively decorated vehicles.

All participants must fill out the entry form with a description of the entry. Deadline for entries is Saturday at the Events and Tourism Office, 1 Merrymount Parkway.

For more information on the Festival of Lights Parade, contact Rhonda Merrill at (617) 376-1296.

On TV Program Tonight David Murphy Wants To Be A 'Millionaire'

By CRAIG SALTERS

If you want to find out if Quincy's David Murphy was a big winner on the ABC gameshow Who Wants to be a Millionaire?, you'll have to watch the broadcast tonight (Thursday) at 9 p.m.

That's because Murphy, program director for the Park and Recreation Department, is forbidden from discussing certain details of the upcoming show, details such as whether or not he actually won one million dollars.

What Murphy will admit to is tantalizing enough: that the Oct. 30 taping in New York City was "a surreal experience;" that he did, in fact, sit in the "hot seat" across from none other than Regis Philbin; and that, although almost blowing the $200 question and not knowing the answer to any question past the $8,000 round, he did experience "a great run of luck" at one point during the game.

Does that mean he won some cold, hard cash on the program?

"It was an incredible

experience," said Murphy, smiling.

Although Murphy may or may not have achieved monetary success on the program, his efforts to promote the city were certainly successful: Murphy, who had made an earlier promise that America would know about Quincy "even if I have to embarrass myself," drew a chilly response from New Yorkers when he called Quincy "the greatest city on Earth."

Undaunted, Murphy proceeded to invite a national television audience of millions to the city's Flag Day Parade.

"When am I going to get that chance again?" asked Murphy.

Murphy didn't say whether attempts to secure Pulitzer Prize winning historian David McCullough as a

"phone a friend" lifeline were successful, but he did say he had invited family and friends to watch tonight's (Thursday's) episode at the Quincy Lodge of Elks on Quarry St.

Would a sane man invite friends and family to watch him embarrass himself from coast to coast? Would Murphy want people tuning in if he didn't know the difference between a Dorothy Hamill and a Peggy Fleming, between Hans Christian Anderson and Hans Solo, between Ralph Furley and Ralph Branca?

"It was an incredible experience," said Murphy, smiling.

Murphy, who tried out for the show "on a whim" Oct. 12 at the Boston Park Plaza at the urging of his father Don, a big fan of the show, is actively seeking to buy a home in Quincy for himself and wife Amy, so maybe he's a millionaire.

But he and his wife are searching for that home by driving about town in a 1997 Ford Taurus, so maybe he's not.

But, seriously, how much, if any, did Murphy win? A million? A half-million? A few grand? Bus fare home?

"It was an incredible experience," said Murphy, smiling.

Phelan Breaks Political Tradition

In winning the mayor's office this year, William Phelan not only surprised a lot of people but he also broke a long-time political tradition.

He will be the first mayor in 79 years who did not come out of the city council.

Sonotes Frank McCauley, present city councillor and former mayor and the city's unofficial political historian.

Since the inception of the present Plan A charter in 1917, says McCauley, every mayor with the exception of one had previously served as a city councillor.

The exception was Gustave Bates who defeated incumbent Chester Campbell in 1915 when terms were one year, lost to Joseph Whiton in 1916 and came back in 1922 to oust William Bradford and reclaim the mayor's office.

In the early years, there were six other mayors who never served in the city council:

William Hodges (1894), Russell Sears (1898), Harrison Keith (1899), John Hall (1900), John Miller (1914), the only mayor to die in office, Chester Campbell (1915).

Phelan, whose political career until now consisted of two years on the school committee, will go down in the city's history as the winner in one of the biggest mayoral upsets ever.

The last major contender with no previous experience in the city council was businessman Peter O'Connell who lost to James Sheets in 1989 after winning a nomination over former councillor-mayor Joseph LaRaia and former councillor Steve McGrath.

THAT LIST OF those reportedly interested in filling William Phelan's two-year unexpired term on the school committee is getting longer.

Latest being mentioned include:

Brian McNamee, who ran for councillor-at-large this year. Robert Foley, active in youth sports and who was the runner-up in the school committee election in 1999.

Three lawyers, Jay Davis of West Quincy and Chris McCarthy and William Keener of Squantum.

And the newest and an interesting one: David McCarthy of Whitney Rd., who is in program development at General Dynamics. He and his wife, Roseanne, have six children, four adopted, and expecting another, a Christmas baby from Hong Kong. He was nominated by neighbors and selected to run a leg of the Olympic Torch Relay in Boston.

The big question being asked: who will Phelan back for the seat?

When he is sworn in as mayor Jan. 7, he also becomes chairman of the school committee. And will have the opportunity to nominate and vote for a candidate at the city council-school committee convention that will determine who fills out the remaining two years of his term.

If Phelan, five members of the school committee and nine city councillors participate, there will be 15 votes. Eight would be needed to win the seat.

The three incumbents who were up for re-election this year -- Jo-Ann Bragg, Ron Mariano and Mike McFarland -- had no opposition. So, there is no runner-up candidate from this year's election who might have had the advantage at the convention.

Incidentally, Jennifer Logue, daughter of Frank McCauley and who worked in Phelan's mayoral campaign, is not seeking the seat although she has been among those mentioned. But she reportedly is thinking of running sometime in the future.

Observers figure there are something like 15 to 20 interested in the seat.

IT WAS A special Christmas for Ward 6 Councillor Joe Newton and pretty Laura McKnight who have been going together for three years.

Joe popped the big question and Laura said "yes." And he presented her with a handsome engagement ring.

He almost didn't have it to present. He lost it once and after some searching, fortunately found it. Just to be sure he didn't lose it again, he asked City Clerk Joseph Shea to lock it up in his office safe until the big moment.

Laura is a Simmons grad and is employed at State Street Bank.

No date has been set for the wedding.

THE ENGAGEMENT WILL leave next year's city council with just one eligible bachelor: new Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly, who is 27.

Dam at Johnson's Lumber Wharf, Quincy, Mass.

THIS 1920 POSTCARD is a view of the tidal dam that was located at the mouth of the Town Brook. It once provided the power for what is now known as the Souther Tide Mill. The mill was located at the corner of Mill Street and Souther Place which is now part of the Southern Artery. Originally used by the Souther family for grinding flour the mill later was used to saw wood. First by the Johnson Lumber Company and then by the Quincy Lumber Company which was the last occupant of the site. The remnants of the dam are long gone but the old mill building is still extant. The Souther Tide Mill Association, which now owns the mill, thanks to CVS, hopes to return the mill to a condition where its history can be shared by the public. It hopes to eventually rehabilitate or recreate the mill and enhance its surrounding waterfront. The mill has recently been shored up and enclosed to protect it from the elements.

Thanks To A Step Beyond Beauty Salon

October was National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. In honor of its observance, over 45 Massachusetts salons opened their doors on Sunday, Oct. 21 to dedicate all or part of the day's proceeds to fund the early detection of breast cancer for Boston's Faulkner-Sagoff Breast Imaging and Diagnostic Center at Faulkner Hospital.

Breast cancer affects one in eight women and takes more than 45,000 lives annually. But nearly nine out of 10 women could survive with early detection.

Elizabeth Cohen and the staff of A Step Beyond Beauty in Quincy recently participated in the third annual "A Thing of Beauty" salonevent. Collectively, the salons have raised over $200,000 in three years for the early detection of breast cancer.

The generosity of the participating salons has allowed the Faulkner-Sagoff Center to purchase computer-aided detection equipment and full-field digital mammography and continue to provide free mammograms for patients who are uninsured or underinsured.

Since its founding in 1971, the center has seen more than 100,000 women. This event has been able to help supply state-of-the-art equipment and support the vital mission of finding breast cancers as early as possible.

During this holiday season, you should be proud to have such a giving person running a business in your community. On behalf of all that come to the Faulkner-Sagoff Center for care, I extend my thanks to A Step Beyond Beauty for this successful fundraising event.

Early Retirement Bill Passes Beacon Hill Committee

An early retirement incentive program for state employees, supported by Sen. Michael Morrissey, has been approved by the Committee on Public Service.

"This legislation is compassionate and fiscally prudent," said Committee Chairman Sen. Brian Joyce of the bill, which is a redraft of an early retirement bill filed by acting Gov. Jane Swift.

"Thousands of layoffs are averted with this legislation," said Morrissey. "The bill is fair to taxpayers, targets people who are most likely to take an early retirement and doesn't undermine our ability to provide vital services."

The bill awaits passage by the House and Senate before it goes to the Governor for signature.

Depending on the number of participants, savings to taxpayers could exceed $40 million in the current fiscal year, $175 million in Fiscal 2003 and $175 million in Fiscal 2004.

The proposal will only affect employees who are active members of the state retirement system and who have accrued either 20 years of creditable service or are 55 years of age or older with at least 10 years of creditable service.

Under the proposal, eligible state employees will be provided with five years of age or five years of creditable service, or a combination of the two.

The bill protects taxpayers by setting strict vacation and sick leave buyback rules, creating lists of all vacated positions, limiting the number of people able to retire under the plan and curtailing payrolls for various agencies over a set period of time.

The bill protects younger workers by vacating top positions rather than reducing lower level employees as is the norm during budget crunches.

Eligible employees would be able to apply for early retirement until Feb. 15, 2002. The proposal allows up to 7,700 state employees to participate in the program.

Sens. Morrissey and Joyce are working on an early retirement incentive bill for city and town employees.

Shea Elected City Council President

By PAUL HAROLD

Charles Shea was elected city council president in one of the most dramatic elections in recent history.

As City Clerk John Gillis read the roll call, Councillor John Quinn had four votes when his name was called to vote. He voted for Shea. Had he voted for himself, he would have been elected president, but he wanted to keep his prior commitment to vote for Shea.

Shea was elected by a 5-to-4 vote with his vote, Quinn's and those of councillors Carl Anderson, James McCormack and David McIntosh. Voting for Quinn were Councillors Richard Barry, George Burke, George McDonald and Joseph LaRaia.

In other action at the council's organizational meeting, Percy Lane was re-elected clerk of committees for his 23rd year. A moment of silence was observed for former Mayor William Bradford who died the week before.

DELLA CHIESA BOOSTS HIGH RISE

In his 22-page inaugural address, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa boosted high rise apartment construction as the best way to shift the tax burden from the homeowner.

"Unless measures are taken in this direction there is very little hope of maintaining a reasonable tax rate," he noted it was virtually impossible to reduce taxes by trying to reduce the cost of government, noting that the salary increase for the year was $1.4 million.

He referred to the proposed $3 million North Quincy project as a step in the right direction.

Despite a call by the Quincy Taxpayers Association, the mayor did not mention the need for tax equalization in the city, even though he supported it in the past.

ROTARY HOSTS WOODWARD SCHOOL

The Quincy Rotary Club hosted Woodward School Principal Katherine Bacon and 12 members of the Madrigal singers at its weekly luncheon at the Hollow Restaurant.

Miss Bacon outlined the history of the school that had an enrollment of 75 students (all Quincy born) with a faculty of 14.

Among the directors of the school were Quincy Co-op Bank President Heslip Southerland, Judge James Mulhall and Robert Blair of South Shore National Bank.

Phelan Breaks Political Tradition

In winning the mayor's office this year, William Phelan not only surprised a lot of people but he also broke a long-time political tradition.

He will be the first mayor in 79 years who did not come out of the city council.

So notes Frank McCauley, present city councillor and former mayor and the city's unofficial political historian.

Since the inception of the present Plan A charter in 1917, says McCauley, every mayor with the exception of one had previously served as a city councillor.

The exception was Gustave Bates who defeated incumbent Chester Campbell in 1915 when terms were one year, lost to Joseph Whiton in 1916 and came back in 1922 to oust William Bradford and reclaim the mayor's office.

In the early years, there were six other mayors who never served in the city council:

William Hodges (1894), Russell Sears (1898), Harrison Keith (1899), John Hall (1900), John Miller (1914), the only mayor to die in office, Chester Campbell (1915).

Phelan, whose political career until now consisted of two years on the school committee, will go down in the city's history as the winner in one of the biggest mayoral upsets ever.

The last major contender with no previous experience in the city council was businessman Peter O'Connell who lost to James Sheets in 1989 after winning a nomination over former councillor-mayor Joseph LaRaia and former councillor Steve McGrath.

THAT LIST OF those reportedly interested in filling William Phelan's two-year unexpired term on the school committee is getting longer.

Latest being mentioned include:

Brian McNamee, who ran for councillor at-large this year. Robert Foley, active in youth sports and who was the runner-up in the school committee election in 1999.

Three lawyers, Jay Davis of West Quincy and Chris McCarthy and William Keener of Squantum.

And the newest and an interesting one: David McCarthy of Whitney Rd., who is in program development at General Dynamics. He and his wife, Roseanne, have six children, four adopted, and expecting another, a Christmas baby from Hong Kong. He was nominated by neighbors and selected to run a leg of the Olympic Torch Relay in Boston.

The big question being asked: who will Phelan back for the seat?

When he is sworn in as mayor Jan. 7, he also becomes chairman of the school committee. And will have the opportunity to nominate and vote for a candidate at the city council-school committee convention that will determine who fills out the remaining two years of his term.

If Phelan, five members of the school committee and nine city councillors participate, there will be 15 votes. Eight would be needed to win the seat.

The three incumbents who were up for re-election this year -- Jo-Ann Bragg, Ron Mariano and Mike McFarland -- had no opposition. So, there is no runner-up candidate from this year's election who might have had the advantage at the convention.

Incidentally, Jennifer Logue, daughter of Frank McCauley and who worked in Phelan's mayoral campaign, is not seeking the seat although she has been among those mentioned. But she reportedly is thinking of running sometime in the future.

Observers figure there are something like 15 to 20 interested in the seat.

IT WAS A special Christmas for Ward 6 Councillor Joe Newton and pretty Laura McKnight who have been going together for three years.

Joe popped the big question and Laura said "yes." And he presented her with a handsome engagement ring.

He almost didn't have it to present. He lost it once and after some searching, fortunately found it. Just to be sure he didn't lose it again, he asked City Clerk Joseph Shea to lock it up in his office safe until the big moment.

Laura is a Simmons grad and is employed at State Street Bank.

No date has been set for the wedding.

THE ENGAGEMENT WILL leave next year's city council with just one eligible bachelor: new Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly, who is 27.

Both Council President Paul Harold and Mike D'Amico, whom Connolly defeated, are not married but won't be returning to the council next year.

AND TO ALL of you, may 2002 be a happy and healthy new year. Thanks for bringing The Sun into your home. We are proud to be there.

Marina Bay Opposes USS Salem Move

residents of Marina Bay served notice that they would oppose the proposed move of the USS Salem from its berth at the Fore River Shipyard to the MDC's Squantum Point Park.

Executive Director Joanne Condon Walsh confirmed that the proposed summer relocation of the ship would likely be delayed several months since dredging could not be done by the Feb. 15 deadline and the site is off limits during the summer spawning of shellfish.

Sheila McIntyre, widow of the late Mayor/Senator James McIntyre, and Roy Lind, retired host of "Party Line" on WJDA, were among the honorary degree recipients at the January commencement at Quincy College.

The Grossman Companies of Quincy finalized plans to purchase the Faxon Family Trust property adjacent to City Hall, including the Monroe Building at 1229-53 Hancock St., for $2.7 million with plans to redevelop the property at a cost of nearly $20 million.

Judge Charles Walker, a former chairman of the MCAD, gave the keynote address at the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Celebration Breakfast, urged his listeners not to "freeze frame" Dr. King but make his dream a reality.

Carol Herbai, a volunteer at Quincy Medical Center and with the American Red Cross for more than a half century, was chosen as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year for 2000.

Fines for certain parking violations in Quincy were increased following complaints of all-day commuter parking in the business district and residential neighborhoods. The fine for over-time parking was boosted from $5 to $15 per violation.

The $25 million Dorchester to Quincy Underground Cable Project, designed to maintain the reliability of Quincy's electrical supply by providing an alternate source, was completed by Mass Electric and New England Power Company.

Judge Mark Coven, the new presiding justice of Quincy District Court, told The Quincy Sun he would like to open up his courtroom to more students and TV cameras "to educate the public to what a vital part the Quincy District Court plays in the community."

Congressman Bill Delahunt published a study documenting that women in southeastern Massachusetts pay on the average of two and one half times more for breast cancer medications than persons in France, Canada, Italy and the United Kingdom.

Matt German scored a pair of goals as the Quincy Youth Hockey Bantam A team won the state championship by defeating Framingham, 3-1, and landing a spot in the national tournament in Atlanta, Ga., in April.

Deaths in January included:

Anna May Henebry, 105, who lived in Quincy for the past 73 years and retired as a payroll clerk for Bethlehem Steel in 1964.

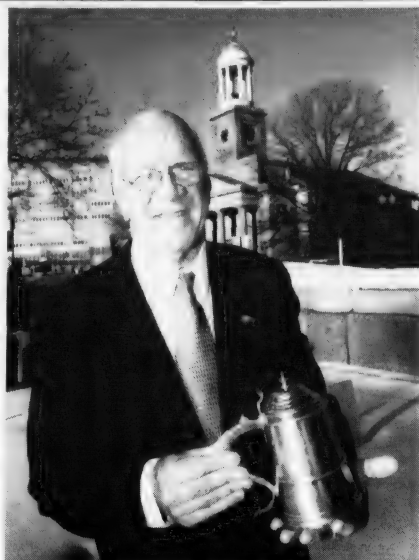

Richard E. Salvaggi, 48, a Quincy architect who helped design the Franklin Park Zoo in Boston, the Central Park Zoo in Manhattan and the New York Aquarium in Brooklyn.

More than a dozen residents, including clergy and community leaders, spoke out in favor of some form of inclusionary zoning at the first ever meeting of the City Council's Housing Committee, which was considering an affordable housing ordinance.

The proposed ordinance would require developers in Quincy to set aside at least 10 per cent of residential units for affordable housing, or a cash or land equivalent.

Affordable Housing Called 'Crisis' Here

"This is an effective step forward," said the Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church, adding that the housing crisis in Quincy had become so severe that teachers, nurses and public employees "can no longer live in the community they serve."

City Council President Paul Harold, former state senator who was recently elected Norfolk County Register of Deeds, indicated that he would not run for reelection as councillor at-large in the fall elections, touching off a scramble of candidates to succeed him.

"I'll be making a statement in a week or two," said Harold but friends said he had already decided not to run in order to concentrate on his new duties as register of deeds.

Mentioned prominently among those who may seek Harold's at-large seat were Ward Councilors Michael D'Amico, Steve Durkin and Dan Raymondi as well as newcomers John Keenan, executive secretary to the mayor who is leaving that post to become financial coordinator to the Norfolk County Advisory Board, and Joseph Finn, former executive director of Father Bill's Place.

Mayor James Sheets agreed in an interview with The Quincy Sun that it was physically possible to renovate the old Quincy High School into a new Quincy High School "but it is not, in my opinion, the best academic or social solution for the school."

He noted that the job would take a minimum of two years and recalled that double sessions during construction of an addition to North Quincy High School several years ago disrupted student life in both schools and was not a suitable alternative.

Citing resident concerns over density, traffic and drainage, City Councilor Michael D'Amico said he could not support the proposed construction of the 332-unit Quarry Hills Apartment Complex on 16 acres off Ricciuti Drive in West Quincy.

Nevertheless, the License Board unanimously granted common victualler/all alcoholic and entertainment licenses for the Quarry Hills Clubhouse and Function Facility, pending completion of construction of the golf course, which is scheduled to open in the spring or early summer of 2002.

The City Council voted 7-1 in favor of a resolve by Councilors Daniel Raymondi and Stephen Durkin to delay the proposed development of the John Hancock Parking Lot until the issue of flooding of Town Brook is completely resolved.

Raymondi displayed photos of flooded homes and offices in the Bigelow Street/Miller Stile Road neighborhood following a storm in 1996. "You would think that someone built a brick building in the middle of Wollaston Beach," he said.

Daniel Keating, a government affairs expert for a private company and former

ONE MILLION DOLLARS -- the largest grant ever to Quincy Medical Center -- was contributed by Simon C. Fireman (third from left) in February. The money was earmarked to expand the facility's radiology capabilities. legislative aide, began work as executive secretary to Mayor Sheets, succeeding John Keenan, who left to work for the Norfolk County Advisory Board.

Badly needed expansion of the Pine Hill Cemetery in West Quincy was halted to protect the habitat of an endangered species of rattlesnake with 250 remaining grave sites to be sold only on an "immediate need" basis.

Thomas P. Koch, executive director of the Quincy Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments, said the city is negotiating a land swap with the state for 35 acres of undeveloped land off Ricciuti Drive for a new cemetery.

Quincy resident and businessman Simon Fireman donated $1 million to the Quincy Medical Center, the largest single such donation ever, to improve and expand the facility's radiology capabilities. The largest previous donation was $500,000, also by Fireman.

An autopsy report by the State Medical Examiner indicated that the death of Charles Sylva, who died Dec. 17 while in the custody of the Quincy Police Department, was caused by "acute cocaine poisoning," contradicting allegations of criminal misconduct by Quincy Police.

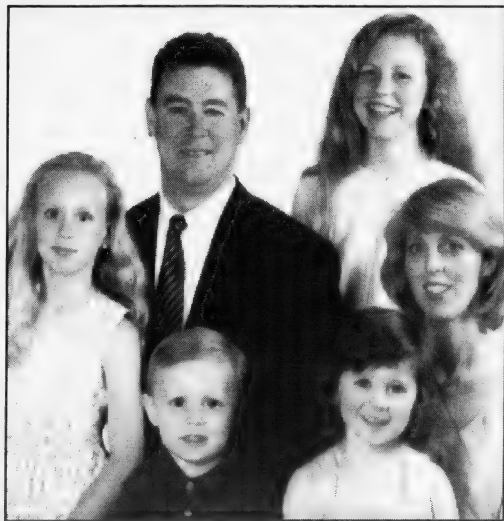

John Noonan was unanimously reelected to a 20th consecutive term as chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging by the board of directors. He was originally appointed to the Council 29 years ago by then-Mayor Walter Hannon.

Pete Zoia, 84, the only surviving member of the first North Quincy High School football team in 1933, was honored by the City Council for his contributions to Raider football, youth football and the community. Traditionally, Zoia, wearing his No. 20 jersey, led the North Quincy football team on a lap around Veterans Memorial Stadium before the Thanksgiving Day game with Quincy.

For 'Savings Make Cents' Program Shannon O'Brien To Visit Atherton Hough School

State Treasurer Shannon O'Brien will be the guest speaker at the kickoff of the "Savings Make Cents" program Thursday, Jan. 3 at 10 a.m. at the Atherton Hough Elementary School, 1084 Sea St.

O'Brien will be accompanied by professional soccer player Allie Kemp of the Boston Breakers and South Coastal Bank Vice President Elaine duJardin.

The objective of the "Savings Make Cents" program, which is sponsored by the Office of the Treasurer, is for schools to work with local banks to improve the economic literacy of students.

The program gives students -- fourth graders, in the particular case of the Atherton Hough School -- the opportunity to open a savings account and watch it grow. In addition, the program has a 13-lesson curriculum that covers basic monetary concepts.

Volunteers from South Coastal Bank will facilitate the lessons. Special guests from the financial community will also address the students.

Atherton Hough Principal Dorothy Greene said that the "Savings Make Cents" program would be of special benefit who will be taking the MCAS exams in 2002.

Taxpayers Assn. Head Says Research Find Will Save City $100,000

Alan Cousin, president of the new Quincy Taxpayers' Association, says the city will save $100,000 this fiscal year and $200,000 a year thereafter due to the work of the association's new research director, Robert Haley.

Haley, who is town treasurer in Hanover, spotted a $200,000 line item in the Quincy city budget for Social Security taxes for part-time, seasonal, and temporary employees, Cousin said. But under state law, all cities and towns are required to participate in a mandatory deferred compensation plan for such employees, to which the employee alone contributes. The plan is an alternative to Social Security coverage authorized by the U.S. Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990, Cousin said.

ALAN COUSIN

After identifying the unnecessary expenditure, Haley contacted City Councilor Francis McCauley, chairman of the Council Finance Committee. As a result, they city will participate in a deferred compensation plan beginning Jan. 1, Cousin said.

"This is a win-win for everyone," Cousin said. "These part-time, seasonal, and temporary employees get their retirement coverage, tax-deferred, and the taxpayers of Quincy save $200,000 a year. But in this case we were just fortunate that such an obvious item was staring us right in the face in the otherwise impenetrable pages of the city budget.

"Imagine how much more money the taxpayers might save, with no loss of essential services, if the budgetary process, and the product, were more open and understandable."

volunteer instruction for the youth of Quincy.

Gaetano Spinelli and his son Guy Spinelli will carry it on Hancock Street near Merrymount Park. David McCarthy and Donald Cornell will carry the torch in Boston.

Each runner will carry the torch a previously designated distance of 0.2 miles.

In addition to the above-mentioned names, corporate sponsors Coca-Cola and Chevy have host torchbearers that will carry the torch through Quincy.

The torchbearers were chosen from more than 210,000 people that were nominated. They were nominated by a 50-100 word essay and chosen based on the following criteria: inspire others to greater achievement, inspire their communities, embody the inspirational spirit of the Olympic movement and motivate others by encountering and overcoming adversity.

Tyler Gagnon Raises $50 To Aid Victims Of Sea St. Fire

Ten-year old Tyler Gagnon, a student at the Atherton Hough Elementary School and a news carrier for The Quincy Sun, raised $50 to aid the family of Kathleen Madden, a 48-year old woman who died in a tragic home fire Dec. 18 at her Sea St. home.

On his own initiative Gagnon, who lives on Lyons St. with his mother Tracy Elias, donated his paper route money and some personal savings and then went about the neighborhood collecting donations.

"We're just so proud of him," said Louis Elias, the boy's great-uncle, who will send the money to an account set up for the Madden family.

Madden, who was terminally ill, died in the accidental fire Dec. 18 despite the rescue efforts of her two children and Quincy firefighters.

Citizen Lawsuit Claims Environmental Damage At Quarry Hills Project

A lawsuit alleging "massive environmental damage" at the Quarry Hills Project in West Quincy and parts of Milton was filed recently by a non-profit group named Coalition Against Pollution (CAP) under the citizen suit provisions act of the federal Clean Water Act.

CAP's lawsuit seeks a court-imposed enforcement order that halts further dumping of "Big Dig" excavate and other waste materials at Quarry Hills, blocks the importation of industrial sludge as a substitute for clean topsoil, requires the "immediate stabilization" of the site, and compels restoration to more than 100 acres which, the group asserts, have been heavily polluted by silt and sludge as a result of runoff.

CAP, which defines itself as "a broad-based coalition" including numerous groups and affected residents from both Quincy and Milton, named the following defendants in its lawsuit: Quarry Hills Associates, developer; McCourt Construction, general contractor; Sverdrup Civil, project engineer; the City of Quincy, Town of Milton, and Metropolitan District Commission, owners of the land in question; the Massachusetts Highway Department and Massachusetts Turnpike Authority, proponents of the Central Artery Project; Bechtel/Parsons Brinckerhoff, master consultant and construction manager for the "Big Dig" Project; New England Waste Services of Maine, a vendor of industrial sludge being used at the site; and John Doe Sludge Sources, referring to "as yet unknown" sludge sources.

CAP has produced a one-hour video presentation on the alleged "massive environmental damages" which it seeks to address through its citizen lawsuit.

The video presentation has been offered to community access cable TV stations in both Quincy and Milton. According to CAP, the video has been aired in Milton but not yet in Quincy. Copies of the video presentation can be obtained by calling Barbara Godin at (617) 951-1149.

CAP, whose president is Thomas Palmer, filed the suit Dec. 17 in US District Court.

Quarry Hills Associates is in the final stages of receiving more than 12 million tons of "Big Dig" fill entailing approximately 547,800 round-trip truck trips. The fill is being used to cap former quarry landfills to create a 27-hole, public golf course complete with a club house and playing fields to be used by the city.

The city, which owns Quincy's portion of the land, has received roughly $100 million dollars to receive the "Big Dig" fill, funds which have been put back into the Quarry Hills Project.

Quarry Hills Associates, which expects most of the golf course to be ready for play by the spring of 2002, signed a 50-year lease on the property, after which it reverts back to city control.

Proposed Legislation On Abortion Discussion Topic At St. John's

The Social Justice Commission of St. John the Baptist Church will sponsor a panel discussion on the proposed state legislation,

The Woman's Right to Know, S924 and H3953, Tuesday, Jan. 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the church hall, 44 School St.

Panelists making the presentation are Gertrude H. Murphy, M.D., and Susan J. Gay, Esq. A question and answer session will follow the presentation.

The Woman's Right to Know Act provides for fully informed consent for women who are considering an abortion. ### MARCH Mayor James Sheets, responding to unexpectedly high health insurance costs, ordered city department heads to cut their expense lines by 10 percent in the Fiscal 2002 municipal budget.

"The budget is going to be very tight," warned the mayor, "much tighter than usual. If they don't make the cuts I will"

He explained that health insurance costs were budgeted at $18 million but were exceeding projections by $150,000 to $200,000 a month. The cuts would affect only the department's supplies or maintenance, and not salaries, said City Auditor Michael McFarland.

Quincy mostly escaped the wrath of a two-day northeast storm, expected to be the equal of the Blizzard of '78, but left the city's supply of road salt perilously low. DPW Commissioner David Colton said his crews used 1,000 tons of road salt in 36 hours and more than 100 pieces of equipment.

But three weeks later, the city was still bailing out from under flooding caused by the storm with 137 flooding incidents of flooded houses, apartments, basements and streets across the city. Mayor Sheets ordered a shelter to be opened at the Center for Technical Education.

Elizabeth Bloomer of Quincy, a 15-year-old sophomore at Archbishop Williams High School, addressed more than 900 youth delegates from around the world on child labor at the 25th anniversary of the United Nations International School Conference in New York.

The proposal to construct The Village at Quarry Hills, a 324-unit apartment complex on 28 acres of land off Ricciuti Drive in West Quincy, met with a generally favorable response at a public hearing before the City Council, acting as a special permit granting authority.

owned Quincy City Hospital had reduced its operating loss by 45 percent, from $14.9 million in Fiscal 1999 to $8.4 million in Fiscal 2000 since going private.

The cabaret license held by Brigadoon's in Quincy Point and the restaurant placed on a 90-day probation period after Det. Lt. Robert Perchard, the liquor inspector, called the place 80 percent bar and 20 percent a food establishment which changed chefs every two weeks. There had been 42 calls to police over the past couple years, said Perchard.

Figures released by the 2000 Federal Census showed that Quincy's population increased by 4 percent over 1990, from 84,985 to 88,025, but the Asian population of the city went up by 60 percent, from 5,777 in 1990 to the current figure of 13,546. Asians were now 15 percent of the total population.

City Council President Paul Harold made it official, he would not run for reelection in the fall elections.

School Committee woman Christine Cedrone proposed that the Siting Committee consider the Park Department's headquarters on the former Nike site in Merrymount Park as the location of the new Quincy High School, despite what is thought to be deed restrictions.

People have just assumed it's part of the Adams Trust and it's not," she said. "It's a totally separate piece of property and deeded differently."

The Rev. William Harding, pastor of Bethany Congregational Church and a captain in the Army Reserve, left for a six-month deployment in Kosovo as chaplain for the 399th Combat Support Hospital unit.

The state made a commitment of $18 million for the construction of ramps joining the Crown Colony Office Complex in South Quincy to the north-bound lanes of Route 93 and the south-bound lanes of Route 3. They could be completed as early as 2004.

Albert Megna of Quincy, a World War II Army veteran who was wounded in the Battle of the Bulge, was set to leave for Europe to take part in the 26th Infantry "Yankee Division" Association's two-week commemorative tour of France, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Nomination Ballot Below On This Page Dec. 31 Deadline For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Monday, Dec. 31 is the last day to nominate someone for The Quincy Sun's 17th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Carol Herbai was honored for her dedication, enthusiasm and inspiration as a volunteer for a half century at Quincy Medical Center, the American Red

Herbai was selected from among 37 nominees submitted by Sun readers. A panel of judges representing a cross-section of the community made the final decision.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving of the award.

After nominations close Monday, Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

The Quincy Sun
Attn. Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 31.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his/her time to a worthy project or cause.

award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense), 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch, Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE) and longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Olin Taylor for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love," 1996.

Robert Derbes for his volunteer work and many contributions to the community during a "life-long love affair" with his native Quincy, 1997.

Robert "Bob" Curry for his long-time volunteer work in worthy civic and charitable causes as a member of many local organizations, including the Quincy Partnership, Quincy Commission on the Family and the Marie A. Curry Foundation which provides free mammograms for individuals not covered by health insurance, 1998.

Ronald G. Adams, who has given freely of his time to guide and inspire his Broad Meadows Middle School students in highly acclaimed efforts to right social wrongs and oversights, both local and worldwide, 1999.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Monday, Dec. 31.

$80,000 Consultant Proposed To Assist Property Revaluation

of the Hat Rack Bar in West Quincy, where a police raid the previous September netted arrests on drug and gambling charges, was transferred to The Eight Ball in Quincy Square. Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico hailed the move as a "clear message of change and new beginnings at Brewer's Corner."

Quincy Citizens for Safe Schools was honored with an "outstanding activism" award by the Toxic Action Center for halting the construction of a new Quincy High School on the site of an old Fore River Shipyard toxic waste dump.

Carol Herbai of Houghs Neck, a dedicated volunteer at Quincy Medical Center and with the American Red Cross for more than half a century, including a stint at a leper colony in the West Indies, was honored as The Quincy Sun's Citizen of the Year.

School Superintendent Eugene Creedon and City Councillor Frank McCauley clashed at an Education Committee hearing over expected results of MCAS tests as 500 in the 10th grade at Quincy Public Schools prepared to take the test, which will be a requirement for high school graduation for the first time.

A coyote was spotted with increased frequency to the rear of the Beechwood Community Life Center in Squantum, leading to concerns for children who attend the Center's programs and for pets in the neighborhood.

The Quincy Lions Club observed the 60th anniversary of its founding at a dinner meeting at the Neighborhood Club.

The sixth-seeded North Quincy High School girls' basketball team, the Old Colony League champion, was eliminated from the state tournament in a 45-36 upset by Somerset, the same team that sent them home early the previous year.

The Quincy Squirt A Wolfpack travel hockey team, with a 39-5 season's record, defeated Andover, 2-1, to win the state championship at the Springfield Olympia. Johnny McInnis and Chris Brown scored the goals.

Senior Rory Lydon, who won 42 of 44 bouts during the season, became the eighth wrestler in Quincy High School history to win a state wrestling title when he pinned BC High's Neil Paolotta in just under 90 seconds in the final.

With 17 players returning, the Quincy High School hockey team looked forward to the 2001-02 season after absorbing a 6-1 beating from Norwood in the semi-finals of the Division I South sectionals in the state tournament.

Deaths in March included: Robert Schuerch Jr., 74, of Port St. Lucie, Fla., formerly of Quincy, a retired Coast Guard commander who showed and judged thoroughbred dogs at shows across the country.

William F. Johnston, 68, of Squantum, who parlayed his hobby of aerial photography into a successful business, Johnston Aerial Photography.

Dr. James O'Hare, 80, of Worcester, formerly of Quincy, who practiced medicine at several hospitals, including the VA Hospital in West Roxbury for 20 years.

James D. Martel, 78, of Quincy, a retired postal employee who was the tenor voice of the Belles and Beaus, an entertainment group, for 50 years.

Edmea Settimelli, 96, of Quincy, former owner of E. Settimelli and Sons, Inc., the granite cutting firm.

William L. Phinney, 80, of Quincy, retired assistant superintendent of Quincy Public Schools.

Dr. Zarko Jovanovic, 76, of Quincy, a Boston dentist for many years who served in the Yugoslavian army during World War II.

APRIL

Mayor James Sheets requested an $80,000 appropriation to hire an outside consultant for the "very complicated process" of revaluing Quincy's commercial and industrial property in preparation for the state's upcoming three-year recertification for Fiscal 2002. Valuation for the city for Fiscal 2001 was $5,371,145,580.

Three K-9 police dogs from Quincy and one from Braintree were outfitted with $650 bullet-proof, stab-proof vests, gifts of Victor and Octavio Carvalho, owners of several Dunkin' Donut franchises, the Clashy family of Milton and Wal-Mart of Quincy.

The City Council listened for more than five hours to testimony at a hearing into a special permit for the Village at Quarry Hills but found themselves no closer to a decision on the proposed 324-unit apartment complex in West Quincy. The Council has 90 days to make up its mind.

Harold also proposed that the Quincy Homestead, the handsome Colonial home at 34 Butler Rd., dating back to 1685, where John Hancock romanced his beloved Dorothy Quincy, be renovated as a home-away-from-home for acting Gov. Jane Swift and future governors of the Commonwealth.

Police Chief Thomas Frane was undergoing a cardiac rehabilitation program at Quincy Medical Center after Jan. 3 heart surgery that followed a heart attack late in December, 2000.

The License Board voted 3-2 in favor of a beer and wine license for Mike Shanahan, owner of the Tedeschi Food Shop at 751 East Squantum St., despite City Councillor Joseph Newton's assertion that it was "clear that the public did not want this license," and acting Police Chief Terrance Kelly's opposition.

MAY

Mayor James Sheets submitted a proposed $193 million budget for Fiscal 2002 to the City Council, representing a 5 per cent increase over Fiscal 2001, which, the mayor noted, was 2 or 3 per cent less of an increase from the previous year.

"This is a very tight budget," said Sheets, explaining that most of the increases were in the area of fixed costs like contract step raises, health insurance and pensions, and included the average annual payment of $4.5 million as the city's commitment to the new Quincy Medical Center.

Nevertheless, the budget also called for funding for an additional building inspector at $51,726 yearly and an additional assistant city solicitor at $42,500, as well as new positions for the newly expanded Thomas Crane Public Library and additional crossing guards.

Two firefighters suffered minor injuries as an early morning fire caused more than $1 million to downtown businesses, including the Peach Garden Restaurant, Tasos Pizza & Euro Cafe, the Pretty Nails Salon and the site of the former Blue Note Exchange, all on Hancock Street.

School Committeeman

William Phelan was rumored to be contemplating a run for mayor against the veteran incumbent James Sheets in the November election. "I will make my intentions known at the appropriate time," Phelan told speculators.

The School Committee was considering the DPW Headquarters at 55 Sea St. as the site for the new Quincy High School, which was recommended overwhelmingly by the Quincy High School Siting Commission.

The first serious opposition to the site was offered by City Councillor Frank McCauley, who said it makes no sense "to demolish a perfectly good DPW complex that is centrally located and move it to another location." He said he supported Faxon Field as the site of the new high school.

Another supporter of Faxon Field was School Committeeman Phelan, who explained that "the burden on the taxpayer will be too much and funds will be spent towards a new DPW rather than a state-of-the-art new high school, where they should be."

Mayor Sheets suggested that the section of the property at the Fore River Shipyard owned by the MWRA should be considered as the new home of the DPW if the old site were given up to the new high school.

"We're looking very seriously at the shipyard," said the mayor.

Dickinson Development proposed construction of a 265,000 square foot office building next to the North Quincy MBTA station, leading to renewed consideration being given to an off-ramp directly connecting the north-bound lanes of the Southeast Expressway to the Neponset River Bridge.

Developer Mark Dickinson of Quincy called talk of the proposed development "premature," until the MBTA approves the lease for the development site.

School Superintendent Eugene Creedon called his recent decision to retire "appropriate" for both himself and the Quincy Public Schools, which he had served for 36 years, the last nine of them as superintendent. "There comes a logical time when it's proper to step down and let someone else handle the reins."

"I'm hopeful that, through this plan, the city will receive over time 100 cents on the dollar (for its share of loans to MHI)," he said.

MHI and its owner, Sotirios Emmanouil, filed for bankruptcy after defaulting on a number of shipyard loans, including $55 million backed by the U. S. government and almost $10 million contributed by the city.

After MHI defaulted on the loan, the city became responsible for the 20-year, $7.8 million loan. The first annual repayment of $330,000 was made in 2001 and the city was committed to pay $688,949 of its federal CDBG funds in Fiscal 2002.

The Board of Governors of Quincy College approved a $12.4 million budget for Fiscal 2002, up from $11.7 million, a move that would require a modest tuition increase of approximately 3 percent to meet strategic

The Robert F. Dana Distinguished Service Award for Law Enforcement went to Quincy Police Officers Paul Brown, Michael Sullivan, Edward Ryan and Bruce Tait for their rescue of residents from a burning building.

Mayor Sheets said he was considering a bond issue of at least $500,000, perhaps as much as $1 million to address the city's road and sidewalk needs and also plant more trees in the city. Sheets said Quincy was due to receive $200,000 in Chapter 90 funds for roads and sidewalks.

Lawmen, including the FBI, were investigating the theft of "The Old Philosopher," an invaluable stained glass window by famed artist John LaFarge which was discovered missing from the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Eleven students in the fourth and fifth grades at the Merrymount School were honored by the City Council for their work in setting up a woodland sanctuary for wildlife beside the school that received the designation Urban Wildlife Sanctuary from the Humane Society of the United States.

Owner Charles S. Debreczeni withdrew his application for a beer and wine license for Anna's Hungarian Restaurant on Willard Street in West Quincy in the face of neighborhood opposition. Debreczeni said he listened to his customers who advised him to withdraw so that he could reapplly.

The Rev. Ann Suzedell, a Quincy native, was installed as pastor of the Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Ray Flynn, the former mayor of Boston and U. S. ambassador to the Vatican and author of the new book "John Paul II: The Pope and the Man," was the featured speaker at the 54th annual Interfaith South Shore Men's Prayer Breakfast.

The 464-room Marriott Hotel, the first new full-service hotel on the South Shore in 25 years, opened atop a granite ledge overlooking Crown Colony Office Park in West Quincy.

The Houghs Neck HOPE/ Marsh Madness group of some 50 volunteers, head by P. J. Foley, won first place in the first annual "Cleaner, Greener Quincy Challenge" by cleaning more than 80 yards of debris from six different marshes, beaches and parks areas in Houghs Neck.

The Rev. Msgr. Peter Hart, who served Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck from 1936 to 1945, was scheduled to celebrate mass at the church to commemorate the 65th anniversary of his ordination as a priest. The celebration was canceled, however, when Msgr. Hart suffered a broken hip.

JUNE

School Committeemen William Phelan made it official that he will be running for mayor against James Sheets, the six-term incumbent who had not had a major challenger since he was first elected in 1989.

"In his formal announcement, Phelan said he was "mindful of the awesome responsibility to undertake a campaign against an entrenched 12-year incumbent" but, he added he felt "up to the campaign."

The time is now," said Phelan, who is the son-in-law of former Mayor Arthur Tobin. "The citizens of Quincy are ready to listen to an elected official who stands up against the odds to do what is right and speak directly to the people with straight talk."

Sheets and Phelan immediately clashed over the city's financial figures and what they mean, with the challenger labeling as "inaccurate" statements attributed to the mayor concerning the administration's history of tax increases.

Sheets said he was misquoted by the Patriot Ledger in its June 20 article comparing budget increases between the 1980s and 1990s, not tax increases. "I was talking about budgets, not taxes," said Sheets.

The City Council approved a $193,093,967 municipal budget for Fiscal 2002, beginning July 1. Minor cuts made by the Council's Finance Committee totaled $40,000.

Members of the City Council were stunned by a letter from the Elder Housing Corporation to senior residents of Squantum Gardens Naval Terrace informing them of a $75 monthly rental increase with the possibility of terminating their leases on June 30.

"This is absolutely the worst letter to a senior group that I have ever read," said Mayor James Sheets as he demanded an apology from the now private, non-profit corporation that was created by the city when it purchased Squantum Gardens from the Navy for $1.

School Committeewoman Linda Stice was appointed chairwoman of the Search Committee that was named to find the city's next superintendent of schools to succeed the retiring Eugene Creedon.

The City Council approved a redistricting plan for the city's wards and precincts, based on the latest federal census, that changed less than 10 percent of its political configuration. One important change placed Quincy Center in Ward 5 along with Wollaston Center.

Mayor Sheets declared his preference for construction of the new Quincy High School on the Faxon Field site next to the current QHS and expressed confidence that the School Committee would vote in support of his decision.

Legislation authorizing a memorial in Washington, D. C. to the legacy of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams, co-authored by Cong. Bill Delahunt, received a green light from the House Subcommittee on National Parks and was sent on to the full House Resources Committee.

The Massachusetts Democratic Party moved its headquarters from Boston to the SAR Building at 10 Granite St. in Quincy. State Chairman Phil Johnston noted that "there is an enormous amount of energy in Quincy Democrats. They will help us, volunteering to do the nitty, gritty work."

The City Council headed off a plan to build five single family homes and a five-unit town house by rezoning from Residence A and B to Open Space a parcel of land on the southerly side of Sea Street, which directly abuts the Broad Meadows marshlands. Attorneys for the Gallagher Group, the owner, called it "spot zoning," which could be challenged legally.

Mayor Sheets allocated $300,000 to the Park and Forestry Department for the planting of about 1,000 trees across the city in the fall of 2001, the most extensive tree planting in three years. Sheets called it "an investment in the future of the city."

For the second time in several weeks, the License Board denied a beer and wine license to owner Charles Debreczeni for Anna's Hungarian Restaurant, 258 Willard St., after the Board decided to "honor" the opposition of landlord Bruce Wood.

Mayor Sheets announced that a second public works crew will be added, at no expense to the city, to make badly needed emergency repairs to streets and sidewalks during the summer and fall months. "The funding is already in the budget," said Sheets who explained that four currently vacant DPW positions will be filled.

The License Board suspended the all-alcoholic license of Paddy Barry's bar, 1517 Hancock St., for overcrowding, overpouring and serving intoxicated patrons. Det. Lt. Richard Perchard said owner Gerard Hanley failed to check IDs and was "not a good owner or manager."

The City Council, acting as a special permit granting authority, found developer Roseland/Faxon Woods LLC in violation of the "responsible employer" language in its permit to build The Highlands at Faxon Woods. The responsible employer rules specify prevailing wages, medical coverage, accident insurance, an apprentice program and local hiring.

Marriott International CEO J. W. Marriott and Flatley Company President Thomas J. Flatley presided over the grand opening of the $30 million, 464-room Marriott Hotel overlooking the Crown Colony Office Park in West Quincy.

Gail Weatherhead was feted on her retirement as assistant principal and fifth grade teacher at the Parker Elementary School after 40 years of service to the Quincy public school system.

Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton blasted officials of the USS Salem for lowballing their estimates of the cost of moving the ship to Marina Bay, producing letters that indicated the cost would be three times that previously estimated.

The second edition of "The Guide to the Quincy Beaches," published by the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, were proving just as popular as the first. "I dropped 100 copies off at Tony's Clam Shop last week and they've already asked for 300 more," said Commission Chairman Leo Kelly.

Retiring School Superintendent Eugene Creedon was recognized with the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award at the annual Flag Day Parade and Celebration. He was cited for "his lifetime dedication to helping children receive the educational foundation they need to succeed in life."

Franchise owners Victor and Octavio Carvalho celebrated the reopening of their store at 543 Southern Artery, the original Dunkin' Donuts shop in the United States, opened in May, 1950, by founder William Rosenberg. Currently there are 6,000 Dunkin' Donuts franchises across the country.

Point Webster Middle School, which recently underwent a $7 million conversion from an elementary school, held its official rededication ceremony. In attendance was 102-year-old Winifred Lancy, whose five children all attended the Quincy Point school, including son, Nicholas, who was killed in World War II.

Cavanaugh Stadium in North Quincy was rededicated in conjunction with the 50th anniversary commemoration of the Quincy Flag Day Parade, which originated in the stadium in 1952.

A record-breaking 787 participants took part in the fourth annual Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run for ALS, raising an all-time high of $48,000 for research into Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis, better known as Lou Gehrig's Disease.

Washington Morisset, a native of Haiti and a sophomore at Quincy High School, won the high jump crown at the New England Interscholastic Track and Field Championships in Hampton, N. H., with a leap of 6 feet, 8 inches.

had a new home after the Quincy High School girls' softball team defeated North Quincy, 17-1. "They brought it over at the end of the game and I didn't even know what it was," said Quincy Coach Mike Sedar.

After hinting broadly that he might run for mayor, Robert Boussy opted for city councillor at the last minutes, leaving the mayor's race to incumbent James Sheets, 66, and School Committee member William Phelan, 41, who will bypass a primary and meet in the final election Nov. 6.

A total of 33 candidates filed nomination papers before the deadline and 21 of them were set to square off in preliminary contests for councillor in a Sept. 11 primary election.

Members of the "No Need" Committee, formed to oppose a beer and wine license granted to Tedeschi Food Shop, 751 East Squantum St., planned a show of neighborhood unity at an Aug. 8 appeal hearing before the State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC).

Ward 6 City Councillor Joseph Newton asked State Secretary William Galvin to intervene after the Massachusetts Highway Department failed to respond to his correspondence questioning the proposed move of the USS Salem from the Fore River

AUGUST

City Council President Paul Harold and Councillor Frank McCauley asked the council to reconsider their June action which transferred more than $5,200,000 from accounts with year-end surpluses to accounts with deficits at year's end.

At issue was the transfer to the General Budget of $525,000 from the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund, which Harold and McCauley maintained could be used only for specific sewer issues outlined in the home rule petition that created the fund.

Harold and City Solicitor Stephen McGrath clashed over the city's failure to obtain a lien on the $2.7 million home of controversial ship-builder Sotirios Emmanouil, an oversight which Harold said cost the city "any hope of recovering part of the $7.8 million owed to the city."

McGrath said the lien had been denied because of a judge's ruling that actions of corporate entities run by Emmanouil are separate from the acts of Emmanouil himself. "That's first year law school," said McGrath. "That's why you form corporations."

Mayoral candidate William Phelan called into question the city's purchase of the former Bethlehem Steel toxic landfill off Quincy Avenue, which was to be used as the site of a new Quincy High School. The location was eventually rejected for the school after a public outcry.

Mayor Sheets called Phelan's inquiry "old news," saying that the only new development on the subject was recent bids of $4.6 million and $5.6 million for the 16-acre parcel that the city purchased for $3.5 million.

Assistant Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro was recommended by an interview committee as the successor to Dr. Eugene Creedon for the permanent post of superintendent. DeCristofaro had been acting superintendent since Creedon retired in June.

The Health Department ordered Quarry Hills Associates not to use Short Paper Fiber (SPF) in the foam layer landfill cap on the Quincy section of the Quarry Hills golf course project. Use of the product, said the Health Department, "constitutes a public health nuisance."

The License Board scheduled another inspection of a building on Washington Street, owned by Assessor Joseph LaRaia, to determine if it is a rooming house, why LaRaia failed to respond to a letter from Chairman Joseph Shea and answer a complaint from a tenant who had been evicted by LaRaia.

LaRaia called the issue a "runaway horse" with all the coverage by the media.

LaRaia, who founded the series in 1983, said he was stepping down after 19 years as coordinator of the summer concert series at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre, begun during LaRaia's term as mayor of Quincy in 1976 and named for the Quincy-born actress.

Acting Governor Jane Swift delivered her second annual State of Education speech at Quincy High School in acknowledgment of the Quincy Public Schools' success in reducing class sizes at the elementary level and its recent selection for blue ribbon and "exemplar school" honors.

Project Manager Michael Galvin said the design phase of the $4.5 million Wollaston Beach seawall project near the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and Rice Road is 75 percent complete and repair and rehabilitation work is expected to begin in the spring of 2002 with completion scheduled for November, 2003.

Family and friends of Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek of Wauwatose, Wis., the Quincy Point girl who lost both arms and both legs to a rare bacteria, raised some $50,000 at a sold out benefit at St. Joseph's Parish Center.

The seventh annual Food Fest & Auction netted more than $200,000 for Father Bill's Place, the emergency shelter for the homeless in Quincy. "This comes at a very critical time when we are faced with state budget cuts," said John Yazwinski, the shelter director. "This is our big fundraiser of the year."

Council President Harold filed a resolution with the Council urging the MDC and the Colonial Dames to begin negotiations for the transfer of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead on Butler Road to the National Park Service. The Homestead is owned by the MDC and leased to the Dames under the agreement that expires in 2004.

Another resolve, filed by Mayor James Sheets, would name the West Quincy Fire Station in honor of the Malvesti Family, which the mayor called "a grand old family" that contributed to the QFD four brothers, Joseph, Nick, Louis and Anthony, all of whom retired as lieutenants.

The Young Adults Room in the newly expended Thomas Crane Public Library was dedicated to the memory of Harry Beede and his wife, Louisa, a retired educator who bequeathed $1.2 million to be used for scholarships for high school seniors.

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project placed a "gravit trap" at 84 Furnace Brook Parkway to collect mosquitoes to be tested for the West Nile Virus in response to the discovery nearby of a dead crow that tested positive for the virus that is deadly to birds.

A plan to build a Little Fenway Park, complete with Green Monster, on MDC parkland in Quincy, announced then dropped by former Red Sox Tim Lincecum, was revived by Ron Iacobucci, president of the South Shore and Neponset Valley Community Foundation.

Deaths in August included:

SEPTEMBER

Politics in Quincy took a backseat to national unity in the wake of the terrorist attack on New York City as only 29 per cent of Quincy's 52,253 registered voters went to the polls to cast ballots in the preliminary election that narrowed the field for the Nov. 6 general election to two finalists for each seat.

City Clerk Joseph Shea had predicted a 35 to 40 percent turnout.

"It put a pallor over things," said Joseph Finn, who qualified to become a candidate for an at-large seat on the City Council. "The whole point of terrorism is to isolate you with fear, but we showed them that democracy still works."

Most notable among the winners in the preliminary election was Jimmy Liang, 24, a restaurant owner who became the first Asian-American nominated in the city's history when he landed the sixth and final spot in the City Council at-large field.

Also notable was the rejection by the voters of Stephen Durkin, 45, who was seeking the nomination to run for a fourth term from Ward 5. He was beaten by Doug Gutro and James Mullaney. Durkin lost out by only 28 votes.

Durkin and John Cain, who failed to obtain the nomination in Ward 3 by only 43 votes, had recounts under consideration.

Timothy Cahill, 42, who had visions of running for state treasurer, topped the vote-getters in his bid for an eighth two-year term on the Council at-large with 7,518 votes, followed by Frank McCauley, the former mayor, with 7,303.

The acts of terrorism that struck New York, Washington and western Pennsylvania had other effects in Quincy that went far beyond the hijacked plane crash sites at the World Trade Center towers and the Pentagon.

An estimated 6,000 residents of all ages, faiths and walks of life filled the stands at Veterans Memorial Stadium to offer prayers for the victims of the attacks. Those in attendance included members of Quincy Point's Islamic Center of New England, which had received threats after the attacks.

Susan McKay, mother of two and a former Wollaston resident, was aboard American Airlines Flight 11 which was hijacked en route from Boston's Logan Airport to Los Angeles and deliberately crashed into one of the WTC towers.

City employees serving as reservists who are called to active duty in the wake of the terrorist attacks on New York City would be compensated with regular pay minus their military allowances under a resolve passed by the City Council.

Mayoral candidate William Phelan filed a request under the Freedom of Information Act to obtain all city documents pertaining to the Quarry Hills Golf Course project in West Quincy. Phelan said he wanted to find out where nearly $100 million in tipping fees paid by the state went.

Mayor Sheets failed to show up at a Candidates' Night at the Beechwood Knoll School, claiming a prior commitment that could not be broken and leading his opponent, William Phelan, to accuse the six term mayor of ducking a debate on the issues.

Congressional Medal of Honor winner Everett Pope, a 1937 graduate of North Quincy High School, but now a resident of Florida, was in Boston to attend the Medal of Honor Society's annual convention and was scheduled to visit his old school. But the visit was canceled in the wake of the terrorist attack on New York City.

Attorney George Burke, the former district attorney, state rep and city councillor, who rescued the historic Col. John Quincy tankard from a New York City auction block was selected as "Citizen of the Year" by the Jewish War Veterans Post.

Quincy was one of only six winners nationwide of the of the first John A. Sasso National Community Development Award competition in recognition of the city's commitment to community development.

More than 700 people participated in the fourth annual Marie Curry Walk, which raised more than $100,000 to provide free mammograms for women in need and promote breast cancer awareness.

Donna Noble, the wife of Bob Noble, the Quincy High School football coach, purchased for her husband the gift he had "wanted to do for some time" for his 50th birthday—a parachute jump from 13,500 feet over the central Massachusetts town of Orange.

Deaths in September included:

Edward Baldwin, 85, of Quincy, owner of the former Sherry's Restaurant on Southern Artery for more than 20 years.

Denis Kennedy, 86, of Quincy, a prominent figure in the Boston Irish community.

Patrizio Avitabile, 93, of Quincy, the great-grandfather of 24 children.

Arthur Ciampa, 86, of Quincy, president of the Board of Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Richard J. Larkin Jr., 73, of San Francisco, formerly of Quincy, who installed the first computer in Hong Kong for IBM World Trade Corp.

Irene Williamson, 85, of Quincy, a violinist with the Quincy Symphony Orchestra for more than 40 years.

OCTOBER

In a stunning last minute move, City Council Paul Harold endorsed William Phelan in his race to unseat

Major James Sheets, telling a news conference at 1000 Southern Artery that he plans to campaign vigorously for Phelan in the week that was left before the Nov. 5 election.

"Quincy needs a mayor who is committed to the future of the city and its citizens," he said.

Councillor Frank McCauley then delivered the second punch at the Sheets campaign, saying: "I will cast my vote for an individual who has the vision and the proven ability to lead this city into the 21st Century. I will vote for Bill Phelan."

A request by Harold seeking additional information on the city's purchase of land off Quincy Avenue as the site of a new Quincy High School was referred to the Oversight Committee. The 21-acre parcel was purchased by developer D.J. McKinnon for $1 million in 1997 and 15 acres were sold to the city for $3.5 million in 1998.

Councillor McCauley wrote to Mayor Sheets asking for an investigation into "a rash of recent thefts" at the Thomas Crane Public Library and an inventory of the library's valuables. Library Director Ann McLaughlin said she was disappointed that McCauley didn't task the library first, adding that the persistent tumors of thefts have "no basis" in fact.

The City Council, by an 8-1 margin, approved an appropriation of $188,442 for six additional patrolmen on the Quincy Police Department, bringing the total number of patrolmen on the force to 167. The recruits were sworn in immediately so they could attend police academy training in Weymouth.

The lone vote in opposition was cast by Councillor McCauley, who contended that expiring Civil Service lists were behind the hirings which should have been funded in the current budget.

The License Board voted to rewrite and readopt a policy, known as BYOB

Fire Capt. Bernard McCauley and Firefighter James Wong were injured while fighting a blaze that did an estimated $250,000 damage to a home on Verchild Street in South Quincy. Five people in the three-family building at the time for the fire escaped without injury.

The city of Quincy hosted an Anti-Terror Seminar for city officials and security professionals on preparedness measures against terrorism, featuring as keynote speaker Colonel David Gavigan, an internationally recognized specialist in terrorism and school violence.

"The best thing you can do is maintain awareness and the worst thing you can do is stay at home," Gavigan told the seminar.

Major Douglas Jones, commander of the Quincy Temple Corps of the Salvation Army, returned from a week in New York City where he manned the midnight to 8 a.m. shift at the Salvation Army's aid station roughly 100 yards from the site of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center towers.

John "Jake" Comer of Quincy, former national commander of the American Legion, who was in Washington when the terrorists attacked, called it "a day of insanity . . . that will be remembered in the same way as Pearl Harbor. We're at war. We really are."

Feelings aroused by the attacks reached down to Nicholas McGaughey of West Quincy, a first grader at the Bernazzani Elementary School, who raised more than $500 in a door-to-door campaign with his flag-bedecked red wagon in the Kimball Street neighborhood to aid relief efforts in New York City.

Mayor Sheets announced a $9.8 million plan to acquire open space and renovate Quincy's major park locations, including major rehabilitation to Veterans Memorial Stadium, Adams Field, Improvements to the Stadium included the installation of "state of the art" artificial turf and construction of an eight-lane track.

Joseph Shea was reelected to a fourth three-year term as city clerk.

The 266th birthday of John Adams was observed at the Adams National Historic Park with a symposium entitled "John Adams: Monuments Will Never Be Erected To Me." Ironically, a couple of weeks before, the U. S. House voted to erect a monument to Adams on or near the Mall in Washington.

Ground was broken for four Little League baseball fields and four Youth Soccer fields on a parcel of land adjacent to Ricciutti Drive as part of the Quarry Hills project. William Phelan, a comparative newcomer to Quincy politics, defeated six-term Mayor James Sheets by a scant 15 votes.

A hand recount extended Phelan's margin to 17 votes out of 24,935 votes cast.

"It's phenomenal, I'm overwhelmed," said Phelan, whose vote was 12,355 or 49.93 percent to 12,338 or 49.89 percent for Sheets. Only 47 percent of Quincy's record high 53,021 registered voters turned out to vote.

Sheets, after a review of absentee ballots, conceded the election and chose not to pursue the result in court.

"We are satisfied that it was a very narrow but accurate margin of victory," he said, "and we decided not to pursue the recount further. If it's not to be, then it's not to be. When one door closes, two doors open."

Phelan, the first new mayor in more than a decade, chose his brother, Chris, the co-manager of his successful campaign, to lead his transition team, while Sheets named City Solicitor Stephen McGrath to help with the transition to "complete the year with dignity and success."

"There are tough economic times ahead and we have to be prepared to face them," said Phelan, who takes office Jan. 6. "There are decisions to be made and I am going to make the decisions I feel must be made. I am not going to play games with the public."

THE HAND RECOUNT of all 24,935 ballots cast in the Nov. 6 city election earned Mayor-Elect William Phelan a 17-vote victory over incumbent James Sheets, an overall increase of two votes from the original margin of victory election night. The final tally for the closest mayoral election in city history was Phelan with 12,355 votes and Sheets with 12,338. A life-sized bronze statue of John Adams, the second president of the United States, was dedicated at the edge of City Hall Plaza, across the street from where his wife, Abigail, and son John Quincy, the sixth president, stood in front of United First Parish Church.

President Bush signed into law a bill creating an Adams National Memorial in the nation's capital. The bill, co-authored by Cong. Bill Delahunt, authorizes a national tribute on federal land to John and John Quincy Adams and their wife and mother, Abigail.

Bush also approved a measure providing $2 million for land acquisition at the Adams National Historic Park, an appropriation that had been in the works for a year.

Russell Erickson of Quincy, who had a distinguished World War II record on 33 missions over Germany as a B-24 bomber pilot, traveled to Barksdale Air Force Base in Louisiana to see a restored version of his old plane, "The Louisiana Belle," become part of the 8th Air Force Museum.

A decades-old tradition came to an end when Santa Claus arrived for the 49th annual Quincy Christmas Parade on a Quincy Fire Department engine instead of his usual parachute jump.

Some $2,000 of the Salvation Army's annual "Kettle Campaign" funds were stolen from a locked safe at the Salvation Army's Quincy headquarters, but the loss was quickly replaced by a $2,000 check from a generous donor, John Bucciarrelli of Stephens and Michaels Associates, Inc., of Windham, N. H.

The Quincy High School football team rescued an otherwise lackluster 5-4-1 season with a 12-7 win over North Quincy in the 69th renewal of their Thanksgiving Day rivalry. Coach Bob Noble presented the game ball to former QHS Coach Bill Sullivan, who attended along with Pete Zoia of North Quincy.

Natalie Saville Hewitt, 101, of New Boston, N. H., former Quincy art teacher and librarian.

DECEMBER

The year 2001 ended on a note of mystery and intrigue when Daniel Keating, the executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets admitted that he forced his way into the office of Personnel Director Kevin Madden looking for a copy of a firefighters' contract.

Keating apologized and Sheets called the incident a "very foolish thing for him to do," but he refused to answer any further questions because an investigation was ongoing by the State Police and the Norfolk County District Attorney's office.

Keating's actions apparently involved forced entry into two office doors in the personnel director's office and later attempts to conceal the act by switching office doors. Keating himself called his actions "stupid" but he did not explain further.

Mayor Sheets reaffirmed his commitment to submit a 169 percent tax classification for Fiscal 2002, but he added that state budget delays might put off a reclassification hearing before the City Council later than expected.

"I'm going to send down a classification of 168 percent," he said. "We need to get the tax rates certified and then we'll know when to submit the classification order to the council."

The mayor promised that the goal of sending out estimated third quarter tax bills by Jan. 1 would still be met. Failure to do so would mean roughly $25 million in short-term borrowing to payment the normal municipal bills.

Fourth quarter tax bills, said Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the Board of Assessors, would use actual tax rates and would reflect average valuation increases of 24 percent for commercial and 25 percent for residential property.

Newly released state revenue figures showed that Quincy would receive nearly $450,000 less in state aid than what was estimated by the state last spring. "It's not good news but, given the state's declining economy, it could have been worse," said Frank McCauley, chairman of the City Council's Finance Committee.

Outgoing Mayor Sheets and incoming Mayor William Phelan cast aside old rivalries and joined forces for an hour to take turns manning the same "celebrity kettle" outside Ryder's Home Decor and More Store in downtown Quincy.

Three city councillors, Patrick McDermott in Ward 3, Michael D'Amico in Ward 4 and Stephen Durkin in Ward 5, joined at-large councillor Paul Harold in bidding farewell to their fellow councillors at their last meetings. McDermott, D'Amico and Harold did not run for reelection; Durkin was defeated at the polls.

John Yazwinski, executive director of Father Bill's Place, an interfaith homeless shelter, warned that the shelter may have to turn people away if a proposed state budget goes into effect and between 300 and 400 mental patients are discharged from state hospitals.

A three-alarm fire in a Putnam Street duplex left Tracy Sullivan and her two children, Hannah and Heather, homeless and did more than $100,000 damage. Fire Department Inspector John Keegan speculated the fire started when a cat knocked over a candle.

Another three-alarm fire on Sea Street in Houghs Neck claimed the life of Kathleen Madden, 48, who was terminally ill and bed ridden. Two of her children suffered minor burns as they attempted to rescue her. Damage was estimated at $250,000.

Scarnici said he has been for a long time but never had time to pursue it until now.

"The automotive industry has slowed down quite a bit compared to the previous year which allowed me to attend the Lee Institute School of Realty in Brookline," Scarnici said. He completed the course, obtained his certificate and then obtained his real estate license from the Massachusetts Board of Realtors.

"Since I have been in sales for so long, I think I will enjoy real estate sales. It is both exciting and challenging."

"I'm looking forward to working with the staff at Century 21 Abigail Adams including Jayne Magown, office manager, Sandra Fennelly, sales manager, and of course, Uncle Sam Rounseville, who certainly keeps things lively at the office," Scarnici said.

If and when he returns to the automotive industry, Scarnici said he will stay in the real estate business.

"This is something I have always wanted to pursue," he said. "Now I finally have time to do it."

Scarnici thanked Century 21 Abigail Adams for the opportunity to sell real estate.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Simple Hand Washing Effective In Promoting Good Health

It's an annual event that occurs this time every year: the onslaught of colds and flu that interrupts the joy of the holiday season. Health experts agree that many illnesses that afflict so many of us could be avoided if we properly wash our hands and the food products that we consume.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health (MDPH) estimates that this winter, thousands of Massachusetts residents will be hit with one or another form of influenza. And, as many as 500, mostly elderly suffering from chronic health problems, will die as a result, according to Bela Matyas, M.D., medical director of epidemiology at the Massachusetts Department of Public Health and a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society. One way to reduce the likelihood of this happening is through proper hand washing.

Socializing And Disease

There are several reasons why the holiday season is a prime time for the spread of infectious diseases. We spend more time indoors, we are exposed to more people and we also spend more time preparing and eating food at this time of year. These activities make hand washing more important than ever.

"Hand washing is the single most important thing that we can do to prevent the spread of disease," Dr. Matyas said. "There is every indication that people who regularly wash their hands have fewer incidences of colds and flu."

How To Wash Your Hands

As simple as hand washing may seem to many of us, good hand washing technique is essential. According to the Centers for Disease Control, to properly wash your hands you should:

- Use warm running water and a mild liquid soap.
- Wet your hands and apply a small amount of soap to your hands.
- Rub your hands together until soapy lather appears. Wash for at least 15 seconds making sure to scrub between your fingers and under your fingernails.
- Rinse your hands under warm running water.
- Dry your hands with a disposable or single-use towel.
- When assisting a child, be sure that this or her hands can reach the running water. Help the child perform the steps listed above, then wash and dry your own hands.

Dr. Matyas advises that for household use plain soap and warm water are just as effective as anti-bacterial soaps. "What's really important is the mechanical process of washing your hands," he said. "You're not looking to kill what's on your hands, you're just trying to wash it away."

Food Preparation

Care should also be taken to make sure that disease isn't spread through food preparation. One of the simplest ways to do this is to wash your hands prior to preparing food and make sure that you wash the food as well.

"Simply rinsing off your food before preparing it will significantly reduce the risk of the spread of disease," Dr. Matyas said. "The only thing that is more effective than rinsing in preventing the spread of disease from fruits and vegetables is to peel the items."

For more information on hand washing and preventing the spread of disease through good hygiene, visit the Web site of the Centers for Disease Control (www.cdc.gov) and the Massachusetts Medical Society (www.mms.org).

Hearing Aids: Simplifying A Complex Decision

By STEPHEN P. TOBIAS
Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist

Digital, analog, program-mable, in the ear, behind the ear or completely in the canal?

Had enough?

This is only a sample of what's available. It can be very confusing to a person needing a hearing aid to know which model they should purchase. It can also be confusing to the professional that fits these models, since there are over 30 manufacturers believing that one of their 25 or more products will be the solution.

So what to you do? How do you know which type of hearing aid to purchase?

Let's start with your lifestyle. Are you or would you like to be more active socially but find it difficult due to background noise? If this is the case, I would recommend trying digital hearing aids. Digitals are designed to reduce background noise and they have a clearer sound, making it easier to hear conversation.

Digital aids are the most expensive, ranging in price from $1,200 to as high as $3,000. The lower priced digitals are less sophisticated with fewer adjustments possible. Remember, nothing totally eliminates background noise.

If you live a simple lifestyle and rarely venture out of the house then a simple analog circuit may work just fine while saving hundreds of dollars.

Once the circuit is determined then the style must be selected. More severe losses may require a behind-the-ear model, while mild to moderate losses can wear in-ear styles.

The size of the unit is determined by cosmetic needs as well as the user's ability to operate it. If the user has poor dexterity, a larger hearing aid would be easier to handle.

In addition to a larger aid, a volume control can be made longer for easier control. A handle can be added to the aid for easier removal and insertion. The list of options goes on and on.

To simplify things a bit, here is the best advice I can offer you. Select a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist or an Audiologist having over 10 years experience dispensing hearing aids. Make sure they can perform "in house" shell modifications to spare you from having to send the aid out for a fitting problem.

If you see a physician, first they should be able to recommend two or three specialists in your area. Talk to specialists in your area, since hearing aids require regular service.

After you have carefully selected your specialist and order the hearing aid, you must report back to them if you have any problems. Don't ever put your aid in the drawer without seeking help for your problems.

Take full advantage of the trial period, and before ordering your aid make sure you will not be charged huge fees for returns. If you're not satisfied with your specialist, find another that as the expertise and patience to solve your problems. Don't feel uncomfortable about returning a hearing aid. It's too large an investment to sit in the drawer.

Remember, it took many years for your hearing loss to occur; it takes many months to learn to hear again. With patience and determination your chances of success are great. Don't feel that you must do it alone. Your Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist is trained to go the distance with you to insure your success. Believe it or not, many people love their hearing aids.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

INSIDE INFORMATION

As it turns out, some dental x-rays reveal more than information about the teeth, bones, and gums. According to a recent study, reported in The Journal of the American Dental Association, panoramic radiography can also be used to detect the hardening of the arteries in the neck that can foreshadow stroke. Panoramic x-rays are taken by machines that move around the patient's head. Included in these images are potential blockages in the arteries of the neck caused by calcium deposits. With this in mind, dentists are alerted to look for signs of calcification that might lead them to refer patients for treatment. Dentists should be especially observant when examining post-menopausal women, for whom strokes are a major cause of death. We recommend regular checkups, periodic cleaning, and x-rays when needed. Our purpose is to help people reach and commit to the highest level of dental health personally appropriate to them. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we believe regular dental care is one of the best investments you will ever make. We are trained in the most advanced dental methods and take pride in paying full attention to all facets of dentistry. To schedule an appointment, please call 617-479-6220. Smiles are our business. # Red Raiders Start Season With Victories

By CHRIS POISSON

Unlike the past couple of seasons, the North Quincy High School boys' hockey team seems to be off to a good start having won its first two games.

After defeating Taunton, 5-1, in the season opener Dec. 15, the Red Raiders returned to the Quincy Youth Arena ice last Saturday night against Durfee — exactly one week later.

And they quickly ended any fears of rustiness head coach Bob Doyle may have had, scoring three goals in the first period en route to a 4-1 victory.

North Quincy (2-0) played Braintree yesterday (Wednesday) and will travel to Taunton Saturday.

"I was a little nervous," Doyle said. "We didn't play in a week, so we just had a week of practice."

"I was real pleased with our effort in the first period. We established a pretty good forecheck. We just got some good offense right off the bat."

Senior tri-captain Charlie Sorrento got things going for North Quincy, knocking home a rebound off junior Bryan Cooper's shot from the right circle at 6:15.

"Sorrento was flying all night," Doyle said. "He was named my No. 1 star. This year I'll be doing that, naming a star for each game. I thought Charlie really led by example out there."

The Red Raiders continued to mount pressure on the Durfee goalie and they were rewarded for their efforts with a two-goal outburst late in the period. At 12:13, junior defenseman Tim Duggan hit a streaking Matt Grazioso with a tape-to-tape pass and the junior left wing beat the goalie glove-side for a break-away goal.

About a minute later, senior tri-captain Scott MacDonald rushed up the right side and fired a perfect pass through traffic to Grazioso, who potted his second goal and third of the season.

"That was a super pass, an excellent pass," Doyle said. "He's really coming into his own, too. I'm real pleased with Scotty's turnaround from last year."

In the second period, the Red Raiders eased up and lost their relentless attack from the first frame. Despite two power plays at the beginning, Durfee controlled the play for the entire period and picked up a goal in the process to trim the lead to 3-1 at 4:58.

North Quincy committed a couple of reckless penalties as Durfee kept the momentum on its side. Several minutes after its first goal, the Hilltoppers had a breakaway but junior goalie Bruce Maggio (26 saves) came up with a sensational save, one of 13 saves in the period.

"I thought in the second period, he kept the game the way it was," Doyle said. "We were very fortunate to be in the situation we were in. Durfee got some life with that goal. We had a couple of careless penalties. We seemed to be running around a bit. They put some pressure on us and had some rushes, and Bruce did a real good job."

In the locker room before the third period, Doyle singled out the defensive efforts of senior Scott Markarian to try to motivate his team.

"He had some thunderous hits out there in the second period," Doyle said. "I used that as a motivational tool because we were flat footed. I said, 'Scotty's out there trying his but off and going through a wall for you guys. We need to take a page out of his book.'"

And North Quincy must have taken a few pages because they looked a lot better in the final frame. Midway through, Grazioso generated several quality scoring chances only to be stymied by the Durfee goalie.

MacDonald, who played a strong game overall, tallied an empty-net goal with 28 seconds left to cement the win.

"Scott MacDonald had a very good game," Doyle said. "His goal certainly solidified things. Durfee just kept coming."

Grazioso actually had the first crack to score the empty-netter and collect the hat trick, but he misfired on a short-range shot.

"Matt Grazioso with two goals tonight," Doyle said. "He's just so crafty with the puck. He was mad on that empty net one. They were razzing him for the hat trick. He's a good-natured kid. It didn't seem to bother him."

Nor should it. Grazioso, last year's leading scorer on the team, is off to a solid start, as are the rest of his teammates.

Presidents Ice Randolph

By CHRIS POISSON

Judging from the score sheet, the Quincy High School hockey team appears to have found its midseason form after a 9-0 shellacking of Randolph last Wednesday.

But the Presidents haven't looked too much into that victory. Instead, they've been looking ahead to Saturday night's match against Plymouth North.

"Randolph is rebuilding," said head coach Bob Sylvia. "It was really no contest. We just tried to move the puck around and not embarrass any program because we know what it feels like to be in that situation. It gave everybody a chance to play."

When undefeated Quincy (4-0-1) steps onto the Quincy Youth Arena ice Saturday at 7:50, it will have had 10 days to rest, recover and refine its game for Plymouth North. The hiatus couldn't have come at a better time.

"Any time you play a Plymouth team it's going to be a tough game because they're physical kids," Sylvia said. "We'll have to be ready to play them. We should have plenty of time to get rid of any sickness."

And Quincy's No. 1 goalie should also be close to returning. Senior Shaun Flaherty left the Dec. 15 game at Sandwich with a bruised thigh and was expected miss at least a couple of weeks.

Senior Tom Shruhan came in relief to preserve a 3-3 tie and he was between the pipes in the 6-3 win over Scituate Dec. 17. In the win over Randolph, he and Ryan Barter combined for the shut-out while the offense had an easy night.

Senior Bill McKeon tallied six assists and a goal and sophomore Matt LaCorte netted two goals and had an assist to lead the attack.

The Presidents have had no trouble scoring so far this season. They play three lines and the combinations have been potent, averaging six goals per game. And the offense will be bolstered with the addition of senior Paul Campbell, who received his waiver from the MIAA effective Dec. 20.

In the Scituate game, six players figured into the scoring. Seniors Dave Germain, Brian Scott, Andy Ross, McKeon and sophomores Josh Giordani and Matt Germain all found the net.

"Scoring has been balanced and that's what you need to compete with Sandwich, Whitman-Hanson and Hanover, or else they'll wear you down in the third period."

Following the Plymouth North game Saturday, Quincy battles rival North Quincy Jan. 2 and then hosts Whitman-Hanson and Sandwich before traveling to defending Division 3 state champion Hanover, which it defeated, 6-2, in the season opener.

In that game, Dave Germain pocketed a pair of goals and picked up an assist and his brother, Matt, added a goal and an assist. Senior Kevin Patten and junior Liam Powers also scored and Flaherty recorded 18 saves in net.

"Hanover was a big booster for confidence," Sylvia said.

The next day, Quincy defeated Dennis-Yarmouth, 6-1, as the Germain brothers combined for four goals and three assists. Flaherty turned away 18 shots.

"We're off to a real good start," Sylvia said. "We're getting balanced scoring. The defense is getting better. Shaun Flaherty has been terrific. And Tommy has stepped in and done a good job."

NOTHING TO SNIFF AT

If the muffler or other component of your vehicle's exhaust system is damaged, it may pose more of a serious problem than mere noise pollution. This is especially so if there is a smell of exhaust fumes in the passenger compartment. This may be an indication that a faulty exhaust pipe is allowing exhaust gases to get into the vehicle through the floorboards. This poses a very dangerous condition in that exhaust fumes contain carbon monoxide. This gas can induce loss of consciousness and even death. It is of utmost importance, therefore, to open all the windows in the vehicle in the event that exhaust fumes are detected in the passenger compartment. This situation must be checked out immediately. Do you smell exhaust fumes when you drive? Have your exhaust system checked out right away. The safety of our customers and their families is very important to us here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO and we want them to be informed. You can trust your auto repairs to us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. ## David Rochon On All-New England Soccer Team

Senior David Rochon recently became the first player in North Quincy High School boys' soccer history to be selected to the National Soccer Coaches Association America (NSCAA) All-New England team.

Rochon, a captain, was the Old Colony League MVP this season and was named to the OCL and EMass all-star teams. A midfielder and forward, he won the overall scoring title in the OCL with 16 goals and 4 assists, scoring in 16 of 18 games.

He finished his career as the highest scorer in school history with 41 goals and 12 assists. As a junior, he led the OCL in goals with 21 and was also named to the OCL and EMass all-star teams.

In addition to playing at North Quincy, Rochon has also played on Quincy travel teams, South Shore United Soccer Club and various indoor teams.

"David loves this sport and is really ready to move on to the next level, at which he will undoubtedly excel again," said head coach Robert Dano. "He has a remarkable understanding of the game and will be an outstanding player regardless of the competitive level."

North Quincy Overpowers Plymouth South, 55-45

With a near record 60 girls on the squad, the North Quincy High girls' track team split its first two Old Colony League contests, winning a shorthanded meet over Plymouth South, 55-45, and falling to powerhouse Silver Lake, 70-30.

North Quincy competed in the Winterfest last Saturday at the Reggie Lewis Center and tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday it will participate in the Brown University Invitational.

The Plymouth contest was held the night of North Quincy's annual Christmas concert and head coach Geoff Hennessy was forced to work with a diminished squad. Others had to compete in early events and leave.

That didn't stop the Red Raiders from winning all but two individual events.

April Rodgers won the 55, with Sarah Gregory finishing third. Diana Berberan won the hurdles. Brenna O'Brien took the 600, with Eileen Price placing third. Erin McFarland won the 1000, with Natalie Caron taking second. Katie Timmins won the mile.

Katie Mercurio cleared 5'2" to lead the entire league in the high jump, with Maria

GIRLS' TRACK

McGinness third. Jessica Jacques cleared 15' 13/4" to win the long jump with Jen Venuti third, qualifying for the states in the process.

Other scorers were Venuti (second) and Sarah Kennedy (third) in the 300. Evan Allen placed second in the two mile, and Paula Morgan took second and Julia McGunigle third in the shot-put.

Against Silver Lake, North Quincy lost nearly every photo-finish in the setback. There were a dozen events where a place was decided by a tenth, a hundredth or an inch. It lost both relays by a combined 0.8.

In the 55 dash, Rodgers was outleaped at line, losing by 5/100ths of a second. Laura Wells took second in the hurdles, but Berberan lost third by one-tenth.

Timmins took the mile. Caron took the 1000, but Price missed second on a lean at the tape. O'Brien won the 600, with Jacques taking third. McFarland and Venuti took second and third in the 300.

Beth Houghton was third in the two mile. Venuti missed second in the long jump by an inch, and Krystle Neves missed second in the shot-put by an inch as two Laker girls eclipsed her. Mercurio had an uncharacteristically off-day and could only muster third.

In the 4x200, anchor McFarland couldn't reel in the Lakers in the final 50 meters, and 4x100 anchor O'Brien was outleaped at the line.

The final six events gave Silver Lake a 43-3 bulge from what was a very close race.

"If you were watching the meet, you'd never know the score because we were trading victories and every event was exciting right down to the wire," Hennessy said.

At a freshman meet at Brown University, Price (mile), Shauna Kennedy (55), Sarah Kennedy (400) and Morgan (shot-put) took victories. Adrienne Doucette broke 7 minutes for the mile for the first time ever.

"A year ago at Central she was barely sub-8," Hennessy said. "Now after daily training all through cross country and winter track, here she is. It shows what hard work and dedication can do."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

HAPPY NEW YEAR... What kind of year will it be? We at the Deware Family Funeral Home hope that the coming year will be well-endowed with supplies of faith, courage and determination -- a sufficient supply for everyone -- for private citizens as well as public officials. . . Without faith, not only in God but in the abilities of our leaders at all levels and in ourselves, accomplishments will be few.

All of us must develop the type of courage it takes to speak out when a wrong needs righting. Too many sit back and hope that somebody else will make the first move or speak the first word. . . Too many "don't want to get involved" -- a decision that can feed the fires of greed, incompetence and dishonesty. . . And finally, we must acquire determination to assure that those things which we have become involved through use of our courage reach fruition.

Without these three -- faith in the future, the courage of our convictions, and determination in our efforts -- the coming year will not be a good year. . . But with these three, we can do much to shape a better community, state, nation and world.

Panera Bread Donates $1,500 To Sept. 11 Relief Efforts

Boston Bread, LLC, a franchisee of Panera Bread, recently presented a check for $1,500 to the Quincy Fire Department's Sept. 11 Relief Funds at the recently opened Panera Bread, 200 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The funds will be used to further the contributions already raised by the department.

"We believe that the universal spirit of bread is sharing," said Roch Potrykus, operating partner of Boston Bread, LLC. "As part of that philosophy of sharing, we strive to be a good neighbor and give back to the community through our Operation Dough-Nation Program."

The Panera Bread in North Quincy collected the $1,500 at their Grand Opening fundraising event in October. One hundred and fifty participants at the event donated $10 to receive $10 in Panera Bread dollars to try a free fare of sandwiches, salads, and soups in the cafe as

One hundred percent of the proceeds were donated to the Quincy Fire Department relief efforts.

"We're proud to partner with the Quincy Fire Department to contribute to the many dollars raised by the fire department, so more families can benefit from their program," said Potrykus.

Boston Bread, LLC, has participated in many community events and projects since it was founded in Boston in 1999.
